St. Paul Chief Cullen And Three Officers Riddle Bandit With Hail Of Lead

JEALOUS WOMAN TURNED HIM UP

Attempted To Shoot Policemen But Machine Gun Bullets Cut Him Down

(International News Service)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 24.—Working on secret information uncovered with the slaying of Homer Van Meter, machine gunner of John Dillinger's band of desperadoes, authorities today pressed a two-fold man hunt for George "Baby Face" Nelson, public enemy No. 1.

Department of justice agents swung into the search for Nelson, most ruthless of the Dillinger followers, when it was disclosed that he had been here with Van Meter in the past week.

Van Meter was shot and killed last night in a street battle with St. Paul's new chief of police, Frank Cullen, and three fellow officers. A hail of leaden machine gun bullets and shot gun slugs felled America's public enemy No. 4 as he fled a police trap.

Just as his hero, Dillinger, had died in a Chicago trap July 22 on information supplied by a jealous woman friend so did Van Meter met his violent end, Chief Cullen said:

Canadian Police Are Without Any Clue In Kidnaping Case

LABATT REFUSES TO DISCUSS CASE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 24.—So far as the eye or ear could detect the Canadian police today were no nearer to a solution of the John S. Labatt kidnaping case than they were when his abductors turned him loose a week ago last night after having held him captive for sixty three hours.

The extraordinary atmosphere of secrecy was rigidly preserved by not only the police but by the Labatt family who continued to remain in seclusion. The highlights of the situation this morning were:

1—No arrests have been made.

2—Labatt has not yet talked for publication and indications are that he will not.

RELEASE SUSPECT IN PHILADELPHIA

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The misty ocean waters off Sandy Hook were being thoroughly searched today by two coast guard boats following receipt of a tip by police that the bandits who staged Brooklyn's daring $427,950 armored truck robbery might be found in an anchored boat there.

Coast guard men began the search last night, but reported they had been unable to sight any suspicious vessels. No further word had been received from them by daylight.

The tip which sent the coast guard vessels from their base was received soon after District Attorney Geoghan of Brooklyn declared definite clews had been obtained to the perpetrators of Tuesday's daring robbery.

Geoghan said:

Wells, chairman of the labor committee of the United States Potters association, designated as a spokesman for both the workers' committee of 40 and the manufacturers committee of 20, said questions of working conditions and other details had been quickly settled, but the question which remains at issue is the demand for an increase of 25 percent for the 12,000 workers in the semi-porclain and chinaware branches of the business

The general conference will continue in the hope that some agreement may be reached, Wells said.

Republicans To Break Precedent

LEHIGH COUNTY LOSES IMPORTANCE

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Republican party precedent is to be broken this year now that the official opening of the fall campaign has been set down for the Williams Grove meeting on August 30, shunting into secondary importance the September 15 rally at Fogelsville.

There are two reasons why the new G. O. P. leadership abandoned the tradition of recent years of firing the opening blast of the campaign at Fogelsville in Lehigh county. One reason is honorary and the other is political.

Cumberland county, in which Williams Grove is situated, is conveniently located between Dauphin and Franklin counties, the respective homes of State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor and National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher. That is the honorary reason the Williams Grove rally offers an opportunity to pay tribute to both new leaders at the same time.

The political reason is that Lehigh county has recently gone Democratic and G. O. P. strategists feel

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 24.—City, county, state and federal authorities today launched one of the greatest manhunts in the history of Pennsylvania as four armed bandits disappeared into the rolling hills with three registered mail pouches containing $50,000 in cash.

Federal reserve officials in Pittsburgh's branch of the Cleveland bank said the money was to be used in payrolls today at the Lyndora National Bank, near here. The funds were in twenty, ten, five, and one dollar bills, it was announced.

Threaten To Kill Driver

The robbery, cleanly executed by the trio riding in two cars that forced the mail truck to the curb, was the largest in several years in this section. According to M. C. Lackey, Butler, driver of the truck, the men forced him to the curb, threatened to kill him, took the keys to the truck and after grabbing the three sacks containing the funds, fled.

The bandits fled through Evans City, Pa., indicating they would attempt to get into Pittsburgh or the Beaver Valley, state police immediately threw special patrols along all roads in the district. Special details were placed on roads leading into Ohio, and Youngstown police were notified to be on the watch for the escaping men.

Immediately after news of the robbery was flashed into Pittsburgh, postal inspectors and other federal agents sped to the scene to participate in the chase. County detectives and Butler police, who took the first steps in the hunt, broadcast a description of the men and their getaway car through the state police teletype system.

Abandon One Car

The payrolls were destined for the Standard Steel Car Company and American Rolling Mill company plants.

Lackey had left the Butler postoffice a few minutes before the robbery. He was on the outskirts of the city when the two cars drove alongside.

With guns drawn, the bandits ordered Lackey from his truck. "Give us those keys" he was told.

Threatened with death if he refused, the driver handed them over.

"Come, on, hurry up," the bandits ordered.

With the keys in their possession, one robber unlocked the cage of the truck, another grabbed the money while a third guarded Lackey to prevent a warning being given.

The fourth man remained at the wheel of the car used in the getaway. The car was said to bear an Ohio license plate listed from Youngstown.

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 24.—City, county, state and federal authorities today launched one of the greatest manhunts in the history of Pennsylvania as four armed bandits disappeared into the rolling hills with three registered mail pouches containing $50,000 in cash.

Federal reserve officials in Pittsburgh's branch of the Cleveland bank said the money was to be used in payrolls today at the Lyndora National Bank, near here. The funds were in twenty, ten, five, and one dollar bills, it was announced.

Threaten To Kill Driver

The robbery, cleanly executed by the trio riding in two cars that forced the mail truck to the curb, was the largest in several years in this section. According to M. C. Lackey, Butler, driver of the truck, the men forced him to the curb, threatened to kill him, took the keys to the truck and after grabbing the three sacks containing the funds, fled.

The bandits fled through Evans City, Pa., indicating they would attempt to get into Pittsburgh or the Beaver Valley, state police immediately threw special patrols along all roads in the district. Special details were placed on roads leading into Ohio, and Youngstown police were notified to be on the watch for the escaping men.

Immediately after news of the robbery was flashed into Pittsburgh, postal inspectors and other federal agents sped to the scene to participate in the chase. County detectives and Butler police, who took the first steps in the hunt, broadcast a description of the men and their getaway car through the state police teletype system.

Abandon One Car

The payrolls were destined for the Standard Steel Car Company and American Rolling Mill company plants.

Lackey had left the Butler postoffice a few minutes before the robbery. He was on the outskirts of the city when the two cars drove alongside.

With guns drawn, the bandits ordered Lackey from his truck. "Give us those keys" he was told.

Threatened with death if he refused, the driver handed them over.

"Come, on, hurry up," the bandits ordered.

With the keys in their possession, one robber unlocked the cage of the truck, another grabbed the money while a third guarded Lackey to prevent a warning being given.

The fourth man remained at the wheel of the car used in the getaway. The car was said to bear an Ohio license plate listed from Youngstown.

St. Paul Chief Cullen And Three Officers Riddle Bandit With Hail Of Lead

JEALOUS WOMAN TURNED HIM UP

Attempted To Shoot Policemen But Machine Gun Bullets Cut Him Down

(International News Service)

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 24.—Working on secret information uncovered with the slaying of Homer Van Meter, machine gunner of John Dillinger's band of desperadoes, authorities today pressed a two-fold man hunt for George "Baby Face" Nelson, public enemy No. 1.

Department of justice agents swung into the search for Nelson, most ruthless of the Dillinger followers, when it was disclosed that he had been here with Van Meter in the past week.

Van Meter was shot and killed last night in a street battle with St. Paul's new chief of police, Frank Cullen, and three fellow officers. A hail of leaden machine gun bullets and shot gun slugs felled America's public enemy No. 4 as he fled a police trap.

Just as his hero, Dillinger, had died in a Chicago trap July 22 on information supplied by a jealous woman friend so did Van Meter met his violent end, Chief Cullen said:

LABATT REFUSES TO DISCUSS CASE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 24.—So far as the eye or ear could detect the Canadian police today were no nearer to a solution of the John S. Labatt kidnaping case than they were when his abductors turned him loose a week ago last night after having held him captive for sixty three hours.

The extraordinary atmosphere of secrecy was rigidly preserved by not only the police but by the Labatt family who continued to remain in seclusion. The highlights of the situation this morning were:

1—No arrests have been made.

2—Labatt has not yet talked for publication and indications are that he will not.

Coast Guard Men Search Coastal Waters For Clue

RELEASE SUSPECT IN PHILADELPHIA

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The misty ocean waters off Sandy Hook were being thoroughly searched today by two coast guard boats following receipt of a tip by police that the bandits who staged Brooklyn's daring $427,950 armored truck robbery might be found in an anchored boat there.

Coast guard men began the search last night, but reported they had been unable to sight any suspicious vessels. No further word had been received from them by daylight.

The tip which sent the coast guard vessels from their base was received soon after District Attorney Geoghan of Brooklyn declared definite clews had been obtained to the perpetrators of Tuesday's daring robbery.

Geoghan said:

"I can't tell anything about the details the police may or may not reveal to me. But I will tell you this: The police are not working entirely in the dark.

The general conference will continue in the hope that some agreement may be reached, Wells said.

Council Passes Ordinance For Electric Survey

Appropriate $8800 For Payment Of Engineers To Be Hired For The Work

MAY NAME MAN NEXT MONDAY

City council met today in the municipal building and adopted the Davies ordinance, which provides for the employment of an engineer, or engineers, to make a survey of the electric equipment of the city and of the property of the Pennsylvania Power Company used here for public services. For the payment of the engineer or engineers, when employed, the council has appropriated out of general revenue $8,800. The engineer or engineers may be named by council Monday.

To Get Facts

They are to gather all information pertinent to the making of a contract for street lighting and also to the making of all other contracts for electricity used by the city. Under the provisions of the ordinance they will testify if necessary before the public service commission or any other body with relation to any of the said contracts.

Council's action in adopting the Davies resolution today is the first step by the city toward getting lower street lighting rates, as the contract expires this year. The facts secured by the engineers will also concern domestic lighting, and these facts will be available for any attempt to secure lower domestic rates. After council had adopted the ordinance Paul Dingledy, assist-

Republicans To Break Precedent

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Republican party precedent is to be broken this year now that the official opening of the fall campaign has been set down for the Williams Grove meeting on August 30, shunting into secondary importance the September 15 rally at Fogelsville.

There are two reasons why the new G. O. P. leadership abandoned the tradition of recent years of firing the opening blast of the campaign at Fogelsville in Lehigh county. One reason is honorary and the other is political.

Cumberland county, in which Williams Grove is situated, is conveniently located between Dauphin and Franklin counties, the respective homes of State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor and National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher. That is the honorary reason the Williams Grove rally offers an opportunity to pay tribute to both new leaders at the same time.

Goes Democratic

The political reason is that Lehigh county has recently gone Democratic and G. O. P. strategists feel

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 24.—City, county, state and federal authorities today launched one of the greatest manhunts in the history of Pennsylvania as four armed bandits disappeared into the rolling hills with three registered mail pouches containing $50,000 in cash.

STATE NEEDS TAXES FOR SCHOOL PAYMENTS

Need $4,000,000 For Payments Due School Districts

PRESENT BALANCE OF STATE $3,000,000

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—A drive to collect several large state tax payments in order to make possible distribution of fourth class school district subsidies this month as scheduled is being made by the department of revenue.

Secretary of Revenue Leon D. Metzger today said that the campaign was aimed to bring about $4,000,000 into the state's general fund by a week from today. Added to the present balance of slightly more than $3,000,000, treasury officials believe this sum will enable them to meet the school subsidies amounting to roughly $6,000,000 and the month-end payroll of $800,000.

Advance Asked.

Included in the $4,000,000 the revenue department is attempting to collect in the next seven days will be $380,000 in inheritance taxes, including a $200,000 advance payment from the R. W. Mellon estate, Metzger said.

As with all large estates, computation of the taxes of the Mellon estate will require at least a year even if no untoward legal tangles develop, Metzer explained, but the $200,000 payment is being made in partial settlement of the total amount which will be determined later. A first advance payment of $150,000 was made last May by the Mellon executors.

The semi-annual subsidies to fourth class school districts became payable this month. Payments are due next month to second and third class districts and to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in October. The September and October payments total approximately another $6,000,000.

COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCE FOR ELECTRIC SURVEY

ant to Vice President and General Manager L. B. Round of the power company, addressed council. He said that Mr. Round is absent from the city and he had believed there would be no action taken by council while Mr. Round was absent.

He said council had never made any request for a domestic rate discussion and council's action today in taking their latest step appeared to be antagonistic and indicated council had no faith in the company's fairness. He further declared council had not given the company an opportunity to enter into negotiations.

No Request

"Now that the action has been taken," said Mr. Dingledy, "I do not want to deter you from your rights or duties." He added that there has been electric rate litigation in other cities and said he felt it unfair that the company had not been asked to negotiate with the city.

He declared the domestic rate here to be the lowest in the state and added that reductions have been made during the past two years. He admitted the trend is toward lower rates, but declared the attitude of the company has been fair.

Dingledy said he believed the company was entitled to a hearing before an outside engineer is brought in at a big expense to the taxpayers. He said this expense would be increased if litigation occurred.

Councilman Davies told Mr. Dingledy that "It is not the intent of council to hire an engineer to go into litigation, but rather to obtain information so that council can protect the taxpayer." Davies expressed the hope that there would be no litigation, after which he added: "We are not looking for a fight."

Dingledy maintained council should have communicated with the company in an effort to ascertain if electricity could be sold cheaper.

Councilman Alexander told the power company executive, "We have met Mr. Round and he never talked terms. His letter to us in June indicated we could not expect much."

Councilman Hoyland remarked that "The city wants to obtain the facts."

New Contract

Solictor Robert White said that the city must make a new contract for street lighting and that "this does not call for a discussion until both sides are ready." He said that in the past when the city talked about contracts "we did not know what we were talking about."

He said council is not antagonistic, then informed Mr. Dingledy that the survey would include both street and domestic lighting.

Dingledy said he realizes the street lighting contract expires soon, and relative to domestic service declared the public service commission has sole jurisdiction over that phase.

"We don't want to go to the commission. We would prefer dealing with the city," said the executive, after which Solicitor White remarked that the survey would bring out "whether your rates are too low. We don't know."

around with women while they hid out here. It was one of these women who recently got mad because Van Meter was concentrating his attentions elsewhere. She gave us some valuable information. That is all I can say now."

Detectives directing the search for Nelson's hideout said they had information that John Hamilton, first lieutenant of the slain Dillinger, was hiding out here with the baby-faced desperado.

The same woman informant who betrayed Van Meter gave information concerning the whereabouts of Nelson, according to reliable reports.

Tipped By Woman

Tipped off that Van Meter would be in the vicinity of Marion and University avenues last evening, Chief Cullen took his squad to the intersection in a police automobile. He was accompanied by Tom Brown, former chief and present head of the Bertillon department, and Detectives Thomas McMahon and Jeff Dietrich.

Besides their service revolvers the officers were armed with two machine guns and two shotguns. Waiting in the squad car, the officers suddenly sighted the hunted desperado approaching on foot, as Van Meter drew near the officers stepped out and commanded him to surrender. A look of astonishment spread over the outlaw's face. Instead of surrendering he drew a pistol and shot twice at the four policemen.

Then he wheeled and dashed across the street and into an alley. Police Chief Cullen and his squad cut loose with a murderous fire of shot gun and machine gun pellets, striking the outlaw in the arm. The officers pursued Van Meter, firing as they ran. Momentarily they held their fire when an aged woman crossed their path.

Cut Him Down

Opening fire once more, the policemen cut the outlaw down in the alleyway. Van Meter fell in the muddy ooze and died almost instantly. Examination showed that more than two dozen bullets and shotgun pellets had riddled his body. In his outstretched hand was the pistol with two cartridges exploded.

A search of his pockets revealed $925 in cash, mostly in $10 and $20 bills, an extra clip of cartridges for the pistol, and an Illinois motor vehicle registration card issued to a "Henry Adams."

Like his dead chieftain, Dillinger, Van Meter had had his face "lifted" by plastic surgery as a means of disguise. His naturally chestnut-colored hair was dyed a deep black and an anchor and scholl tattooed on his left arm with the word "hope" beneath the design had been blanked out inexpertly with a blue blotch on the skin.

Only one glimpse of the speeding get-away car was reported after it left the robbery scene. That was when it roared through Evans City. Evans City is on a route into Pittsburgh or into the Beaver Valley.

According to the federal reserve bank in Pittsburgh, the shipment was dispatched from the bank last night shortly before midnight and sent to Butler over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. It had started on its journey to Lyndora just before the bank there opened.

Serial numbers of the bills were believed to have been recorded and broadcast to banks throughout this section of the country.

Hundreds of police officers were engaged in the manhunt. The entire police department of Pittsburgh and Butler was recruited into the search when radio cars in Pittsburgh were ordered to be on the watch for the quartet and the city-wide teletype circuit clattered out a general alarm for the men.

The entire state police and highway patrol roster of the western section of the commonwealth was ordered into the hunt.

Thousands of police officers were enlisted into the hunts. Federal agents began combing the robbery scene for clues as a veritable army of law enforcement agents swept into the search.

Sirens howled as state police and state highway patrolmen scattered westward toward New Castle, and the Ohio state line, to block off the escape.

Thought From Youngstown

Belief that the robbers were from Youngstown, O., led to every available state, county and city officer in the western section of the commonwealth being rushed to guard the "border-line" highways leading into the neighboring state. The belief that the robbery was perpetrated by Ohio hoodlums was based on the fact that license plates listed out of the Ohio city were used on the car abandoned at the scene of the crime.

It was reported shortly after the robbery, that the get-away car had been stopped a short distance from the scene and license plates changed. The new plates were reported to be Georgia plates.

M. C. Lackey, driver of the mail truck, told the story of the robbery to International News Service in these words:

"I was driving along near the Clinton Hotel when another car suddenly shot in front of me and forced me to the curb. I thought the driver was drunk."

He said another car pulled up behind the mail truck and that two men leaped upon the running board, one on either side of the car, and threatened to kill him unless he turned over the keys to the truck.

Getting the keys, the men unlocked the cage of the truck, seized the three bags, leaped into one of their cars and sped away leaving their other machine behind in the mad flight.

No one was in the machine but they later found the owner and occupants of the car in the gasoline station.

They telephoned to the city police station stating that they had found a car bearing similar numbers to that which was said to have been used in the robbery.

Sergeant Marion Young sent the report to all officers in the city who watched thoroughfares leading out of town.

After combing the Weigletown section and East New Castle district the city cruser cars returned to the city, but Trooper Hughmanick and Deputy Sheriff Hartland stayed on the road until 11:30 a. m.

Georgia License?

It developed later that the wrong license number may have been given out in the hue and cry that followed the robbery at Butler as the State police teletype at 10 a. m., carried a message asking a search for a "Georgia car."

According to the message three men were seen in a black terraplane at 8:30 a. m., at the Butler fair grounds, which is close to the State police barracks. The men were well dressed and the driver about 30 years of age.

The car at this time bore a Georgia dealer's license and according to the State police it may have been the same car that was used in the robbery.

According to their report two of the men were changing the license plates and their general demeanor was suspicious. One of the men was tall, had light hair and wore blue overalls.

The State police acting on this information has notified all of the officers to also watch for a car carrying Georgia license plates.

One police officer remarked that in his long experience it was the first time he had been unable to talk to the complainant—to the man who had suffered at the hands of criminals.

Hon. J. C. Elliott, K. C., spokesman for the Labatt family, was asked when he thought would tell the press the unrevealed details of his abduction. Elliott replied:

"He will not talk until after the preliminary hearing."

Must Find Kidnapers

This, of course, means that before there is a preliminary hearing the police must arrest the kidnapers.

Several days ago there was a lot of talk about "imminent" arests.

But as time went by and the arrests failed to materialize the optimism then prevalent began to give way to skepticism.

Today, nobody with the possible exception of a few high police officials, know what is likely to happen. The police may be hot on the trail of the kidnapers and again they may not be within miles of them.

Around police headquarters in London there has been a heavy concentration of police within the past few days. Some of these officers have spent a lot of time in the lobby of the leading London hotel. Others have taken part in conferences in police headquarters. None of them talked for publication. "Mum" was the word when reporters appeared. It was all very mysterious.

STRESS SAFETY AT LEHIGH PLANT

Mr. Quigley stated that the Lehigh company was a pioneer in the industrial safety field, largely due to the influence of the late Col. E. M. Young, president of the company over a long period of years. Their example was followed by other cement plants.

A meeting of the quarry employes was held at 11:30, when talks were given by Superintendent Wesley Davy, Chief Quigley, and his assistant, J. N. Diener, who accompanied him here. This was followed by a meeting of the plant employes at 12:30.

Unable To Reach Any Agreement In Aluminum Tieup

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—Capital and labor in the aluminum industry marked time here today as Aluminum Company of America officials and workers continued their 13-day-old deadlock on labor questions.

The union, demanding among other things the institution of the check-off system, a universal wage rate and union recognition, remained steadfast in its demands. On the other hand, the company was apparently equally adamant that it will not recognize the claims of the unionists.

Union officials denied reports that hundreds of names had been signed to petitions in a "back-to-work" movement. Company spokesmen said:

"We know nothing of any petitions being circulated to have the workers return to the plants."

POST MORTEM ON SNAKE DELIVERS LIVE FROG

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 24.—Somewhere in a pond on the Frank Perry ranch a pop-eyed frog probably is croaking out a story to fellow amphibians that parallels the famous yarn of "Jonah and the Whale."

When liberated, the modern "Jonah" appeared to be dead, but later showed signs of breathing. It subsequently opened its eyes, jumped into the pond and swam away.

STATE NEEDS TAXES FOR SCHOOL PAYMENTS

Need $4,000,000 For Payments Due School Districts

PRESENT BALANCE OF STATE $3,000,000

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—A drive to collect several large state tax payments in order to make possible distribution of fourth class school district subsidies this month as scheduled is being made by the department of revenue.

Secretary of Revenue Leon D. Metzger today said that the campaign was aimed to bring about $4,000,000 into the state's general fund by a week from today. Added to the present balance of slightly more than $3,000,000, treasury officials believe this sum will enable them to meet the school subsidies amounting to roughly $6,000,000 and the month-end payroll of $800,000.

Advance Asked.

Included in the $4,000,000 the revenue department is attempting to collect in the next seven days will be $380,000 in inheritance taxes, including a $200,000 advance payment from the R. W. Mellon estate, Metzger said.

As with all large estates, computation of the taxes of the Mellon estate will require at least a year even if no untoward legal tangles develop, Metzer explained, but the $200,000 payment is being made in partial settlement of the total amount which will be determined later. A first advance payment of $150,000 was made last May by the Mellon executors.

The semi-annual subsidies to fourth class school districts became payable this month. Payments are due next month to second and third class districts and to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in October. The September and October payments total approximately another $6,000,000.

COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCE FOR ELECTRIC SURVEY

ant to Vice President and General Manager L. B. Round of the power company, addressed council. He said that Mr. Round is absent from the city and he had believed there would be no action taken by council while Mr. Round was absent.

He said council had never made any request for a domestic rate discussion and council's action today in taking their latest step appeared to be antagonistic and indicated council had no faith in the company's fairness. He further declared council had not given the company an opportunity to enter into negotiations.

No Request

"Now that the action has been taken," said Mr. Dingledy, "I do not want to deter you from your rights or duties." He added that there has been electric rate litigation in other cities and said he felt it unfair that the company had not been asked to negotiate with the city.

He declared the domestic rate here to be the lowest in the state and added that reductions have been made during the past two years. He admitted the trend is toward lower rates, but declared the attitude of the company has been fair.

Dingledy said he believed the company was entitled to a hearing before an outside engineer is brought in at a big expense to the taxpayers. He said this expense would be increased if litigation occurred.

Councilman Davies told Mr. Dingledy that "It is not the intent of council to hire an engineer to go into litigation, but rather to obtain information so that council can protect the taxpayer." Davies expressed the hope that there would be no litigation, after which he added: "We are not looking for a fight."

Dingledy maintained council should have communicated with the company in an effort to ascertain if electricity could be sold cheaper.

Councilman Alexander told the power company executive, "We have met Mr. Round and he never talked terms. His letter to us in June indicated we could not expect much."

Councilman Hoyland remarked that "The city wants to obtain the facts."

New Contract

Solictor Robert White said that the city must make a new contract for street lighting and that "this does not call for a discussion until both sides are ready." He said that in the past when the city talked about contracts "we did not know what we were talking about."

He said council is not antagonistic, then informed Mr. Dingledy that the survey would include both street and domestic lighting.

Dingledy said he realizes the street lighting contract expires soon, and relative to domestic service declared the public service commission has sole jurisdiction over that phase.

"We don't want to go to the commission. We would prefer dealing with the city," said the executive, after which Solicitor White remarked that the survey would bring out "whether your rates are too low. We don't know."

HOMER VAN METER, PAL OF DILLINGER, KILLED BY POLICE

around with women while they hid out here. It was one of these women who recently got mad because Van Meter was concentrating his attentions elsewhere. She gave us some valuable information. That is all I can say now."

Detectives directing the search for Nelson's hideout said they had information that John Hamilton, first lieutenant of the slain Dillinger, was hiding out here with the baby-faced desperado.

The same woman informant who betrayed Van Meter gave information concerning the whereabouts of Nelson, according to reliable reports.

Tipped By Woman

Tipped off that Van Meter would be in the vicinity of Marion and University avenues last evening, Chief Cullen took his squad to the intersection in a police automobile. He was accompanied by Tom Brown, former chief and present head of the Bertillon department, and Detectives Thomas McMahon and Jeff Dietrich.

Besides their service revolvers the officers were armed with two machine guns and two shotguns. Waiting in the squad car, the officers suddenly sighted the hunted desperado approaching on foot, as Van Meter drew near the officers stepped out and commanded him to surrender. A look of astonishment spread over the outlaw's face. Instead of surrendering he drew a pistol and shot twice at the four policemen.

Then he wheeled and dashed across the street and into an alley. Police Chief Cullen and his squad cut loose with a murderous fire of shot gun and machine gun pellets, striking the outlaw in the arm. The officers pursued Van Meter, firing as they ran. Momentarily they held their fire when an aged woman crossed their path.

Cut Him Down

Opening fire once more, the policemen cut the outlaw down in the alleyway. Van Meter fell in the muddy ooze and died almost instantly. Examination showed that more than two dozen bullets and shotgun pellets had riddled his body. In his outstretched hand was the pistol with two cartridges exploded.

A search of his pockets revealed $925 in cash, mostly in $10 and $20 bills, an extra clip of cartridges for the pistol, and an Illinois motor vehicle registration card issued to a "Henry Adams."

Like his dead chieftain, Dillinger, Van Meter had had his face "lifted" by plastic surgery as a means of disguise. His naturally chestnut-colored hair was dyed a deep black and an anchor and scholl tattooed on his left arm with the word "hope" beneath the design had been blanked out inexpertly with a blue blotch on the skin.

Department of justice agents learned that Dillinger and Van Meter had submitted to the face lifting operation by the same Chicago plastic surgeon.

Unable To Reach Any Agreement In Aluminum Tieup

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—Capital and labor in the aluminum industry marked time here today as Aluminum Company of America officials and workers continued their 13-day-old deadlock on labor questions.

The union, demanding among other things the institution of the check-off system, a universal wage rate and union recognition, remained steadfast in its demands. On the other hand, the company was apparently equally adamant that it will not recognize the claims of the unionists.

Union officials denied reports that hundreds of names had been signed to petitions in a "back-to-work" movement. Company spokesmen said:

"We know nothing of any petitions being circulated to have the workers return to the plants."

POST MORTEM ON SNAKE DELIVERS LIVE FROG

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 24.—Somewhere in a pond on the Frank Perry ranch a pop-eyed frog probably is croaking out a story to fellow amphibians that parallels the famous yarn of "Jonah and the Whale."

When liberated, the modern "Jonah" appeared to be dead, but later showed signs of breathing. It subsequently opened its eyes, jumped into the pond and swam away.

STATE NEEDS TAXES FOR SCHOOL PAYMENTS

Need $4,000,000 For Payments Due School Districts

PRESENT BALANCE OF STATE $3,000,000

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—A drive to collect several large state tax payments in order to make possible distribution of fourth class school district subsidies this month as scheduled is being made by the department of revenue.

Secretary of Revenue Leon D. Metzger today said that the campaign was aimed to bring about $4,000,000 into the state's general fund by a week from today. Added to the present balance of slightly more than $3,000,000, treasury officials believe this sum will enable them to meet the school subsidies amounting to roughly $6,000,000 and the month-end payroll of $800,000.

Advance Asked.

Included in the $4,000,000 the revenue department is attempting to collect in the next seven days will be $380,000 in inheritance taxes, including a $200,000 advance payment from the R. W. Mellon estate, Metzger said.

As with all large estates, computation of the taxes of the Mellon estate will require at least a year even if no untoward legal tangles develop, Metzer explained, but the $200,000 payment is being made in partial settlement of the total amount which will be determined later. A first advance payment of $150,000 was made last May by the Mellon executors.

The semi-annual subsidies to fourth class school districts became payable this month. Payments are due next month to second and third class districts and to Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in October. The September and October payments total approximately another $6,000,000.

COUNCIL PASSES ORDINANCE FOR ELECTRIC SURVEY

ant to Vice President and General Manager L. B. Round of the power company, addressed council. He said that Mr. Round is absent from the city and he had believed there would be no action taken by council while Mr. Round was absent.

He said council had never made any request for a domestic rate discussion and council's action today in taking their latest step appeared to be antagonistic and indicated council had no faith in the company's fairness. He further declared council had not given the company an opportunity to enter into negotiations.

No Request

"Now that the action has been taken," said Mr. Dingledy, "I do not want to deter you from your rights or duties." He added that there has been electric rate litigation in other cities and said he felt it unfair that the company had not been asked to negotiate with the city.

He declared the domestic rate here to be the lowest in the state and added that reductions have been made during the past two years. He admitted the trend is toward lower rates, but declared the attitude of the company has been fair.

Dingledy said he believed the company was entitled to a hearing before an outside engineer is brought in at a big expense to the taxpayers. He said this expense would be increased if litigation occurred.

Councilman Davies told Mr. Dingledy that "It is not the intent of council to hire an engineer to go into litigation, but rather to obtain information so that council can protect the taxpayer." Davies expressed the hope that there would be no litigation, after which he added: "We are not looking for a fight."

Dingledy maintained council should have communicated with the company in an effort to ascertain if electricity could be sold cheaper.

Councilman Alexander told the power company executive, "We have met Mr. Round and he never talked terms. His letter to us in June indicated we could not expect much."

Councilman Hoyland remarked that "The city wants to obtain the facts."

New Contract

Solictor Robert White said that the city must make a new contract for street lighting and that "this does not call for a discussion until both sides are ready." He said that in the past when the city talked about contracts "we did not know what we were talking about."

He said council is not antagonistic, then informed Mr. Dingledy that the survey would include both street and domestic lighting.

Dingledy said he realizes the street lighting contract expires soon, and relative to domestic service declared the public service commission has sole jurisdiction over that phase.

"We don't want to go to the commission. We would prefer dealing with the city," said the executive, after which Solicitor White remarked that the survey would bring out "whether your rates are too low. We don't know."

around with women while they hid out here. It was one of these women who recently got mad because Van Meter was concentrating his attentions elsewhere. She gave us some valuable information. That is all I can say now."

Detectives directing the search for Nelson's hideout said they had information that John Hamilton, first lieutenant of the slain Dillinger, was hiding out here with the baby-faced desperado.

The same woman informant who betrayed Van Meter gave information concerning the whereabouts of Nelson, according to reliable reports.

Tipped By Woman

Tipped off that Van Meter would be in the vicinity of Marion and University avenues last evening, Chief Cullen took his squad to the intersection in a police automobile. He was accompanied by Tom Brown, former chief and present head of the Bertillon department, and Detectives Thomas McMahon and Jeff Dietrich.

Besides their service revolvers the officers were armed with two machine guns and two shotguns. Waiting in the squad car, the officers suddenly sighted the hunted desperado approaching on foot, as Van Meter drew near the officers stepped out and commanded him to surrender. A look of astonishment spread over the outlaw's face. Instead of surrendering he drew a pistol and shot twice at the four policemen.

Then he wheeled and dashed across the street and into an alley. Police Chief Cullen and his squad cut loose with a murderous fire of shot gun and machine gun pellets, striking the outlaw in the arm. The officers pursued Van Meter, firing as they ran. Momentarily they held their fire when an aged woman crossed their path.

Cut Him Down

Opening fire once more, the policemen cut the outlaw down in the alleyway. Van Meter fell in the muddy ooze and died almost instantly. Examination showed that more than two dozen bullets and shotgun pellets had riddled his body. In his outstretched hand was the pistol with two cartridges exploded.

A search of his pockets revealed $925 in cash, mostly in $10 and $20 bills, an extra clip of cartridges for the pistol, and an Illinois motor vehicle registration card issued to a "Henry Adams."

Like his dead chieftain, Dillinger, Van Meter had had his face "lifted" by plastic surgery as a means of disguise. His naturally chestnut-colored hair was dyed a deep black and an anchor and scholl tattooed on his left arm with the word "hope" beneath the design had been blanked out inexpertly with a blue blotch on the skin.

Department of justice agents learned that Dillinger and Van Meter had submitted to the face lifting operation by the same Chicago plastic surgeon.

LYNDORA PAYROLL STOLEN AS BUTLER TRUCK IS HELD UP

Only one glimpse of the speeding get-away car was reported after it left the robbery scene. That was when it roared through Evans City. Evans City is on a route into Pittsburgh or into the Beaver Valley.

Butler is only 35 miles from the Ohio-Pennsylvania state line and approximately 30 miles from Pittsburgh.

According to the federal reserve bank in Pittsburgh, the shipment was dispatched from the bank last night shortly before midnight and sent to Butler over the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. It had started on its journey to Lyndora just before the bank there opened.

Serial numbers of the bills were believed to have been recorded and broadcast to banks throughout this section of the country.

Hundreds of police officers were engaged in the manhunt. The entire police department of Pittsburgh and Butler was recruited into the search when radio cars in Pittsburgh were ordered to be on the watch for the quartet and the city-wide teletype circuit clattered out a general alarm for the men.

The entire state police and highway patrol roster of the western section of the commonwealth was ordered into the hunt.

Thousands of police officers were enlisted into the hunts. Federal agents began combing the robbery scene for clues as a veritable army of law enforcement agents swept into the search.

Sirens howled as state police and state highway patrolmen scattered westward toward New Castle, and the Ohio state line, to block off the escape.

Thought From Youngstown

Belief that the robbers were from Youngstown, O., led to every available state, county and city officer in the western section of the commonwealth being rushed to guard the "border-line" highways leading into the neighboring state. The belief that the robbery was perpetrated by Ohio hoodlums was based on the fact that license plates listed out of the Ohio city were used on the car abandoned at the scene of the crime.

It was reported shortly after the robbery, that the get-away car had been stopped a short distance from the scene and license plates changed. The new plates were reported to be Georgia plates.

M. C. Lackey, driver of the mail truck, told the story of the robbery to International News Service in these words:

"I was driving along near the Clinton Hotel when another car suddenly shot in front of me and forced me to the curb. I thought the driver was drunk."

He said another car pulled up behind the mail truck and that two men leaped upon the running board, one on either side of the car, and threatened to kill him unless he turned over the keys to the truck.

Getting the keys, the men unlocked the cage of the truck, seized the three bags, leaped into one of their cars and sped away leaving their other machine behind in the mad flight.

LOCAL OFFICERS COMBINE IN HUNT FOR MAIL THUGS

No one was in the machine but they later found the owner and occupants of the car in the gasoline station.

They telephoned to the city police station stating that they had found a car bearing similar numbers to that which was said to have been used in the robbery.

Sergeant Marion Young sent the report to all officers in the city who watched thoroughfares leading out of town.

After combing the Weigletown section and East New Castle district the city cruser cars returned to the city, but Trooper Hughmanick and Deputy Sheriff Hartland stayed on the road until 11:30 a. m.

Georgia License?

It developed later that the wrong license number may have been given out in the hue and cry that followed the robbery at Butler as the State police teletype at 10 a. m., carried a message asking a search for a "Georgia car."

According to the message three men were seen in a black terraplane at 8:30 a. m., at the Butler fair grounds, which is close to the State police barracks. The men were well dressed and the driver about 30 years of age.

The car at this time bore a Georgia dealer's license and according to the State police it may have been the same car that was used in the robbery.

According to their report two of the men were changing the license plates and their general demeanor was suspicious. One of the men was tall, had light hair and wore blue overalls.

The State police acting on this information has notified all of the officers to also watch for a car carrying Georgia license plates.

Unable To Reach Any Agreement In Aluminum Tieup

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—Capital and labor in the aluminum industry marked time here today as Aluminum Company of America officials and workers continued their 13-day-old deadlock on labor questions.

The union, demanding among other things the institution of the check-off system, a universal wage rate and union recognition, remained steadfast in its demands. On the other hand, the company was apparently equally adamant that it will not recognize the claims of the unionists.

Union officials denied reports that hundreds of names had been signed to petitions in a "back-to-work" movement. Company spokesmen said:

"We know nothing of any petitions being circulated to have the workers return to the plants."

POST MORTEM ON SNAKE DELIVERS LIVE FROG

(International News Service)

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 24.—Somewhere in a pond on the Frank Perry ranch a pop-eyed frog probably is croaking out a story to fellow amphibians that parallels the famous yarn of "Jonah and the Whale."

When liberated, the modern "Jonah" appeared to be dead, but later showed signs of breathing. It subsequently opened its eyes, jumped into the pond and swam away.

In 1922, this company was incorporated by the late Jos. S. Rice. His idea of incorporating was to have the Jos. S. Rice Co. continue to be a living memorial to him after his death. Without incorporation, this would would have been impossible.

The same organization that assisted the late Jos. S. Rice for the past 10 years or more, is "carrying on" the Rice service.

One group even prevailed upon the society editor to rummage through a heap of old magazines at her home to find a December issue of something or other. With that checked off, the young people went merrily on, in search of "the law" to secure a pair of handcuffs.

Not to be overlooked, was the tempting "snack" of wieners, and tasty sandwiches which the groups found on their return to the Travers home. The winners of pretty prizes were those in the car of Oliver Duval, Jerry Flick, Irma Swanton and Arthur Gilchrist.

PERRY-MASKREY MORNING WEDDING

Costumed in a smart ensemble of white crepe, made plain with three quarter length sleeves and hip length jacket, with which she wore a white crepe turban with nose veil and a shoulder corsage of Briarcliff roses, Irene Mae Perry, was a lovely bride for her wedding this morning at 11 o'clock to Harley Maskrey of Ellwood City.

The wedding was a quiet affair in the First Baptist church with just the relatives and a few close friends present. Rev. William Hammond, pastor of the Harlansburg Baptist church, an intimate friend of both families, officiated with the double ring ceremony, the young couple being unattended.

Preceding, and during the pretty exchange of vows, a beautiful program of nuptial melodies was rendered by Miss Laura Whitlatch.

Covers were laid for fifteen at the wedding dinner, following, in the Perry home on Cunningham avenue. The bridal table was centered with a large cake, surmounted with a miniature bride and groom, and surrounded with an artistic arrangement of summer flowers. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Perry, daughter Delores of Sewickley; Mrs. Retta Maskrey, Leo and Frederick Maskrey, Ellwood City.

Departing this afternoon upon a honeymoon, the destination unrevealed, the new Mrs. Maskrey wore a fall suit of navy blue with navy accessories. When they return, they will be at home, after September 1, in a newly furnished apartment in Ellwood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Perry of Cunningham avenue. Possessing a winsome personality, she has scores of friends who are wishing much happiness for her, the good wishes being also shared by the groom who is likewise well known. She is a graduate of the New Castle High School, January class, 1030, and has been associated with the Castle Stationery company.

The groom is a graduate of Ellwood High School 1929, and attended Bethany College. He is connected with the Shelby Tube company in Ellwood.

Miscellaneous Shower.

Lessio Tufano of 1107 Agnew street entertained close to 200 guests in his home on Thursday evening at a miscellaneous shower in honor of his sister Josephine, a bride-elect of August 30.

The evening hours were whiled away dancing and listening to music. Delicious refreshments were served during the course of the evening. The honored guest received many lovely gifts. Miss Tufano will be united in marriage to Dan Cooper of this city next Thursday morning in the St. Vitus church.

SMART FUNCTION AT BLANNING HOME

A smart function Thursday afternoon in the Highland avenue home of Mrs. E. J. Blanning interested a large number of society folks, the affair being given in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Eleanor Blanning to Frank G. Richards, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Richards of Birmingham, Ala.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Blanning and her daughter were Mrs. Frank B. Offutt and Miss Grace Sankey, the latter of Greensburg, Pa.

After extending good wishes to the bride-elect and chatting informally, the guests were served dainty refreshments in the dining room, artistically arranged with pastels. Beautiful cut flowers, roses and snap dragons, formed an effective centerpiece for the tea table at which Mrs. John Foster and Mrs. Ralph C. McGoun presided.

Aides included Miss Helen Foster of New York City, Misses Margaret Brown, Josephine McGoun, Mildred Sneckenberger, Helen Weingartner, Hazel Huston, Mrs. Lester Alexander, Mrs. J. C. Frampton and Mrs. W. B. McIver.

Out of town guests were Miss Anne Irwin, Miss Lea Cline, East Liverpool, O.; Mrs. C. J. Williamson, Miss Lois Williamson, Pittsburgh; Miss Betty Cusimano, Mrs. S. Noss, New York City.

DEPART FOR ITHACA TO ATTEND WEDDING

Leaving this morning for Ithaca, N. Y., to attend the wedding of their son, Rev. Charles O. Thompson, to Miss Ruth Horn, were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of Euclid avenue, with their daughters Grace and Betty Thompson, another son, Fred Thompson and wife of Beckford street, and Abe Klingensmith of Adams street.

The wedding will be solemnized at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Lutheran church at Ithaca in the presence of relatives and close friends, many of whom will be from Greenville as well as New Castle. The New Castle folks will return Sunday.

P. H. C. Picnic.

The members and friends of the Protected Home Circle went to Cascade park Thursday for an evening outing with bingo featuring the early hours.

Mrs. Teresa Shook, R. Shook, Mrs. Kate Cowles, Mrs. Edna Crane, Mrs. J. Rodgers and Mrs. Lillian Todwell were winners of the evening's prizes.

When play was over the group thoroughly enjoyed a menu of corn, wieners and coffee, which had been prepared by Dave Tucker and his committee: Bill Herman, Harry Mehlman, Helen Ray, Anna Nolte and Margaret Hammond.

S. J. Club Meets

An afternoon at cards interested the members of the S. J. club Wednesday in St. Joseph's Hall, with E. Kruger and Mrs. J. Calvert winning the high score prizes.

Wednesday, September 29, the group will meet again.

SCAVENGER HUNTS ARE MERRY AFFAIRS

Last night, June Travers of Hillcrest avenue, was hostess at the latest one. Seven couples started out, in foursomes, from her home about eight o'clock and before eleven, they had visited most of their friends trying to locate everything from a horseshoe nail to a Chinese penny.

One group even prevailed upon the society editor to rummage through a heap of old magazines at her home to find a December issue of something or other. With that checked off, the young people went merrily on, in search of "the law" to secure a pair of handcuffs.

Not to be overlooked, was the tempting "snack" of wieners, and tasty sandwiches which the groups found on their return to the Travers home. The winners of pretty prizes were those in the car of Oliver Duval, Jerry Flick, Irma Swanton and Arthur Gilchrist.

The hostess' mother, Mrs. J. F. Travers, assisted with lunch.

MISS MARY JOHNS GIVEN FAREWELL

Surprises are delightful affairs, especially when they are planned by friends, who show their fondness by arranging events for one's pleasure. The girls of the Swastika class of the First Congregational church expressed their love for Miss Mary Johns, Park avenue, in a tangible manner Thursday evening, when, as a surprise to her, they assembled at her home for a farewell party. Miss Johns will leave September 1 for Pittsburgh, where she will enter the training school of Mercy hospital.

Misses Peggy Davis, Margaret Thomas, Jean Hofmaster, Irene Price and Mrs. Ed Spencer were successful in the various games that featured the entertainment. Special guests were Misses Martina Hite, Jeannette Vogan and Jean Hofmaster.

Miss Cecelia Hughes, teacher of the class, made the speech when the girls presented Miss Johns with a gift of remembrance.

Mrs. Griff Thomas assisted Mrs. Johns in the serving of a dainty lunch.

ALL DAY QUILTING AT PITZER HOME

While their needles busily plied through a quilt Thursday the members of Section G of the Y. L. B. class of the Third United Presbyterian church enjoyed visiting with each other and discussing the topics of the day at the home of Mrs. Harry Pitzer, Butler road.

Mrs. Pitzer had her home artistically decorated with gorgeous flowers from her garden and the luncheon table presented a beautiful background for the delicious menu served at noon, with places arranged for 24. Mrs. B. Allen and Mrs. Mary Strasbaugh were special guests.

During the afternoon the group was entertained by the musical numbers played by Mrs. Pitzer and Paul Cluse.

Sicilian Club

Miss Josephine Gennaula, of Emerson avenue, entertained the members of the Sicilian Club in her home recently. During the usual business session, plans were made for a theatre party next Wednesday evening.

Delicious refreshments were served during the course of the evening, by the hostesses. The next regular meeting occurs in two weeks.

LOVELY LUNCHEON AT THE WETTICH HOME

Mary Elizabeth Fankhouser of Hazelcroft avenue, whose marriage to the Rev. Raymond Stewart Hall of Lynn, Mass., will be an event of September 1, was honored at a charmingly appointed one o'clock luncheon Thursday, over which Mrs. Charles W. Wettich presided at her home on Edison avenue.

The twelve guests were seated at a large table centered with a most effective arrangement of colorful snapdragons and dainty maiden hair fern. Appointments were in green and pink.

In the afternoon, the group busied themselves writing favorite recipes in a neatly bound book for the bride-to be. She was also the recipient of another lovely gift, stemmed crystal, which conveyed many good wished for her happiness.

PARTY GIVEN FOR BRIDE OF TODAY

The last of the series of lovely pre-nuptial parties for Miss Irene Perry, Cunningham avenue was given Wednesday evening in the home of Miss Freda Ungar, 513 Sampson street, with the members of the W. M. L. H. club as guests.

Cards formed the evening's diversion with Mrs. Irma Blews, a bride of the summer, winning the high score trophy.

When cards were concluded the hostess invited the girls to the dining room where a color scheme of black and white was artfully carried out in the table decorations, with nuptial favors marking each place and gorgeous summer flowers placed in a black bowl in the center of the table.

EDYTH CAMERON WEDS JAMES MARTIN

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the parsonage of the People's Mission Thursday afternoon at 2:30 when Edyth Cameron, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cameron of the Harbor road, became the bride of James Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Martin, Prospect street, South New Castle boro.

Supplementing the ceremony a supper was served in the bride's home, wtih a large wedding cake, the gift of Mrs. Anna Wagner, aunt of the bride, centering the bride's table.

Guests included Mrs. J. W. Martin, Rev. and Mrs. R. Owrey and the bride's family.

After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Martin will reside with the groom's parents. Mr. Martin is employed with the New Castle Dry Goods.

McCASLIN REUNION LARGELY ATTENDED

Upwards of 80 people were there for the very excellent dinner at noon. In the afternoon there were games for the children and the older folks had a business session at which the former officers were retained. These are: President, Wylie McCaslin; secretary, Miss Ruth Weir; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Teets.

Relatives were in attendance from Ellwood City, Fredonia, Pa., Hickory, Pa., and New Wilmington.

The reunion will take place next year at about the same time at Cascade park.

Johnson-Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Graham are taking up housekeeping today at their new home, 2117 Phelps street, in Ashland, Ky.

Their marriage took place at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, August 16, in the manse of the Holy Family church at Ashland, Ky., according to word received by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Graham, 714 Erie avenue.

Rev. Father Alfred Hanes officiated at the nuptial service. Mr. and Mrs. Chester Rupert were attendants and only a small number of relatives were present.

The bride was formerly Frances Johnson, daughter of Mrs. Charles Johnson of Ashland, Ky. She is a graduate of the Holy Family high school and for the past several years has been secretary in the office of the real estate firm of Pallitt & Ross at Ashland.

For her wedding, the bride was costumed in an all white outfit and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Graham wore a brown suit with accessories to match for her going away costume, their trip being to Chicago and other interesting points.

Magee Reunion.

Members of the Magee family assembled at Lakewood beach Tuesday for their annual reunion. About 100 were present and were served a bountiful dinner at noon.

Games were enjoyed during the afternoon and at the business meeting, these officers were elected: President, Wilson Magee; vice president, Irwin Stevenson; secretary, Mrs. Howard Jones; treasurer, J. Audley Boak.

Talks were given by J. Audley Boak, Carbis Magee, Merle Leslie, J. Ed Elder, Irwin Stevenson and C. W. Magee.

The oldest member present was Mrs. Margaret Schneider of County Line street, and the youngest was Melvin Krebs of Ellwood City.

MUSIC IN THE AIR

IN NEW YORK and nearby hereafter, when there's music in the air it will be pure music (in the current movie-reform sense of purity) and no thought or suggestion that would cause your grandmother to blush (obs.) will linger in its words. For, to ward off any danger of the extension of the church crusade against indecent movies into the field of radio, a committee of well-known orchestra leaders and radio broadcasters has been formed in Manhattan to ban suggestive songs and titles from the air.

The committee will consist of five men: Richard Himber, who seems to be its spokesman, Rudy Vallee, Guy Lombardo, Paul Whiteman and Abe Lyman, whose names speak for themselves. They will be known as "The Committee of Five for the Betterment of Radio."

The committee is to meet each Friday in the apartment of Mr. Himber, and pass judgment on all the songs published during the week. When a song is found objectionable, in title or lyrics, the publisher will be asked to revise it. If that request is denied, the song will be placed on a list of "banned songs." The list will be mailed once a week to orchestra leaders throughout the country, most of whom have already agreed not to play any banned song.

The move is an astute one and doubtless will save the purveyors of radio music a lot of grief, for one suspects reformers of ever seeking new worlds to conquer and new pleasures to curtail. One wishes it might operate with equal effect against the other ills of radio.

ABODE RENOVATION

Quickly have the banks responded to the federal government's appeal for loans to home owners for making necessary repairs. This part of the national recovery program is a noble experiment which is certain to succeed nobly.

It was not the leaky roof, sagging porch or broken plaster that Uncle Sam was thinking of when he told the bankers that if they would lend money for home repairs he would guarantee all losses up to 20 per cent of the total loans. His motive was to put thousands of members of the building trades back to work, thus helping national recovery on its way.

Loans for repairs will put to a test not only the confidence and patriotism of the bankers but the confidence and courage of the men and women who have come through the worst of the depression with at least a mortgage-hold on their homes. There will be no loans for repairs if either banker or eligible borrower wavers.

Successful administration of the home repair program throughout the land will greatly diminish the work of the emergency relief and the CWA during the coming winter. It is up to every owner of a house to analyze his repair needs, hunt up a helpful banker and put some men to work.

THE END OF THE WORLD

If Mr. Voliva's flat world is going to end on September 10 there are a few things that will have to be attended to right away. Previous prophecies from Mr. Voliva put the Day of Destruction in 1946, and most persons were more-or-less putting off preparing for it from day to day; after all, 1946 is a long way off, and there was plenty of time to attend to everything.

But September 10 is only a matter of days and it looks as though many will have to step lively. For one thing, there's the matter of vacation—that will have to be crowded in somehow before September 10. A man can't miss his last vacation. Then there are two books, a lawnmower and an umbrella to go back to friends and neighbors if the plan is to look the end of the world in the face with any kind of conscience. One of the books has been around since 1926 and it will leave quite a gap in the household, but this is a time for drastic action.

There is, of course, the silver lining: Creditors will have to struggle along as best they can.

Listening to Mr. Voliva's predictions is like taking a chance on one of the great sweepstakes: There is the exciting and even pleasurable sensation of looking forward to a routine-shattered event, with only the faintest apprehension it will ever take place.

You can't fool all of the creditors all of the time,

The only trouble with most persons who have "talking sickness is that they aren't sick enough.

Well, why shouldn't the rich pretend they are poor? The poor pretended they were rich.

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

WHEN TO LIE

I've an idea that man who just went down the street is annoyed with me.

He asked me something that wasn't mine to tell, something that wasn't his business to know. . . . So I lied and he knew I was lying. Because he knew that I knew what he wanted to know. And because he knew I was lying, he therefore knew that I didn't trust him enough to answer his question truthfully. . . . So he's angry with me, but somehow, I don't care. . . . What else could I do?

He wouldn't ask me for money, because he has money in his pocket now. He wouldn't ask me for advice, because he feels perfectly capable of taking care of himself. Then why should he ask me to tell himself something that doesn't belong to him and that he has no business to know? . . . You answer that question. I can't.

All I know is that he wouldn't have kept my answer to himself. He was so eager to know that I know what I told him would never have been hermetically sealed in his breast. . . . His pride or his eagerness to impress someone else would have forced him to spread abroad the little tag of information he sought from me. . . . I know about that because I would do the same thing.

We do not ask for confidences with any intention of keeping them. . . . Or even if we do, we are rarely able to keep our good resolutions. Somehow, a secret is never static. It stirs in our brains like a cat in a box. It ferments like new grape juice in a bottle. It bursts out like a jack in the box. It is dynamic bumping over a cobblestone road, hot lava boiling in a crater. The door of the cage opens and the cat leaps out with a scratch and a yowl. The bottle is shaken and the ferment foams all over the place. The dynamite explodes, the lava runs, smoking and flaming, down the mountain side; gabby mouth opens and the secret runs, like Wee Willie Winkle, all through the town, upstairs and down to the cellars and up through the garrets and out through the windows and over the housetops. . . . The spendthrift throws the money he borrowed from you all around, the man who asks you to tell him a secret broadcasts it like a sower in the field. . . . You'll have forgiveness in heaven for the lies you tell those who ask questions they have no right to ask.

GET MORE OUT OF LIFE BY THINKING CLEANLY

What a mean disposition you must have to be continually looking for something to criticise about people.

Why not make more effort to find out and repeat the commendable things about the people whom you know.

Nearly everybody has more good qualities than bad ones.

But you seem never to be impressed with the virtues of others.

Does the fact that you are always looking for evil of some sort mean that you possess so much of it yourself?

Are you trying to paint others black, so that less attention may be focused on your faults.

If you were right yourself, you should gain the most pleasure from alluding to the good things about those whom you know.

It might not be as sensational as the stuff you peddle about other people.

It should have a wholesome affect upon you, however.

As people think, so they are.

Clean, pleasing thoughts cause a beneficial reaction.

PAYMENT IN KIND.

Things might be made easier than they are if the revenue authorities were as broadminded as they are in Hungary. A circus proprietor in Budapest fell into arrears with his income tax payments recently. Did he merely plead inability to pay? Not at all. He forwarded to the collector seven lions and thirteen monkeys.

The collector did not, as might be expected, haughtily decline the delivery. By no means. He applied to the zoological gardens for an estimate, and proceeded to take over the animals, at a valuation of about $1,000.

PERMANENT CHARMS

Were I to live a thousand years
Of these glad things I'd never tire;
Evening and friends about my fire;
Tulips when first the spring appears;
Old books to comfort and inspire.

Had I a dozen lives to live
Sunrise and sunset still would be
Splendors that I should thrill to see;
Still I should rapt attention give
To wren and cardinal minstrelsy.

Against the weight of time and care
These things their charm forever hold;
Roses and phlox and marigold;
The rapture children's faces wear;
Sun, moon and stars and friendships old.

Business Is Looking Up
Dry Goods People Optimistic
Farm Helpers In Dire Need

By LESLIE EICHEL
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Business is looking up.

Says the authoritative National Retail Dry Goods association:

"Despite the havoc of the drouth merchants in the major part of the country view prospects for fall business with estimates of moderate and in many localities, substantial gains over the fall season last year.

"Gains in dollar sales totals throughout the country in September, October and November may be expected to register an approximate 10 per cent increase over sales in the same months of 1933."

The association bases its figures on a survey it made among 5,000 member department and specialty stores.

And the New York Times reports: "Fall purchasing continued active in the local merchandise market last week and visiting buyers expressed confidence over the outlook.

"Many confirmations or orders were received, indicating that skepticism regarding the firmness of fall prices had been removed."

And here is another indicator: By Sept. 30 there will be hardly an empty apartment in New York and vicinity. Rentals are rising—due however, in all likelihood to high taxes.

* * *

OTHER SIDE

There is a darker side.

They are the real Forgotten Men (and women and children). Their condition is desperate—and they are being chiefly bruited around.

AN ACCOUNTANT'S VIEW

A New Yorker who has an accounting business in Wall Street takes a gloomy view of the future (for business.)

"I do not know what will occur" he says in substance. "Labor is gaining power and is riding hard. It will gain greater power. Roosevelt is to blame. He stirred up an awful mess with that 7-A clause (providing for compulsory collective bargaining.)

"Will Roosevelt be re-elected? Events within the next 18 months will provide the answer. I do not believe he will be re-elected."

A WORD OF CAUTION

Some papers published largely a review by Maxwell S. Stewart of the Foreign Policy association, indicating world-wide trade pickup.

There were, though, some contra paragraphs which did not receive such wide attention.

For example, Stewart said:

"There are many features of the upturn however, which some observers feel to be basically unsound. It is evident, for example, that little progress has been made toward overcoming the fundamental obstacles to a revival of world trade—such as the paralysis of international finances, exchange instability or elimination of trade barriers—without which recovery must be confined to fairly narrow limits. The attempt of a number of the larger countries to resolve the contradictions of their internal economies by competitive currency depreciation has served to accentuate the disequilibria in the state retaining the gold standard. Critics have pointed out that unless this tendency is checked the sharpening of national rivalries must sooner or later pass over into the military sphere.

"Equally disturbing has been the failure of labor to obtain its share of the fruits of business recovery. Nowhere, save possibly in Germany has employment kept pace with the gains in industrial activity. Real wages and standards of living for the working class appear to have fallen almost universally.

"Agriculture has also suffered a serious loss in purchasing power. It is evident that until consumption can be raised in line with production, there can be no basis for permanent recovery and that such revival as has occurred will not affect the vast majority of the world's population."

SACRIFICE

Strikes at Aluminum Company of America plants in six places are sacrificing wages of approximately $975,000 a month in order to achieve wage adjustments and collective bargaining.

Employers point this out as an "object lesson" to labor.

Labor points it out as an example of the courage it takes to strike "to gain rights."

The real gain will come when there will be adjustment by law without such sacrifices.

TODAY Is The Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD Copyright 1934 Central Press

FRIDAY, DAY, AUGUST 24

The World War Day By Day—August 24th, 1914—In the presence of an impending calamity Field Marshall Sir John French displays slowness of action which for so long will characterize and afflict British operations in the war.

The French commander-in-chief Joseph Joffre, has given his ominous news. Namur has fallen and is beyond recovery. Lanzerac's left wing 5th army has been in full retreat for many hours. Intelligence officers have ascertained belatedly that there are in front of the British not two German corps, as Sir John figured, but four, while a fifth is swinging around the Allied left flank.

It now is plain that Van Kluck is rusing forward with 300,000 troops in a desperate end run aimed at getting between the Allied armies and Paris. In front of him, Von Kluck has less than 80,000 British troops. Unless the British can get away and at the same time cover the left flank, Van Kluck can complete his end run and make his touchdown. It is one of the most dramatic hours in the whole war.

Not for many hours after the situation becomes clear does French actually begin his retreat: hours that will nearly bring ruin. And only when he has shoved his lines back so that the right rests on Maubeuge, with the center at Bavay, does he realize completely his desperate situation.

The Germans are endeavoring to drive him in on Maubeuge. That would mean the ultimate capture of his army and the uncovering of the east flank of Joffre's armies.

Alert at last, French continues the retreat of his weary men, who have been on their feet all day, through the night.

Europe's future depends during those nocturnal hours upon how far the legs of the utterly exhausted Tommies can move.

The Austro-German double headed offensive is working like a see-saw. Success in the west is counterbalanced by reverses in the east. There von Hindenburg, newly appointed to command, is struggling to save the German force in East Prussia from disaster: Russians are overrunning Galicia: and the Austrian invasion of Serbia is in collapse. On the 24th the Austrians fall back upon the Drina followed by Serbian cavalry which gleans prisoners, guns and stores.

Great Days—August 24th, 79 A. D.—The last day of Pompeii. An eruption of Vesuvius slowly buried Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae beneath 14 feet of wet ashes and cinders. All but 2,000 of the inhabitants escaped.

Memory of the towns faded, and the ruins were undisturbed for 16½ centuries—until a farmer, digging for water struck statuary.

Now we know more about civilization in Pompeii 1900 years ago than we do about life in America 500 years ago. When the wet ashes that flowed into evry nook and cranny of streets, dwellings, shops, theaters, and hospital dried, they hermetically sealed Pompeii in a remarkable state ofpreservation.

August 24th, 1572—70,000 persons were kiled in a St. Bartholomew's massacre in France because Protestant Henry of Valois, 21, married Catholic Margaret of Navarre, 19!

(This was not the greatest religious massacre: 1,100,000 Jews were put to death by Titus, Roman general in the destruction of Jerusalem.)

August 24th, 1750—Maria Letiza Romolino was born a farmer's daughter. She married at 15, became the mother of Napolean Bonaparte and three other kings and three reigning princesses, and of Lucien, who was an anti-monarchist!

August 24th 1814—Exactly 100 years before Namur, British invaders in the U. S. set an example for German ruthlessness in Belgium. Having placed the capitol city at their mercy in the battle of Bladensburg, they marched into Washington and without provocation wantonly destroyed the unfinished Capitol, the President's residence, are arsenal, many residences, barracks, a tavern and the Potomac bridge. Of the public buildings only the patent office was left undisturbed by the torchbearers.

(The British government thanked their soldiers, caused the Tower of London guns to be fired in honor of the event, and on the death of the commander who ordered the destruction, not long afterwards, ordered a monument erected to his memory in Westminster Abbey!

MUSIC IN THE AIR

IN NEW YORK and nearby hereafter, when there's music in the air it will be pure music (in the current movie-reform sense of purity) and no thought or suggestion that would cause your grandmother to blush (obs.) will linger in its words. For, to ward off any danger of the extension of the church crusade against indecent movies into the field of radio, a committee of well-known orchestra leaders and radio broadcasters has been formed in Manhattan to ban suggestive songs and titles from the air.

The committee will consist of five men: Richard Himber, who seems to be its spokesman, Rudy Vallee, Guy Lombardo, Paul Whiteman and Abe Lyman, whose names speak for themselves. They will be known as "The Committee of Five for the Betterment of Radio."

The committee is to meet each Friday in the apartment of Mr. Himber, and pass judgment on all the songs published during the week. When a song is found objectionable, in title or lyrics, the publisher will be asked to revise it. If that request is denied, the song will be placed on a list of "banned songs." The list will be mailed once a week to orchestra leaders throughout the country, most of whom have already agreed not to play any banned song.

The move is an astute one and doubtless will save the purveyors of radio music a lot of grief, for one suspects reformers of ever seeking new worlds to conquer and new pleasures to curtail. One wishes it might operate with equal effect against the other ills of radio.

ABODE RENOVATION

Quickly have the banks responded to the federal government's appeal for loans to home owners for making necessary repairs. This part of the national recovery program is a noble experiment which is certain to succeed nobly.

It was not the leaky roof, sagging porch or broken plaster that Uncle Sam was thinking of when he told the bankers that if they would lend money for home repairs he would guarantee all losses up to 20 per cent of the total loans. His motive was to put thousands of members of the building trades back to work, thus helping national recovery on its way.

Loans for repairs will put to a test not only the confidence and patriotism of the bankers but the confidence and courage of the men and women who have come through the worst of the depression with at least a mortgage-hold on their homes. There will be no loans for repairs if either banker or eligible borrower wavers.

Successful administration of the home repair program throughout the land will greatly diminish the work of the emergency relief and the CWA during the coming winter. It is up to every owner of a house to analyze his repair needs, hunt up a helpful banker and put some men to work.

THE END OF THE WORLD

If Mr. Voliva's flat world is going to end on September 10 there are a few things that will have to be attended to right away. Previous prophecies from Mr. Voliva put the Day of Destruction in 1946, and most persons were more-or-less putting off preparing for it from day to day; after all, 1946 is a long way off, and there was plenty of time to attend to everything.

But September 10 is only a matter of days and it looks as though many will have to step lively. For one thing, there's the matter of vacation—that will have to be crowded in somehow before September 10. A man can't miss his last vacation. Then there are two books, a lawnmower and an umbrella to go back to friends and neighbors if the plan is to look the end of the world in the face with any kind of conscience. One of the books has been around since 1926 and it will leave quite a gap in the household, but this is a time for drastic action.

There is, of course, the silver lining: Creditors will have to struggle along as best they can.

Listening to Mr. Voliva's predictions is like taking a chance on one of the great sweepstakes: There is the exciting and even pleasurable sensation of looking forward to a routine-shattered event, with only the faintest apprehension it will ever take place.

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

WHEN TO LIE

I've an idea that man who just went down the street is annoyed with me.

He asked me something that wasn't mine to tell, something that wasn't his business to know. . . . So I lied and he knew I was lying. Because he knew that I knew what he wanted to know. And because he knew I was lying, he therefore knew that I didn't trust him enough to answer his question truthfully. . . . So he's angry with me, but somehow, I don't care. . . . What else could I do?

He wouldn't ask me for money, because he has money in his pocket now. He wouldn't ask me for advice, because he feels perfectly capable of taking care of himself. Then why should he ask me to tell himself something that doesn't belong to him and that he has no business to know? . . . You answer that question. I can't.

All I know is that he wouldn't have kept my answer to himself. He was so eager to know that I know what I told him would never have been hermetically sealed in his breast. . . . His pride or his eagerness to impress someone else would have forced him to spread abroad the little tag of information he sought from me. . . . I know about that because I would do the same thing.

We do not ask for confidences with any intention of keeping them. . . . Or even if we do, we are rarely able to keep our good resolutions. Somehow, a secret is never static. It stirs in our brains like a cat in a box. It ferments like new grape juice in a bottle. It bursts out like a jack in the box. It is dynamic bumping over a cobblestone road, hot lava boiling in a crater. The door of the cage opens and the cat leaps out with a scratch and a yowl. The bottle is shaken and the ferment foams all over the place. The dynamite explodes, the lava runs, smoking and flaming, down the mountain side; gabby mouth opens and the secret runs, like Wee Willie Winkle, all through the town, upstairs and down to the cellars and up through the garrets and out through the windows and over the housetops. . . . The spendthrift throws the money he borrowed from you all around, the man who asks you to tell him a secret broadcasts it like a sower in the field. . . . You'll have forgiveness in heaven for the lies you tell those who ask questions they have no right to ask.

GET MORE OUT OF LIFE BY THINKING CLEANLY

What a mean disposition you must have to be continually looking for something to criticise about people.

Why not make more effort to find out and repeat the commendable things about the people whom you know.

Nearly everybody has more good qualities than bad ones.

But you seem never to be impressed with the virtues of others.

Does the fact that you are always looking for evil of some sort mean that you possess so much of it yourself?

Are you trying to paint others black, so that less attention may be focused on your faults.

If you were right yourself, you should gain the most pleasure from alluding to the good things about those whom you know.

It might not be as sensational as the stuff you peddle about other people.

It should have a wholesome affect upon you, however.

As people think, so they are.

Clean, pleasing thoughts cause a beneficial reaction.

PAYMENT IN KIND.

Things might be made easier than they are if the revenue authorities were as broadminded as they are in Hungary. A circus proprietor in Budapest fell into arrears with his income tax payments recently. Did he merely plead inability to pay? Not at all. He forwarded to the collector seven lions and thirteen monkeys.

The collector did not, as might be expected, haughtily decline the delivery. By no means. He applied to the zoological gardens for an estimate, and proceeded to take over the animals, at a valuation of about $1,000.

THE SAFETY-FIRSTER'S END

Screen your open fires in summer; stop, look and listen at every crossing; don't start the kitchen fire with gasoline; never kiss anyone without using an antiseptic gauze screen; avoid all places where crowds collect; don't go into the water without first learning to swim; always walk as if you were expecting to step on a banana skin; stay out of slippery bathtubs; never walk under a ladder, let a black cat cross your path or stay in a room numbered 13; never sit at table with 12 other people; always avoid lightning; never cross a street without waiting for all the traffic to pass; never play with firearms unless they are loaded; never speak to strangers; don't drink queer concoctions; keep your nose out of other people's business—and then maybe you will live to be run over by a drunken joy-rider in one of those new 100-mile autos.

A GENTLE REMINDER

A young railroad conductor and father for the first time stood in the baby ward of the Santa Fe hospital and asked anxiously, "Doctor, are there any marks on my son?"

Looking the new arrival over, the doctor replied, "Yes, sir, there is. He's marked C. O. D."

"Perhaps so," was the response, "but this is about the only chance a pedestrian has nowadays."

Mary Ann, aged six, looked for a long while at the picture of a char woman. Finally she voiced the question in her mind. "Daddy," she queried, "scrub women get a lot of money for their work, don't they?" Wonder and perplexity spread over the child's face as the father explained that char women receive for their services only the most meager pay. "That doesn't seem right," concluded the child. "It seems that they should get a whole lot more money than a woman who works dressed up in an office for they have to wear such dowdy old clothes and have to scrub and scour so hard."

Business Is Looking Up
Dry Goods People Optimistic
Farm Helpers In Dire Need

By LESLIE EICHEL
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Business is looking up.

Says the authoritative National Retail Dry Goods association:

"Despite the havoc of the drouth merchants in the major part of the country view prospects for fall business with ertimates of moderate and in many localities, substantial gains over the fall season last year.

"Gains in dollar sales totals throughout the country in September, October and November may be expected to register an approximate 10 per cent increase over sales in the same months of 1933."

The association bases its figures on a survey it made among 5,000 member department and specialty stores.

And the New York Times reports: "Fall purchasing continued active in the local merchandise market last week and visiting buyers expressed confidence over the outlook.

"Many confirmations or orders were received, indicating that skepticism regarding the firmness of fall prices had been removed."

And here is another indicator: By Sept. 30 there will be hardly an empty apartment in New York and vicinity. Rentals are rising—due however, in all likelihood to high taxes.

* * *

OTHER SIDE

There is a darker side.

Cutting of crops and drouth have deprived thousands of farm helpers of a livlihood this year.

They are the real Forgotten Men (and women and children). Their condition is desperate—and they are being chiefly bruited around.

AN ACCOUNTANT'S VIEW

A New Yorker who has an accounting business in Wall Street takes a gloomy view of the future (for business.)

"I do not know what will occur" he says in substance. "Labor is gaining power and is riding hard. It will gain greater power. Roosevelt is to blame. He stirred up an awful mess with that 7-A clause (providing for compulsory collective bargaining.)

"Will Roosevelt be re-elected? Events within the next 18 months will provide the answer. I do not believe he will be re-elected."

A WORD OF CAUTION

Some papers published largely a review by Maxwell S. Stewart of the Foreign Policy association, indicating world-wide trade pickup.

There were, though, some contra paragraphs which did not receive such wide attention.

For example, Stewart said:

"There are many features of the upturn however, which some observers feel to be basically unsound. It is evident, for example, that little progress has been made toward overcoming the fundamental obstacles to a revival of world trade—such as the paralysis of international finances, exchange instability or elimination of trade barriers—without which recovery must be confined to fairly narrow limits. The attempt of a number of the larger countries to resolve the contradictions of their internal economies by competitive currency depreciation has served to accentuate the disequilibria in the state retaining the gold standard. Critics have pointed out that unless this tendency is checked the sharpening of national rivalries must sooner or later pass over into the military sphere.

"Equally disturbing has been the failure of labor to obtain its share of the fruits of business recovery. Nowhere, save possibly in Germany has employment kept pace with the gains in industrial activity. Real wages and standards of living for the working class appear to have fallen almost universally.

"Agriculture has also suffered a serious loss in purchasing power. It is evident that until consumption can be raised in line with production, there can be no basis for permanent recovery and that such revival as has occurred will not affect the vast majority of the world's population."

SACRIFICE

Strikes at Aluminum Company of America plants in six places are sacrificing wages of approximately $975,000 a month in order to achieve wage adjustments and collective bargaining.

Employers point this out as an "object lesson' to labor.

Labor points it out as an example of the courage it takes to strike "to gain rights."

The real gain will come when there will be adjustment by law without such sacrifices.

TODAY Is The Day

FRIDAY, DAY, AUGUST 24

The World War Day By Day—August 24th, 1914—In the presence of an impending calamity Field Marshall Sir John French displays slowness of action which for so long will characterize and afflict British operations in the war.

The French commander-in-chief Joseph Joffre, has given his ominous news. Namur has fallen and is beyond recovery. Lanzerac's left wing 5th army has been in full retreat for many hours. Intelligence officers have ascertained belatedly that there are in front of the British not two German corps, as Sir John figured, but four, while a fifth is swinging around the Allied left flank.

It now is plain that Van Kluck is rusing forward with 300,000 troops in a desperate end run aimed at getting between the Allied armies and Paris. In front of him, Von Kluck has less than 80,000 British troops. Unless the British can get away and at the same time cover the left flank, Van Kluck can complete his end run and make his touchdown. It is one of the most dramatic hours in the whole war.

Not for many hours after the situation becomes clear does French actually begin his retreat: hours that will nearly bring ruin. And only when he has shoved his lines back so that the right rests on Maubeuge, with the center at Bavay, does he realize completely his desperate situation.

The Germans are endeavoring to drive him in on Maubeuge. That would mean the ultimate capture of his army and the uncovering of the east flank of Joffre's armies.

Alert at last, French continues the retreat of his weary men, who have been on their feet all day, through the night.

Europe's future depends during those nocturnal hours upon how far the legs of the utterly exhausted Tommies can move.

The Austro-German double headed offensive is working like a seesaw. Success in the west is counterbalanced by reverses in the east. There von Hindenburg, newly appointed to command, is struggling to save the German force in East Prussia from disaster: Russians are overrunning Galicia: and the Austrian invasion of Serbia is in collapse. On the 24th the Austrians fall back upon the Drina followed by Serbian cavalry which gleans prisoners, guns and stores.

Great Days—August 24th, 79 A. D.—The last day of Pompeii. An eruption of Vesuvius slowly buried Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae beneath 14 feet of wet ashes and cinders. All but 2,000 of the inhabitants escaped.

Memory of the towns faded, and the ruins were undisturbed for 16½ centuries—until a farmer, digging for water struck statuary.

Now we know more about civilization in Pompeii 1900 years ago than we do about life in America 500 years ago. When the wet ashes that flowed into every nook and cranny of streets, dwellings, shops, theaters, and hospital dried, they hermetically sealed Pompeii in a remarkable state ofpreservation.

August 24th, 1572—70,000 persons were killed in a St. Bartholomew's massacre in France because Protestant Henry of Valois, 21, married Catholic Margaret of Navarre, 19!

August 24th 1814—Exactly 100 years before Namur, British invaders in the U. S. set an example for German ruthlessness in Belgium. Having placed the capitol city at their mercy in the battle of Bladensburg, they marched into Washington and without provocation wantonly destroyed the unfinished Capitol, the President's residence, are arsenal, many residences, barracks, a tavern and the Potomac bridge. Of the public buildings only the patent office was left undisturbed by the torchbearers.

(The British government thanked their soldiers, caused the Tower of London guns to be fired in honor of the event, and on the death of the commander who ordered the destruction, not long afterwards, ordered a monument erected to his memory in Westminster Abbey!

MUSIC IN THE AIR

IN NEW YORK and nearby hereafter, when there's music in the air it will be pure music (in the current movie-reform sense of purity) and no thought or suggestion that would cause your grandmother to blush (obs.) will linger in its words. For, to ward off any danger of the extension of the church crusade against indecent movies into the field of radio, a committee of well-known orchestra leaders and radio broadcasters has been formed in Manhattan to ban suggestive songs and titles from the air.

The committee will consist of five men: Richard Himber, who seems to be its spokesman, Rudy Vallee, Guy Lombardo, Paul Whiteman and Abe Lyman, whose names speak for themselves. They will be known as "The Committee of Five for the Betterment of Radio."

The committee is to meet each Friday in the apartment of Mr. Himber, and pass judgment on all the songs published during the week. When a song is found objectionable, in title or lyrics, the publisher will be asked to revise it. If that request is denied, the song will be placed on a list of "banned songs." The list will be mailed once a week to orchestra leaders throughout the country, most of whom have already agreed not to play any banned song.

The move is an astute one and doubtless will save the purveyors of radio music a lot of grief, for one suspects reformers of ever seeking new worlds to conquer and new pleasures to curtail. One wishes it might operate with equal effect against the other ills of radio.

ABODE RENOVATION

Quickly have the banks responded to the federal government's appeal for loans to home owners for making necessary repairs. This part of the national recovery program is a noble experiment which is certain to succeed nobly.

It was not the leaky roof, sagging porch or broken plaster that Uncle Sam was thinking of when he told the bankers that if they would lend money for home repairs he would guarantee all losses up to 20 per cent of the total loans. His motive was to put thousands of members of the building trades back to work, thus helping national recovery on its way.

Loans for repairs will put to a test not only the confidence and patriotism of the bankers but the confidence and courage of the men and women who have come through the worst of the depression with at least a mortgage-hold on their homes. There will be no loans for repairs if either banker or eligible borrower wavers.

Successful administration of the home repair program throughout the land will greatly diminish the work of the emergency relief and the CWA during the coming winter. It is up to every owner of a house to analyze his repair needs, hunt up a helpful banker and put some men to work.

THE END OF THE WORLD

If Mr. Voliva's flat world is going to end on September 10 there are a few things that will have to be attended to right away. Previous prophecies from Mr. Voliva put the Day of Destruction in 1946, and most persons were more-or-less putting off preparing for it from day to day; after all, 1946 is a long way off, and there was plenty of time to attend to everything.

But September 10 is only a matter of days and it looks as though many will have to step lively. For one thing, there's the matter of vacation—that will have to be crowded in somehow before September 10. A man can't miss his last vacation. Then there are two books, a lawnmower and an umbrella to go back to friends and neighbors if the plan is to look the end of the world in the face with any kind of conscience. One of the books has been around since 1926 and it will leave quite a gap in the household, but this is a time for drastic action.

There is, of course, the silver lining: Creditors will have to struggle along as best they can.

Listening to Mr. Voliva's predictions is like taking a chance on one of the great sweepstakes: There is the exciting and even pleasurable sensation of looking forward to a routine-shattered event, with only the faintest apprehension it will ever take place.

All Of Us

WHEN TO LIE

I've an idea that man who just went down the street is annoyed with me.

He asked me something that wasn't mine to tell, something that wasn't his business to know. . . . So I lied and he knew I was lying. Because he knew that I knew what he wanted to know. And because he knew I was lying, he therefore knew that I didn't trust him enough to answer his question truthfully. . . . So he's angry with me, but somehow, I don't care. . . . What else could I do?

He wouldn't ask me for money, because he has money in his pocket now. He wouldn't ask me for advice, because he feels perfectly capable of taking care of himself. Then why should he ask me to tell himself something that doesn't belong to him and that he has no business to know? . . . You answer that question. I can't.

All I know is that he wouldn't have kept my answer to himself. He was so eager to know that I know what I told him would never have been hermetically sealed in his breast. . . . His pride or his eagerness to impress someone else would have forced him to spread abroad the ltitle tag of information he sought from me. . . . I know about that because I would do the same thing.

We do not ask for confidences with any intention of keeping them. . . . Or even if we do, we are rarely able to keep our good resolutions. Somehow, a secret is never static. It stirs in our brains like a cat in a box. It ferments like new grape juice in a bottle. It bursts out like a jack in the box. It is dynamic bumping over a cobblestone road, hot lava boiling in a crater. The door of the cage opens and the cat leaps out with a scratch and a yowl. The bottle is shaken and the ferment foams all over the place. The dynamite explodes, the lava runs, smoking and flaming, down the mountain side; gabby mouth opens and the secret runs, like Wee Willie Winkle, all through the town, upstairs and down to the cellars and up through the garrets and out through the windows and over the housetops. . . . The spendthrift throws the money he borrowed from you all around, the man who asks you to tell him a secret broadcasts it like a sower in the field. . . . You'll have forgiveness in heaven for the lies you tell those who ask questions they have no right to ask.

GET MORE OUT OF LIFE BY THINKING CLEANLY

What a mean disposition you must have to be continually looking for something to criticise about people.

Why not make more effort to find out and repeat the commendable things about the people whom you know.

Nearly everybody has more good qualities than bad ones.

But you seem never to be impressed with the virtues of others.

Does the fact that you are always looking for evil of some sort mean that you possess so much of it yourself?

Are you trying to paint others black, so that less attention may be focused on your faults.

If you were right yourself, you should gain the most pleasure from alluding to the good things about those whom you know.

It might not be as sensational as the stuff you peddle about other people.

It should have a wholesome affect upon you, however.

As people think, so they are.

Clean, pleasing thoughts cause a beneficial reaction.

PAYMENT IN KIND.

Things might be made easier than they are if the revenue authorities were as broadminded as they are in Hungary. A circus proprietor in Budapest fell into arrears with his income tax payments recently. Did he merely plead inability to pay? Not at all. He forwarded to the collector seven lions and thirteen monkeys.

The collector did not, as might be expected, haughtily decline the delivery. By no means. He applied to the zoological gardens for an estimate, and proceeded to take over the animals, at a valuation of about $1,000.

PERMANENT CHARMS

Were I to live a thousand years
Of these glad things I'd never tire:
Evening and friends about my fire;
Tulips when first the spring appears;
Old books to comfort and inspire.

Had I a dozen lives to live
Sunrise and sunset still would be
Splendors that I should thrill to see;
Still I should rapt attention give
To wren and cardinal minstrelsy.

Against the weight of time and care
These things their charm forever hold:
Roses and phlox and marigold;
The rapture children's faces wear;
Sun, moon and stars and friendships old.

It was an indignant fellow who called up the newspaper office. He was trembling with anger so he could hardly hold the receiver.

Business Is Looking Up
Dry Goods People Optimistic
Farm Helpers In Dire Need

By LESLIE EICHEL
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Business is looking up.

Says the authoritative National Retail Dry Goods association:

"Despite the havoc of the drouth merchants in the major part of the country view prospects for fall business with estimates of moderate and in many localities, substantial gains over the fall season last year.

"Gains in dollar sales totals throughout the country in September, October and November may be expected to register an approximate 10 per cent increase over sales in the same months of 1933."

The association bases its figures on a survey it made among 5,000 member department and specialty stores.

And the New York Times reports: "Fall purchasing continued active in the local merchandise market last week and visiting buyers expressed confidence over the outlook.

"Many confirmations or orders were received, indicating that skepticism regarding the firmness of fall prices had been removed."

And here is another indicator: By Sept. 30 there will be hardly an empty apartment in New York and vicinity. Rentals are rising—due however, in all likelihood to high taxes.

* * *

OTHER SIDE

There is a darker side.

Cutting of crops and drouth have deprived thousands of farm helpers of a livlihood this year.

They are the real Forgotten Men (and women and children). Their condition is desperate—and they are being chiefly bruited around.

AN ACCOUNTANT'S VIEW

A New Yorker who has an accounting business in Wall Street takes a gloomy view of the future (for business.)

"I do not know what will occur" he says in substance. "Labor is gaining power and is riding hard. It will gain greater power. Roosevelt is to blame. He stirred up an awful mess with that 7-A clause (providing for compulsory collective bargaining.)

"Will Roosevelt be re-elected? Events within the next 18 months will provide the answer. I do not believe he will be re-elected."

A WORD OF CAUTION

Some papers published largely a review by Maxwell S. Stewart of the Foreign Policy association, indicating world-wide trade pickup.

There were, though, some contra paragraphs which did not receive such wide attention.

For example, Stewart said:

"There are many features of the upturn however, which some observers feel to be basically unsound. It is evident, for example, that little progress has been made toward overcoming the fundamental obstacles to a revival of world trade—such as the paralysis of international finances, exchange instability or elimination of trade barriers—without which recovery must be confined to fairly narrow limits. The attempt of a number of the larger countries to resolve the contradictions of their internal economies by competitive currency depreciation has served to accentuate the disequilibria in the state retaining the gold standard. Critics have pointed out that unless this tendency is checked the sharpening of national rivalries must sooner or later pass over into the military sphere..

"Equally disturbing has been the failure of labor to obtain its share of the fruits of business recovery. Nowhere, save possibly in Germany has employment kept pace with the gains in industrial activity. Real wages and standards of living for the working class appear to have fallen almost universally.

"Agriculture has also suffered a serious loss in purchasing power. It is evident that until consumption can be raised in line with production, there can be no basis for permenent recovery and that such revival as has occurred will not affect the vast majority of the world's population."

SACRIFICE

Strikes at Aluminum Company of America plants in six places are sacrificing wages of approximately $975,000 a month in order to achieve wage adjustments and collective bargaining.

Employers point this out as an "object lesson' to labor.

Labor points it out as an example of the courage it takes to strike "to gain rights."

The real gain will come when there will be adjustment by law without such sacrifices.

TODAY Is The Day

By CLARK KINNAIRD Copyright 1934 Central Press

FRIDAY, DAY, AUGUST 24

The World War Day By Day—August 24th, 1914—In the presence of an impending calamity Field Marshall Sir John French displays slowness of action which for so long will characterize and afflict British operations in the war.

The French commander-in-chief Joseph Joffre, has given his ominous news. Namur has fallen and is beyond recovery. Lanzerac's left wing 5th army has been in full retreat for many hours. Intelligence officers have ascertained belatedly that there are in front of the British not two German corps, as Sir John figured, but four, while a fifth is swinging around the Allied left flank.

It now is plain that Van Kluck is rusing forward with 300,000 troops in a desperate end run aimed at getting between the Allied armies and Paris. In front of him, Von Kluck has less than 80,000 British troops. Unless the British can get away and at the some time cover the left flank, Van Kluck can complete his end run and make his touchdown. It is one of the most dramatic hours in the whole war.

Not for many hours after the situation becomes clear does French actually begin his retreat: hours that will nearly bring ruin. And only when he has shoved his lines back so that the right rests on Maubeuge, with the center at Bavay, does he realize completely his desperate situation.

The Germans are endeavoring to drive him in on Maubeuge. That would mean the ultimate capture of his army and the uncovering of the east flank of Joffre's armies.

Alert at last, French continues the retreat of his weary men, who have been on their feet all day, through the night.

Europe's future depends during those nocturnal hours upon how far the legs of the utterly exhausted Tommies can move.

The Austro-German double headed offensive is working like a see-saw. Success in the west is counterbalanced by reverses in the east. There von Hindenburg, newly appointed to command, is struggling to save the German force in East Prussia from disaster: Russians are overrunning Galicia: and the Austrian invasion of Serbia is in collapse. On the 24th the Austrians fall back upon the Drina followed by Serbian cavalry which gleans prisoners, guns and stores.

Great Days—August 24th, 79 A. D.—The last day of Pompeii. An eruption of Vesuvius slowly buried Pompeii, Herculaneum and Stabiae beneath 14 feet of wet ashes and cinders. All but 2,000 of the inhabitants escaped.

Memory of the towns faded, and the ruins were undisturbed for 16½ centuries—until a farmer, digging for water struck statuary.

Now we know more about civilization in Pompeii 1900 years ago than we do about life in America 500 years ago. When the wet ashes that flowed into evry nook and cranny of streets, dwellings, shops, theaters, and hospital dried, they hermetically sealed Pompeii in a remarkable state ofpreservation.

(First and only completely restored building found by the writer on a visit: a house of ill fame, circa 79 A. D.)

August 24th, 1572—70,000 persons were killed in a St. Bartholomew's massacre in France because Protestant Henry of Valois, 21, married Catholic Margaret of Navarre, 19!

(This was not the greatest religious massacre: 1,100,000 Jews were put to death by Titus, Roman general in the destruction of Jerusalem.)

August 24th, 1750—Maria Letiza Romolino was born a farmer's daughter. She married at 15, became the mother of Napolean Bonaparte and three other kings and three reigning princesses, and of Lucien, who was an anti-monarchist!

* * *

August 24th 1814—Exactly 100 years before Namur, British invaders in the U. S. set an example for German ruthlessness in Belgium. Having placed the capitol city at their mercy in the battle of Bladensburg, they marched into Washington and without provocation wantonly destroyed the unfinished Capitol, the President's residence, are arsenal, many residences, barracks, a tavern and the Potomac bridge. Of the public buildings only the patent office was left undisturbed by the torchbearers.

(The British government thanked their soldiers, caused the Tower of London guns to be fired in honor of the event, and on the death of the commander who ordered the destruction, not long afterwards, ordered a monument erected to his memory in Westminster Abbey!

Weingartner Class

Thursday evening Geo. T. Weingartner entertained the members of his Sunday school class of the Epworth Methodist church at a corn roast at his home on the Butler road.

Old Jupiter Pluvius prevented the group from enjoying dinner in the open, so the tables were arranged in the large garage with lovely flowers from the Weingartner garden, adorning the table, which was laid for 45.

The delicious "roasting ears" served, also came from the Weingartner garden and supplemented with the good things that go with corn, were greatly enjoyed by the group.

Kathleen Norris' First Story Was Sold After 28 Rejections

(International News Service)

SAN JOSE, Cal.—"After my first story had been refused 28 times, on the 29th trip east it was accepted, and by a magazine which had turned it down twice previously," said Kathleen Norris, noted writer, whose 60th novel is almost ready for publication today.

"Discouraged? Yes, often," she said. "I wanted most desperately to write but since I had to eat I worked as librarian, secretary, anything, until after the earthquake in San Francisco. Then I began to write sketches for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin and later for the Examiner.

"My first novel developed from a tragedy. I submitted a short story, "Mother", in a magazine contest and didn't even receive mention. I would have lost a lost of money if I had, for a publishing firm, suggested that I evolve it into a novelette, and it was published in that form in 1910."

Mrs. Norris' novel which is approaching completion, will probably be called "A Woman in Love". She says that her only advice to young authors is to write what they would like to read. She insists that since she is interested in kitchens and ginger bread, they always appear somewhere in her fiction.

Besides turning out nearly two novels a year, Mrs. Norris has found time to raise five stalwart youngsters, one of them her own and four of them hers by adoption. It is her opinion that a vital and interesting woman is a better mother, even if she gives less time to the job, than a devoted but drab person, who wraps her life about that of her children.

$60,000 FOR GRAVE

(International News Service)

DAVENPORT, Ia.—Such was her dread that after she died her body might be removed from the grave she had selected beside that of her husband, that Mrs. Eva Gardner made a will establishing a $60,000 trust fund to combat any moves to separate the two corpses. Friends of the dead woman say they know of no reason why Mrs. Gardner should have feared any such separation.

STATE'S LIQUOR PROFIT

HELENA, Mont.—Montana's state owned liquors dispensaries are not proving the "gold mine" their sponsors hoped for. They are making a profit however. Kathleen Norris' First Story Was Sold After 28 Rejections

(International News Service)

SAN JOSE, Cal.—"After my first story had been refused 28 times, on the 29th trip east it was accepted, and by a magazine which had turned it down twice previously," said Kathleen Norris, noted writer, whose 60th novel is almost ready for publication today.

"Discouraged? Yes, often," she said. "I wanted most desperately to write but since I had to eat I worked as librarian, secretary, anything, until after the earthquake in San Francisco. Then I began to write sketches for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin and later for the Examiner.

"My first novel developed from a tragedy. I submitted a short story, "Mother", in a magazine contest and didn't even receive mention. I would have lost a lost of money if I had, for a publishing firm, suggested that I evolve it into a novelette, and it was published in that form in 1910."

Mrs. Norris' novel which is approaching completion, will probably be called "A Woman in Love". She says that her only advice to young authors is to write what they would like to read. She insists that since she is interested in kitchens and ginger bread, they always appear somewhere in her fiction.

Besides turning out nearly two novels a year, Mrs. Norris has found time to raise five stalwart youngsters, one of them her own and four of them hers by adoption. It is her opinion that a vital and interesting woman is a better mother, even if she gives less time to the job, than a devoted but drab person, who wraps her life about that of her children.

Uncle Sam Pays Huge Rent Bill In Washington

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With an annual rent bill of nearly $1,500,000 Uncle Sam is rapidly becoming one of the best-paying tenants Washington real estate firms have.

Despite the huge outlay for public buildings just before the New Deal was dealt, an outlay that includes the monumental Commerce Department, pride of former President Hoover, and covers several city blocks, the new administration is cramped for space.

Besides this, and other huge buildings, among the largest office structures in the country, the Government pays rent for space in 49 private buildings, has purchased another large office building and is still branching out.

To cut down this tremendous expenditure the Public Works Administration has allocated $10,000,000 for still a new Federal office building in Washington. Even this new building will not solve the problem, it was admitted. The new building will be slightly smaller than the record-breaking Commerce edifice, it was said, but would still be a large place.

Children's Ages Total 653 Years

(International News Service)

NORTH POINT, Pa., Aug. 24.—Nine living sons and daughters of the late Martin Reitz and his wife may well lay claim to Pennsylvania's longevity record as their combined ages total 563 years—an average of 72.

Benjamin, eldest, is 83; Mrs. Anna Cheatam, 80; Mrs. Mary C. Neale, 78; Mrs. Nancy E. Drummond, 75; James Lee, 73; Mrs. Alice Neale, 70; William, 68; Charles, 64, and Isaac Clarke, 62.

Five of them reside near the old Reitz homestead here—William lives in Butler, Mrs. Mary Neale in Indiana, Lee and Mrs. Alice Neale in Trade City.

The father, Martin, who plied his trade as a raftsman over Mahoning creek into Allegheny river and on to Pittsburgh, died at 90. His wife lived to be 91. The latter's father purchased at $1 an acre a large tract of land that started North Point settlement. Most of the residents there today are his descendants.

Mystery Explained At Pymatuning Dam

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 24.—Mysterious floating islands which shift their positions from day to day and have baffled visitors to the Pymatuning reservoir have been explained by research specialists.

Gasses within the debris of which the islands, one of which contains several acres, consists, are responsible for their presence in the reservoir. Lifted by the gas, the formations rise from the floor of the recently formed lake and rest on the surface.

Hosea Preaches God's Love

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

John 3:16—"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The international uniform lesson on the above topic for Aug. 26 is Hosea, chapters 6, 11 and 14, especially 11:1-4; 8-9; 14:4-9, the Golden Text being John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life." To give our readers the gist of the prophecy of Hosea we quote herewith the chapter on this prophet from "The Gist of the Bible Book by Book" by Dr. Alvin E. Bell, Toledo, O.)

Hosea, whose prophecy is the first and longest of the group we call "Minor Prophets", was a contemporary of Amos in Israel and of Isaiah and Micah in Judah. The period of his prophecy, 785 to 725 B. C., was one of great prosperity under King Jereboam II, but one of great corruption of morals and shameful political conditions, four of the seven kings of his time having been murdered by those who succeeded them.

The Broken-Hearted Prophet

No prophet was ever more a part of his message than Hosea. His unhappy domestic life with his unfaithful wife, Gomer, was not only a preparation for his ministry, but a parable to the nation of its spiritual adultery in forsaking Jehovah and resorting to the worship of false gods. The broken-hearted prophet loved Gomer in spite of her persistent sin and life of shame, and even after her lovers abandoned her to be sold, Hosea found her in the slave market and purchased her and forgave her all and took her again as the wife of his love. Thus through his own grief God's messenger was prepared to understand the grief of Jehovah over the spiritual adultery of his people, and to know the infinite love that God made willing to follow after Israel in his hope of winning them back to love and faithfulness.

The Keynote of Hosea

The keynote of the message is struck in 4:1, "Jehovah hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land." For this condition Hosea is unsparing in his denunciation of kings, priests and people. Then as now it was a case of "like people, like priest". The priests even encouraged sin that they might profit more from the offerings of the people. Such mockery was an abomination to God, for "he desired mercy and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings".

Hosea, by his clear prophecy of the Assyrian captivity as God's punishment for its idolotry, attempted to do for Israel what Jeremiah later attempted to do for the southern kingdom of Judah. But his warnings fell upon deaf ears, and the nation rushed on to its destruction within five years from the time Hosea's voice was stilled.

"God So Loved"

Truly, Ephraim was joined to his idols"; he was "a cake not turned", and yet God loved these people as passionately as Hosea loved his unworthy and unfaithful Gomer. And when its destruction seemed inevitable, the heart of God sobbed out, "How shall I give thee up, Ephriam? How shall I deliver thee, Israel? Mine heart is turned within me, my compassions are kindled together." "Oh, Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself but in me is thine help." The book closes with a final appeal to the prodigal nation and a promise of mercy. "Oh, Israel, return unto the Lord thy God", and "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely". This God will do for every sinner who repents and turns to His Son Jesus Christ whose childhood in exile in Egypt is prophesied by Hosea.

Thayer Has Prize Gladiola Garden, Big Sunflower

C. C. Thayer of Wallace avenue, who for years has specialized in the production of gladiola, and is a recognized expert, has an unusually pretty display of his favorite flower on his lots on Hazelcroft avenue. The collection embraces between 4000 and 5000 plants, and is remarkable for its dazzling display of colors. Mr. Thayer has a number of new varieties which he has propagated and which have won prizes at gladiola shows. Mr. Thayer is also entitled to a front seat in the sunflower class. He has a sunflower at his home on Wallace avenue which is 15½ feet high and still growing. Mr. Thayer spent the greater part of his life as an architect of buildings, but in his latter days he spends his leisure hours in helping nature to design flowers.

Explore Mounds In Mercer County

State Archeologists Are Studying Sites Of Indian Villages

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 24—A party of five archeologists of the department of public instruction of Pennsylvania under the supervision of the state historical society are making explorations in western Pennsylvania for relics of the age of the mound builders and the Indians. They are working now at Big Bend located five miles from here on the Shenango river.

The party includes eminent scientists of the state and the party is under the leadership of Dr. A. J. Cadzow.

They have just completed their work at Linesville in the Pymatuning Dam vicinity where they found earth circles 300 feet in diameter evidently built by the mound builders.

Flint arrow heads, wampum and other relics of the Indian tribes in the Big Bend locality have already been brought to light. They are expected to spend two weeks in this locality on their explorations which have already been of the most valuable character.

Some More Facts About Old Hospital

Bid Of William Barnett Within $15 Of Architect's Estimate Of Cost

Here is some more data with reference to the old Shenango Valley hospital which is about to be razed. When it was decided to erect a hospital and architects were asked to submit plans, it was specified that the hospital was to cost not over $15,000. Only one architect, C. C. Thayer, kept his estimate within those figures. When he submitted his plan it met with the approval of the board.

Bids were asked and the late William Barnett was lowest bidder and secured the contract. There was only $15 between his bid and Architect Thayer's estimate. Work was started in 1892, according to Mr. Thayer's records. The fire which gutted the original building was supposed to have started through spontaneous combustion of rags which painters had been using.

The first new wing to the original hospital was built in 1894 and cost around $26,000; the second was built in 1908 and cost about $24,478. The original building was heated with hot air. When the first addition was built steam heat was substituted, the above figures do not include the heating system.

Governor Robert Pattison was present when the hospital was dedicated on April 12th, 1894.

Wonder What They Do With The Smoke?

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—Burning coal instead of gasoline, a steam-driven truck has appeared on Pittsburgh's streets.

The truck, similar to hundreds now in use in England, is stoked automatically and is said to burn about four pounds of coal or five pounds of coke a mile. Although not geared for high speed, it has a cruising rate of 35 miles an hour and a top speed of 50 miles an hour.

Enough fuel is carried in the bunker for a trip of 200 miles and the engine develops enough power to pull a load of about 14 tons.

Want Winery But Don't Have Cash

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 24.—Lacking capital to meet the high initial expenditure the project would call for, Ohio agriculturists who had planned construction of one or more wineries in the Erie county grape belt have announced they have given up the project.

The announcement came as a distinct disappointment to local farmers who saw in the proposal an opportunity to market grape crops to a much greater advantage than had been afforded in years.

The promoters, according to Paul Crossman, county farm agent, came to the conclusion following an extensive survey of the Erie county district. Farmers, as a result, must continue to dispose of their products to fruit juice companies.

Uncle Sam Pays Huge Rent Bill In Washington

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON—With an annual rent bill of nearly $1,500,000 Uncle Sam is rapidly becoming one of the best-paying tenants Washington real estate firms have.

Despite the huge outlay for public buildings just before the New Deal was dealt, an outlay that includes the monumental Commerce Department, pride of former President Hoover, and covers several city blocks, the new administration is cramped for space.

Besides this, and other huge buildings, among the largest office structures in the country, the Government pays rent for space in 40 private buildings, has purchased another large office building and is still branching out.

To cut down this tremendous expenditure the Public Works Administration has allocated $10,000,000 for still a new Federal office building in Washington. Even this new building will not solve the problem, it was admitted. The new building will be slightly smaller than the record-breaking Commerce edifice, it was said, but would still be a large place.

NORTH POINT, Pa., Aug. 24.—Nine living sons and daughters of the late Martin Reitz and his wife may well lay claim to Pennsylvania's longevity record as their combined ages total 563 years—an average of 72.

Five of them reside near the old Reitz homestead here—William lives in Butler, Mrs. Mary Neale in Indiana, Lee and Mrs. Alice Neale in Trade City.

The father, Martin, who piled his trade as a raftsman over Mahoning creek into Allegheny river and on to Pittsburgh, died at 90. His wife lived to be 91. The latter's father purchased at $1 an acre a large tract of land that started North Point settlement. Most of the residents there today are his descendants.

Five of them reside near the old Reitz homestead here—William lives in Butler, Mrs. Mary Neale in Indiana, Lee and Mrs. Alice Neale in Trade City.

The father, Martin, who plied his trade as a raftsman over Mahoning creek into Allegheny river and on to Pittsburgh, died at 90. His wife lived to be 91. The latter's father purchased at $1 an acre a large tract of land that started North Point settlement. Most of the residents there today are his descendants.

Mystery Explained At Pymatuning Dam

(International News Service)

SHARON, Pa., Aug. 24.—Mysterious floating islands which shift their positions from day to day and have baffled visitors to the Pymatuning reservoir have been explained by research specialists.

Gasses within the debris of which the islands, one of which contains several acres, consists, are responsible for their presence in the reservoir. Lifted by the gas, the formations rise from the floor of the recently formed lake and rest on the surface.

Hosea Preaches God's Love

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

John 3:16—"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The international uniform lesson on the above topic for Aug. 26 is Hosea, chapters 6, 11 and 14, especially 11:1-4; 8-9; 14:4-9, the Golden Text being John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life." To give our readers the gist of the prophecy of Hosea we quote herewith the chapter on this prophet from "The Gist of the Bible Book by Book" by Dr. Alvin E. Bell, Toledo, O.)

Hosea, whose prophecy is the first and longest of the group we call "Minor Prophets", was a contemporary of Amos in Israel and of Isaiah and Micah in Judah. The period of his prophecy, 785 to 725 B. C., was one of great prosperity under King Jereboam II, but one of great corruption of morals and shameful political conditions, four of the seven kings of his time having been murdered by those who succeeded them.

The Broken-Hearted Prophet

No prophet was ever more a part of his message than Hosea. His unhappy domestic life with his unfaithful wife, Gomer, was not only a preparation for his ministry, but a parable to the nation of its spiritual adultery in forsaking Jehovah and resorting to the worship of false gods. The broken-hearted prophet loved Gomer in spite of her persistent sin and life of shame, and even after her lovers abandoned her to be sold, Hosea found her in the slave market and purchased her and forgave her all and took her again as the wife of his love. Thus through his own grief God's messenger was prepared to understand the grief of Jehovah over the spiritual adultery of his people, and to know the infinite love that God made willing to follow after Israel in his hope of winning them back to love and faithfulness.

The Keynote of Hosea

The keynote of the message is struck in 4:1, "Jehovah hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land, because there is no truth, nor mercy, nor knowledge of God in the land." For this condition Hosea is unsparing in his denunciation of kings, priests and people. Then as now it was a case of "like people, like priest". The priests even encouraged sin that they might profit more from the offerings of the people. Such mockery was an abomination to God, for "he desired mercy and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings".

Hosea, by his clear prophecy of the Assyrian captivity as God's punishment for its idolotry, attempted to do for Israel what Jeremiah later attempted to do for the southern kingdom of Judah. But his warnings fell upon deaf ears, and the nation rushed on to its destruction within five years from the time Hosea's voice was stilled.

"God So Loved"

Truly, Ephraim was joined to his idols"; he was "a cake not turned", and yet God loved these people as passionately as Hosea loved his unworthy and unfaithful Gomer. And when its destruction seemed inevitable, the heart of God sobbed out, "How shall I give thee up, Ephriam? How shall I deliver thee, Israel? Mine heart is turned within me, my compassions are kindled together." "Oh, Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself but in me is thine help." The book closes with a final appeal to the prodigal nation and a promise of mercy. "Oh, Israel, return unto the Lord thy God", and "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely". This God will do for every sinner who repents and turns to His Son Jesus Christ whose childhood in exile in Egypt is prophesied by Hosea.

Thayer Has Prize Gladiola Garden, Big Sunflower

C. C. Thayer of Wallace avenue, who for years has specialized in the production of gladiola, and is a recognized expert, has an unusually pretty display of his favorite flower on his lots on Hazelcroft avenue. The collection embraces between 4000 and 5000 plants, and is remarkable for its dazzling display of colors. Mr. Thayer has a number of new varieties which he has propagated and which have won prizes at gladiola shows. Mr. Thayer is also entitled to a front seat in the sunflower class. He has a sunflower at his home on Wallace avenue which is 15½ feet high and still growing. Mr. Thayer spent the greater part of his life as an architect of buildings, but in his latter days he spends his leisure hours in helping nature to design flowers.

Explore Mounds In Mercer County

State Archeologists Are Studying Sites Of Indian Villages

MERCER, Pa., Aug. 24—A party of five archeologists of the department of public instruction of Pennsylvania under the supervision of the state historical society are making explorations in western Pennsylvania for relics of the age of the mound builders and the Indians. They are working now at Big Bend located five miles from here on the Shenango river.

The party includes eminent scientists of the state and the party is under the leadership of Dr. A. J. Cadzow.

They have just completed their work at Linesville in the Pymatuning Dam vicinity where they found earth circles 300 feet in diameter evidently built by the mound builders.

Flint arrow heads, wampum and other relics of the Indian tribes in the Big Bend locality have already been brought to light. They are expected to spend two weeks in this locality on their explorations which have already been of the most valuable character.

Some More Facts About Old Hospital

Bid Of William Barnett Within $15 Of Architect's Estimate Of Cost

Here is some more data with reference to the old Shenango Valley hospital which is about to be razed. When it was decided to erect a hospital and architects were asked to submit plans, it was specified that the hospital was to cost not over $15,000. Only one architect, C. C. Thayer, kept his estimate within those figures. When he submitted his plan it met with the approval of the board.

Bids were asked and the late William Barnett was lowest bidder and secured the contract. There was only $15 between his bid and Architect Thayer's estimate. Work was started in 1892, according to Mr. Thayer's records. The fire which gutted the original building was supposed to have started through spontaneous combustion of rags which painters had been using.

The first new wing to the original hospital was built in 1894 and cost around $26,000; the second was built in 1908 and cost about $24,478. The original building was heated with hot air. When the first addition was built steam heat was substituted, the above figures do not include the heating system.

Governor Robert Pattison was present when the hospital was dedicated on April 12th, 1894.

Wonder What They Do With The Smoke?

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 24.—Burning coal instead of gasoline, a steam-driven truck has appeared on Pittsburgh's streets.

The truck, similar to hundreds now in use in England, is stoked automatically and is said to burn about four pounds of coal or five pounds of coke a mile. Although not geared for high speed, it has a cruising rate of 35 miles an hour and a top speed of 50 miles an hour.

Enough fuel is carried in the bunker for a trip of 200 miles and the engine develops enough power to pull a load of about 14 tons.

Want Winery But Don't Have Cash

(International News Service)

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 24.—Lacking capital to meet the high initial expenditure the project would call for, Ohio agriculturists who had planned construction of one or more wineries in the Erie county grape belt have announced they have given up the project.

The announcement came as a distinct disappointment to local farmers who saw in the proposal an opportunity to market grape crops to a much greater advantage than had been afforded in years.

The promoters, according to Paul Crossman, county farm agent, came to the conclusion following an extensive survey of the Erie county district. Farmers, as a result, must continue to dispose of their products to fruit juice companies.

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

FRUIT GROWERS TOUR

A tour of fruit growers in this district has been arranged for Thursday, August 30th. Fruit men from Venango, Mercer, and Lawrence Counties will make up this group.

The persons making the trip will gather at the farm of John Hughes north of New Wilmington, in Mercer County at 8:30 a. m., August 30th. At this farm there will be the opportunity of seeing clean culture versus sod in the apple orchard as well as other management problems.

The group will go from there to the Cummings Orchard at New Wilmington where they will have the privilege of inspecting a bearing orchard also a satisfactory farm storage cellar. From the Cummings orchard the group will go to the Treesdale Orchard Farms near Butler, formerly the Eisler Orchard, where the remainder of the day will be spent. At this stop the tourists will have the privilege of inspecting the orchard, packing equipment and packing rooms, also some small fruits and a small ever-green nursery.

A stop will be made enroute for a basket picnic lunch.

PLANS FOR RURAL DRAMA TOURNAMENT BEING LAUNCHED

Lawrence County is one of 42 in Pennsylvania where preparations are already under way among the rural organizations to hold the fifth annual one-act play tournament. The contest, which is open to adult rural groups, will be held in November. A program of eliminations in counties, then in districts, selects 18 play groups which are entitled to appear in the state finals in January.

A county committee has been named consisting of the following: Mrs. K. K. McCreary, Volant, Pa., R. No. 3, Chairman; Mrs. Fred Seely, New Castle, Pa., R. D. No. 3, Secretary; Miss Frances Fullerton, H. A. Leslie, and Earl Friday.

The secretary is notifying all eligible organizations such as rural churches, granges, fraternities, clubs, farm women's groups, and dramatic and literary societies of the plan of the tournament and inviting local leader to request a copy of the rules and a list of approved plays.

Some of the performances that have been given in former contests have been of a very high caliber and illustrate that there is a wealth of talent for self-expression and fine entertainment within our rural communities. Making the most of its own human resources will always be a worthy aim of any community.

This tournament is one of the features of the rural life project of the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association. Local leaders desiring additional information are referred to the office of the association at New Castle, or to the secretary of the committee, whose name and address appears in this article.

DANGER OF LATE BLIGHT FACES POTATO GROWERS

Danger signs of late blight attacking the late potato crop of Pennsylvania in areas where there has been continuous wet weather or heavy precipitation during recent weeks are seen by L. T. Denniston, extension potato disease specialist of the Pennsylvania State College.

Denniston explains that late blight infects and spreads most rapidly during wet, cloudy weather. Unsprayed or poorly sprayed fields are most susceptible to infection since there is little or no protection on the newly developed and tender foliage. Once infection has occurred the spread of the disease is quite rapid, if moisture and temperature conditions are favorable.

Evidence of the injury to the potato crop from late blight is presented in two ways, according to Denniston. First, the premature dying of the foliage results in lower yields; and second, tuber infection is followed by tuber rot, either in the field before harvest or in storage after harvest.

In most it is too late to prevent the loss from late blight when infection has hit the crop. The only safe and satisfactory means of control is that of prevention. Denniston says. He reports that Pennsylvania commercial potato growers practice timely spraying to prevent or control the disease. Since August and September are the two critical months for late blight, potato growers throughout the state are urged to make a special effort to do a thorough job of spraying, especially if conditions favor the development and spread of the disease. The most effective spray is 8-8-100 home-made bordeaux mixture.

Fishermen Hail Approach Of Fall When Water Cools

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 24.—The fisherman who knows his fish hails the coming of autumn as the finest time of the year for his sport, according to members of the Fish commission. Cooling of the water in September and October invariably is attended by an increase in feeding activities on the part of popular warm water game fishes, the pickerel, wall-eyed pike or Susquehanna salmon, smallmouth and largemouth bass. For instance the largest wall-eyed pike reported from the Upper Delaware river last season, a fish weighing 11¾ pounds, was caught in October. Live bait fishing and plug casting are generally rewarded by heavy catches.

During mid-summer, particularly August, catches of practically all game fish usually are light. This year owing to the low water and unusually high temperature in most streams game fish are believed to have done little feeding, seeking deep water areas and responding but slightly to any bait. Another handicap for many fishermen has been the growth of weeds in some of the favorite bass streams. Generally in early autumn, much of this grass loosens and is washed away, affording better fishing conditions. While in the streams, however, it affords ideal protection for the young of game fish and serves as a feeding ground for thousands of minnows and other forage fish.

At the approach of winter, has particularly feed ravenously, preparatory to entering a state of semi-hibernation. Pickerel and wall-eyed pike also go on a feeding rampage. Many fishermen are expected to find great sport this autumn on their favorite waters.

Sport fans of the community are breathless with anticipation as they await the titular go to be played on next Friday night at the local field when the old timers of the community will meet in mighty conflict with the local A. FRUIT GROWERS TOUR

A tour of fruit growers in this district has been arranged for Thursday, August 30th. Fruit men from Venango, Mercer, and Lawrence Counties will make up this group.

The persons making the trip will gather at the farm of John Hughes north of New Wilmington, in Mercer County at 8:30 a. m., August 30th. At this farm there will be the opportunity of seeing clean culture versus sod in the apple orchard as well as other management problems.

The group will go from there to the Cummings Orchard at New Wilmington where they will have the privilege of inspecting a bearing orchard also a satisfactory farm storage cellar. From the Cummings orchard the group will go to the Treesdale Orchard Farms near Butler, formerly the Eisler Orchard, where the remainder of the day will be spent. At this stop the tourists will have the privilege of inspecting the orchard, packing equipment and packing rooms, also some small fruits and a small ever-green nursery.

A stop will be made enroute for a basket picnic lunch.

PLANS FOR RURAL DRAMA TOURNAMENT BEING LAUNCHED

Lawrence County is one of 42 in Pennsylvania where preparations are already under way among the rural organizations to hold the fifth annual one-act play tournament. The contest, which is open to adult rural groups, will be held in November. A program of eliminations in counties, then in districts, selects 18 play groups which are entitled to appear in the state finals in January.

A county committee has been named consisting of the following: Mrs. K. K. McCreary, Volant, Pa., R. No. 3, Chairman; Mrs. Fred Seely, New Castle, Pa., R. D. No. 3, Secretary; Miss Frances Fullerton, H. A. Leslie, and Earl Friday.

The secretary is notifying all eligible organizations such as rural churches, granges, fraternities, clubs, farm women's groups, and dramatic and literary societies of the plan of the tournament and inviting local leader to request a copy of the rules and a list of approved plays.

Some of the performances that have been given in former contests have been of a very high caliber and illustrate that there is a wealth of talent for self-expression and fine entertainment within our rural communities. Making the most of its own human resources will always be a worthy aim of any community.

This tournament is one of the features of the rural life project of the Lawrence County Agricultural Extension Association. Local leaders desiring additional information are referred to the office of the association at New Castle, or to the secretary of the committee, whose name and address appears in this article.

DANGER OF LATE BLIGHT FACES POTATO GROWERS

Danger signs of late blight attacking the late potato crop of Pennsylvania in areas where there has been continuous wet weather or heavy precipitation during recent weeks are seen by L. T. Denniston, extension potato disease specialist of the Pennsylvania State College.

Denniston explains that late blight infects and spreads most rapidly during wet, cloudy weather. Unsprayed or poorly sprayed fields are most susceptible to infection since there is little or no protection on the newly developed and tender foliage. Once infection has occurred the spread of the disease is quite rapid, if moisture and temperature conditions are favorable.

Evidence of the injury to the potato crop from late blight is presented in two ways, according to Denniston. First, the premature dying of the foliage results in lower yields; and second, tuber infection is followed by tuber rot, either in the field before harvest or in storage after harvest.

In most it is too late to prevent the loss from late blight when infection has hit the crop. The only safe and satisfactory means of control is that of prevention, Denniston says. He reports that Pennsylvania commercial potato growers practice timely spraying to prevent or control the disease. Since August and September are the two critical months for late blight, potato growers throughout the state are urged to make a special effort to do a thorough job of spraying, especially if conditions favor the development and spread of the disease. The most effective spray is 8-8-100 homemade bordeaux mixture.

Fishermen Hail Approach Of Fall When Water Cools

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 24.—The fisherman who knows his fish hails the coming of autumn as the finest time of the year for his sport, according to members of the Fish commission. Cooling of the water in September and October invariably is attended by an increase in feeding activities on the part of popular warm water game fishes, the pickerel, wall-eyed pike or Susquehanna salmon, smallmouth and largemouth bass. For instance the largest wall-eyed pike reported from the Upper Delaware river last season, a fish weighing 11¾ pounds, was caught in October. Live bait fishing and plug casting are generally rewarded by heavy catches.

During mid-summer, particularly August, catches of practically all game fish usually are light. This year owing to the low water and unusually high temperature in most streams game fish are believed to have done little feeding, seeking deep water areas and responding but slightly to any bait. Another handicap for many fishermen has been the growth of weeds in some of the favorite bass streams. Generally in early autumn, much of this grass loosens and is washed away, affording better fishing conditions. While in the streams, however, it affords ideal protection for the young of game fish and serves as a feeding ground for thousands of minnows and other forage fish.

At the approach of winter, has particularly feed ravenously, preparatory to entering a state of semi-hibernation. Pickerel and wall-eyed pike also go on a feeding rampage. Many fishermen are expected to find great sport this autumn on their favorite waters.

Paid "Lifts" May Cause Autoists To Lose Licenses

Law Provides Stiff Penalties For Evading P. S. C. Rules

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Bootleg transportation of paying passengers is illegal, the Public Service commission said today. The transportation bootlegger, the commission explained, is the pleasure car or truck owner who transports paying passengers without holding a certificate of public convenience authorizing such transportation.

Stiff penalties may follow such violations when guilt is established. They include suspension of the motor vehicle's registration, suspension of the operator's license, a fine imposed by the commission, or a fine for operating with improper registration plates.

Suspended operators are required to post with the Department of Revenue, proof of financial responsibility before their license is reinstated. Certificated truckers engaged in such illegal transportation also face cancellation of their certificate by the commission.

"Paying Friends"

The temptation to pick up extra change by hauling "paying friends" to and from work or by transporting paying picknickers in a truck may be strong but, as the commission points out, it is hardly worth losing the right to operate car or truck. Persons using these illegal means of going places, have little or no redress in the way of compensation for injuries should an accident result.

A commission rule requires that operators of motor vehicles subject to its jurisdiction provide adequate protection to cover their legal liability for personal injuries or damage to property. The bootleg operator avoids this requirement. His "paying friends" take a long chance on being compensated in the event of accident.

Not only do motorists hauling passengers for pay without commission authority violate the Public Service company law but they also operate in violation of the state vehicle code. By so operating they bring their car within the code's definition of "motor bus".

Becomes Bus

A "motor bus", according to the code, includes all motor vehicles operated for the carriage of passengers for hire by individuals, associations, co-partnerships, or corporations required under the law to obtain a certificate of public convenience from the commission before engaging in such transportation.

Special registration plates at higher rates are required. Therefore, the commission points out, pleasure car owners transporting passengers for pay without commission authority and in cars not registered in their proper classification are operating with improper tags and in violation of the Public Service company law as well.

The penalty for operating with improper registraiton tags is a $10 fine or, in default, five days in jail.

DOCTOR WHO SAVED OTHERS SUCCUMBS TO TUBERCULOSIS

(International News Service)

DENVER,—Tuberculosis, the disease from which he had saved thousands, claimed the life of Dr. Isidor D. Bronfin, 48, medical director of the National Jewish hospital here.

Five weeks before his death, Dr. Bronfin was stricken by complete physical collapse. Bronchial pneumonia resulted. Throughout his last illness, he acted as "consultant" as well as patient in the case.

The stricken physician observed every symptom, checked every move.

Dr. Bronfin contracted tuberculosis early in life, but overcame the disease. Later, intensely interested in the welfare of his patients, he neglected to guard his own health.

Discovery Of Neptune Was Result Of Expert Mathematical Calculation

Neptune as compared with Earth.

Central Press Science Writer

The accidental discovery of Uranus by Sir William Herschel led, in a way, to the discovery of Neptune, but we must think of the latter as the planet which was discovered when scientific men set out to explain the irregularities in the orbit of Uranus, which they could only account for by the influence of still another planet outside its own orbit.

Uranus Roused Suspicions

For Uranus, soon after discovery, began to exhibit a strange behavior, wandering from the orbit that science had determined for it and occasionally spurting along its path at a faster rate and then being retarded in its motion. Something apparently was wrong, and all the astronomers of that time, about the year 1840, were eager to discover what caused the planet's irregularities.

Among them was a young English mathematician, J. C. Adams, of Cambridge, who believed he could trace Uranus' difficulties to the action of an outside planet. By 1846 he believed he had his solution and submitted it to the royal astronomer of England. This gentleman took no immediate action.

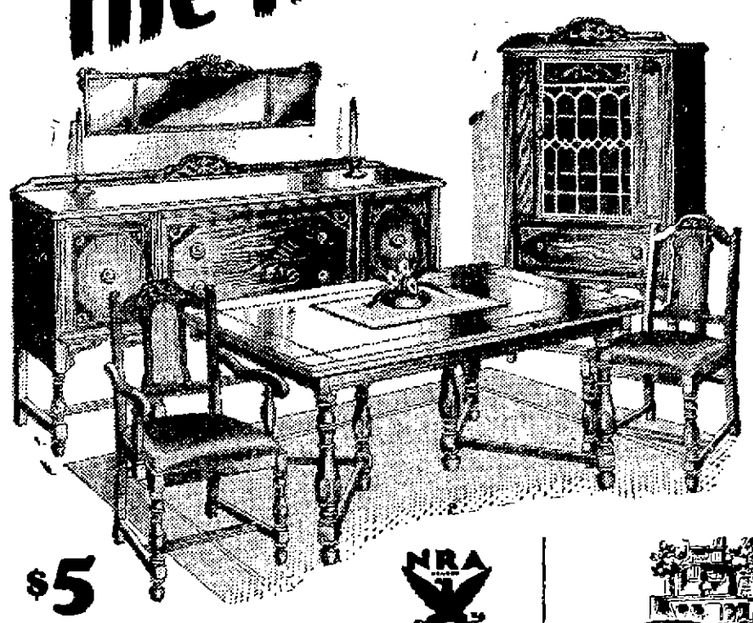

In the meantime however, a young French astronomer, U. J. J. Le Verrier, was working on the problem and arrived at the same mathematical result as had Adams. About the same time that the British astronomer royal submitted Adams' figures to the Greenwich observatory so that the search for the new planet might begin, Le Verrier submitted his theory and figures to Dr. J. G. Galle, a friend at Berlin. Galle was possessed of better star charts and on the first evening he directed his telescope toward that section of the sky to which Le Verrier had directed him, he picked out the much-sought-after stranger.

Larger Than Uranus

The planet was named Neptune. We know little about Neptune for its disc is faint and remote even in the largest of telescopes. It is 2,793,500,000 miles distant from the sun and is slightly larger than Uranus, having a diameter of 33,000 miles. It appears as a greenish disc in the telescope and no surface markings are visible. Neptune has one satellite, which has been given the name of Triton.

DOG TONSILECTOMY

(International News Service)

DENVER—If your dog has rheumatism, specks before his eyes or heart trouble, perhaps his tonsils should be removed. The procedure, he said, was similar to performing a tonsil operation on a human being.

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to help overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Paid "Lifts" May Cause Autoists To Lose Licenses

Law Provides Stiff Penalties For Evading P. S. C. Rules

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Bootleg transportation of paying passengers is illegal, the Public Service commission said today. The transportation bootlegger, the commission explained, is the pleasure car or truck owner who transports paying passengers without holding a certificate of public convenience authorizing such transportation.

Stiff penalties may follow such violations when guilt is established. They include suspension of the motor vehicle's registration, suspension of the operator's license, a fine imposed by the commission, or a fine for operating with improper registration plates.

Suspended operators are required to post with the Department of Revenue, proof of financial responsibility before their license is reinstated. Certificated truckers engaged in such illegal transportation also face cancellation of their certificate by the commission.

"Paying Friends"

The temptation to pick up extra change by hauling "paying friends" to and from work or by transporting paying picknickers in a truck may be strong but, as the commission points out, it is hardly worth losing the right to operate car or truck. Persons using these illegal means of going places, have little or no redress in the way of compensation for injuries should an accident result

A commission rule requires that operators of motor vehicles subject to its jurisdiction provide adequate protection to cover their legal liability for personal injuries or damage to property. The bootleg operator avoids this requirement. His "paying friends" take a long chance on being compensated in the event of accident.

Not only do motorists hauling passengers for pay without commission authority violate the Public Service company law but they also operate in violation of the state vehicle code. By so operating they bring their car within the code's definition of "motor bus".

Becomes Bus

A "motor bus", according to the code, includes all motor vehicles operated for the carriage of passengers for hire by individuals, associations, co-partnerships, or corporations required under the law to obtain a certificate of public convenience from the commission before engaging in such transportation.

Special registration plates at higher rates are required. Therefore, the commission points out, pleasure car owners transporting passengers for pay without commission authority and in cars not registered in their proper classification are operating with improper tags and in violation of the Public Service company law as well.

The penalty for operating with improper registraiton tags is a $10 fine or, in default, five days in jail.

DOCTOR WHO SAVED OTHERS SUCCUMBS TO TUBERCULOSIS

(International News Service)

DENVER,—Tuberculosis, the disease from which he had saved thousands, claimed the life of Dr. Isidor D. Bronfin, 48, medical director of the National Jewish hospital here.

Five weeks before his death, Dr. Bronfin was stricken by complete physical collapse. Bronchial pneumonia resulted. Throughout his last illness, he acted as "consultant" as well as patient in the case.

The stricken physician observed every symptom, checked every move.

Dr. Bronfin contracted tuberculosis early in life, but overcame the disease. Later, intensely interested in the welfare of his patients, he neglected to guard his own health.

SCIENCE SIMPLIFIED

Astronomical Triumph

Discovery Of Neptune Was Result Of Expert Mathematical Calculation

Neptune as compared with Earth.

Central Press Science Writer

The accidental discovery of Uranus by Sir William Herschel led, in a way, to the discovery of Neptune, but we must think of the latter as the planet which was discovered when scientific men set out to explain the irregularities in the orbit of Uranus, which they could only account for by the influence of still another planet outside its own orbit.

Uranus Roused Suspicions

For Uranus, soon after discovery, began to exhibit a strange behavior, wandering from the orbit that science had determined for it and occasionally spurting along its path at a faster rate and then being retarded in its motion. Something apparently was wrong, and all the astronomers of that time, about the year 1840, were eager to discover what caused the planet's irregularities.

Among them was a young English mathematician, J. C. Adams, of Cambridge, who believed he could trace Uranus' difficulties to the action of an outside planet. By 1846 he believed he had his solution and submitted it to the royal astronomer of England. This gentleman took no immediate action.

In the meantime however, a young French astronomer, U. J. J. Le Verrier, was working on the problem and arrived at the same mathematical result as had Adams. About the same time that the British astronomer royal submitted Adams' figures to the Greenwich observatory so that the search for the new planet might begin, Le Verrier submitted his theory and figures to Dr. J. G. Galle, a friend at Berlin. Galle was possessed of better star charts and on the first evening he directed his telescope toward that section of the sky to which Le Verrier had directed him, he picked out the much-sought-after stranger.

Larger Than Uranus

The planet was named Neptune. We know little about Neptune for its disc is faint and remote even in the largest of telescopes. It is 2,793,500,000 miles distant from the sun and is slightly larger than Uranus, having a diameter of 33,000 miles. It appears as a greenish disc in the telescope and no surface markings are visible. Neptune has one satellite, which has been given the name of Triton.

DOG TONSILECTOMY

(International News Service)

DENVER—If your dog has rheumatism, specks before his eyes or heart trouble, perhaps his tonsils should be removed. A Denver veterinarian revealed recently that he had performed tonsilectomy operations on more than 100 canines in order to relieve them of a variety of ailments. The procedure, he said, was similar to performing a tonsil operation on a human being.

DON'T LET COMMON CONSTIPATION DULL THE JOY OF LIVING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation takes the sunshine out of your days. It may bring headaches, loss of appetite and energy, sleeplessness, sallow skins, pimples.

Fortunately, you can avoid this condition by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to help overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of blood-building iron.

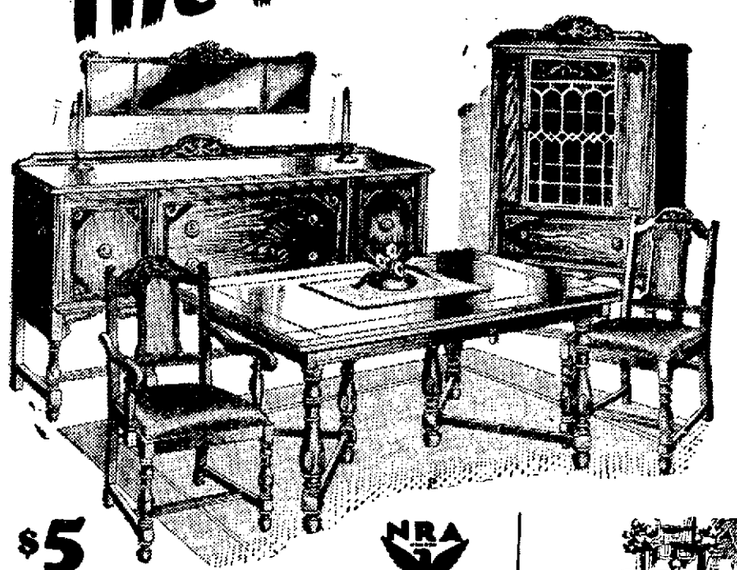

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than dosing yourself with patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal in chronic cases. If seriously ill, see your doctor—ALL-BRAN is not a "cure-all."

Police Utilize Radio Cars For Crime Broadcast

For the first time in the history of the city, police here today broadcast a robbery alarm over a radio and cars purchased recently for the police followed directions issued over the radio.

When the news of the Butler robbery was received two of the cruiser cars started from the police station—one for the Butler road and the other for the Ellwood City road.

The sergeant of police, M. J. Young, radioed teletype reports over the radio to the cars, one of which contained Police Chief Haven and Mayor Mayne, and the other Patrolmen Wallace and Jones.

Acording to Chief Haven, the reports he received at Weigletown were very audible. The patrolmen also said the reports received at East New Castle were as audible as though they were at the police station.

The station has not officially been put in operation, but was used in the emergency this morning.

OLD-FASHIONED WAY OF KEEPING COOL

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 24.—Are you suffering from the heat? Perhaps you would like to try the old-fashioned methods of keeping cool. Here they are as contained in a St. Louis newspaper published 75 years ago.

First, wear flannel underwear. Second, never drink (anything) before 2 p. m. Third, don't think about the weather.

The editor had this to say about the flannel underwear: "Wear flannel next to the skin, both in order that perspiration may be absorbed and put in a fair way of tranquil evaporation, and likewise in order to be presentable into society."

And he thus naively explained the purpose of morning abstinence from drink—"Never take a drink before 2 p. m. By that time you won't miss it and can go the remainer of the day without thirst."

SUES FOR WHISKEY AND GETS VINEGAR

(International News Service)

DETROIT—The celebrated "little brown jug" case has come to an end, with Laron Brown, cafe proprietor, victor, but it was only a moral victory after all.

Brown sued the owner of the building, Harold McInerney, for return of a bottle of 30-year-old rye whiskey which a laborer had found under the floor of Brown's cafe. The worker had sold it to McInerney for 50 cents.

Judge James M. Jeffries, in Common Pleas Coure, upheld Brown and awarded him the bottle. A city chemist testified the bottle contained nothing more exhilarating than a good grade of vinegar.

SUES FOR WHISKEY AND GETS VINEGAR

(International News Service)

DETROIT—The celebrated "little brown jug" case has come to an end, with Laron Brown, cafe proprietor, victor, but it was only a moral victory after all.

Brown sued the owner of the building, Harold McInerney, for return of a bottle of 30-year-old rye whiskey which a laborer had found under the floor of Brown's cafe. The worker had sold it to McInerney for 50 cents.

Judge James M. Jeffries, in Common Pleas Coure, upheld Brown and awarded him the bottle. A city chemist testified the bottle contained nothing more exhilarating than a good grade of vinegar.

Inspections last year resulted in improved school transportation, and inspection of buses before the school term opens is expected to result in further improvement this year.

Shark, Bullets End Escape Of Devil's Island Convicts

(International News Service)

SAINT-MARTIN-DE-RE, France, Aug. 24.—How two desperate convicts met death while making a daring attempt to seize a Devil's Island prison arsenal and escape was revealed here today by a guard arriving from the desolate islands of the Cayenne group in the South Atlantic.

Both died in the sea, one in the jaws of a man-eating shark, the other riddled by warders' bullets.

Georges Lanio, who was shot to death, was one of the last of the notorious Paris Apaches, a sailor when not otherwise engaged, who preferred a clasp knife to a pistol. His confederate in the effort to escape from the world's most hated prison camp was known to the guard only as Houttin, also a murderer.

Both were imprisoned on one of the smaller islands called Saint Joseph, where man-eating sharks assist the French authorities in preventing escapes. One day, while on forced labor, they were left with only one keeper. He turned his head for a brief moment, but that was sufficient for Lanio to smash his skull with a shovel.

The two made a dash for the little bungalow where the prison arsenal was kept, consisting of pistols and crude weapons. The family of the principal guard lived in the bungalow, a wife and two children, aged two and twelve. One of the desperadoes fired twice at the mother with the carbine he had taken from the slain guard. He missed. Houttin grabbed one of the youngsters as a human shield and the two prisoners made their way to the room set aside as arsenal.

The shots had been heard, however, and other guards rushed up. They arrived just as the two convicts had reached the door of the storehouse for arms. The door was locked.

Seeing they could not ward off the rescuers and break down the door at the same time, the two turned and headed for the coast of the little island. Their destination was the small boat anchored just a short distance out.

They started swimming. Their pursuers were able to kill Lanio, but they failed to hit Houttin. Just as the convict came within reach of the boat, however, they saw the fin of a shark cleave the water and then Houttin was drawn screaming beneath the sea.

Lands Huge Bass From Cement Dam

Apparently you don't have to go to Canada to get large bass. James Cole, aged 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Cole pulled out a 19¾ inch bass from the cement dam several days ago using night crawlers for bait. From the same dam this year he has pulled 2 15 1-4 inch bass and his total string for the year amounts to 30 bass all 12 inches or better.

Should a voice emanate from your radio stating: "W. P. G. T. One-Two-Three-Four-Test" one should not become excited; it is merely police testing out their radio transmitter and receivers in the police cars. On Court House Hill

Under the will of the late Edward S. McKibben of this city all of his estate is left to his wife, Allie A. McKibben, who is also named as executrix.

Will of the late Samuel G. Booher has been probated at the register and recorder's office. The bulk of his estate is left to his sons, Harvey W. Booher and Charles Booher. A granddaughter, Pauline Booher, is left ten shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock and another granddaughter, Sharon Lyn Booher, is left 25 shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock. Samuel and Harvey Booher are named as executors.

An appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace S. Y. Douds of Ellwood City has been filed at the prothonotary's office in the case of the B. & B. market against the Sanitary Pie Baking company. The case is one in which judgment of $91.75 was awarded in favor of the plaintiff. The appeal was taken by the defendant. The case will now be tried in court.

Former Judge J. Norman Martin had business at the new Beaver county court house this week, and was impressed with the convenient arrangement of offices and the general appearance of the building. The Beaver court house was rebuilt after it had been damaged by fire and an addition was added. The old part was veneered with stone, making it all look alike. The improvement cost around $250,000.

Caroline A. Donnelly has filed a bill in equity against Thomas M. Donnelly in which she seeks a division of real estate located on Sheridan avenue. The bill recites that from March, 1924, to July, 1934, plaintiff was the wife of defendant. In May, 1929, J. Clare Hoover sold the Sheridan avenue property to the Donnellys, a joint deed being taken. It is claimed that the market value of the property is $5000. The Lawrence Savings & Trust company holds a mortgage against it for $3500, which is the only lien of record. In July, 1934, the couple were divorced. They still hold the property by the joint deed. The court is asked to appoint a trustee to sell the property and divide the proceeds between the owners.

The Roger Bros. corporation has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Claude W. Hardy and Louis Womer to collect a balance of $619.37, alleged to be due the plaintiff on certain notes which defendants gave.

The unemployed can now get help from the Home Loan Corporation, according to the latest bulletin. The bulletin points out that recently ordered restrictions on loans were for the purpose of elliminating the applications of those who, through age or chronic illness, or permanently reduced earning power, would never be able to repay an advance made to them by the corporation. Under the new rules an unemployed man with prospects of earning in the future enough to meet his obligations to the corporation, can have his mortgage refinanced by the government.

However, it is no longer possible to immediately obtain a three-year moratorium on payments, but an unemployed man may apply for a three-month moratorium. If, at the end of three months, he is still unable to meet his payments, he may secure an extension of another three months after officials have checked his story.

Another phase of new regulations stipulates that there must be unmistakable evidence of distress before the Home Loan Corporation will step in and take over the mortgage to save his home. The eligibility rules were tightened because the corporation has more applications than its funds can serve, and the loans will be granted to those who are in the greatest need.

The regulation issued July 30th to the effect that an applicant must get the signatures of two or more lending corporations or banks, which refused to make the loan, has been rescinded. This rule proved a nuisance, as the time of other corporations was taken up in making up loan refusal slips and there was no compensation for the time thus wasted.

Shark, Bullets End Escape Of Devil's Island Convicts

(International News Service)

SAINT-MARTIN-DE-RE, France, Aug. 24.—How two desperate convicts met death while making a daring attempt to seize a Devil's Island prison arsenal and escape was revealed here today by a guard arriving from the desolate islands of the Cayenne group in the South Atlantic.

Both died in the sea, one in the jaws of a man-eating shark, the other riddled by warders' bullets.

Georges Lanio, who was shot to death, was one of the last of the notorious Paris Apaches, a sailor when not otherwise engaged, who preferred a clasp knife to a pistol. His confederate in the effort to escape from the world's most hated prison camp was known to the guard only as Houttin, also a murderer.

Both were imprisoned on one of the smaller islands called Saint Joseph, where man-eating sharks assist the French authorities in preventing escapes. One day, while on forced labor, they were left with only one keeper. He turned his head for a brief moment, but that was sufficient for Lanio to smash his skull with a shovel.

The two made a dash for the little bungalow where the prison arsenal was kept, consisting of pistols and crude weapons. The family of the principal guard lived in the bungalow, a wife and two children, aged two and twelve. One of the desperadoes fired twice at the mother with the carbine he had taken from the slain guard. He missed. Houttin grabbed one of the youngsters as a human shield and the two prisoners made their way to the room set aside as arsenal.

The shots had been heard, however, and other guards rushed up. They arrived just as the two convicts had reached the door of the storehouse for arms. The door was locked.

Seeing they could not ward off the rescuers and break down the door at the same time, the two turned and headed for the coast of the little island. Their destination was the small boat anchored just a short distance out.

They started swimming. Their pursuers were able to kill Lanio, but they failed to hit Houttin. Just as the convict came within reach of the boat, however, they saw the fin of a shark cleave the water and then Houttin was drawn screaming beneath the sea.

Lands Huge Bass From Cement Dam

Apparently you don't have to go to Canada to get large bass. James Cole, aged 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Coy Cole pulled out a 19¾ inch bass from the cement dam several days ago using night crawlers for bait. From the same dam this year he has pulled 2 15 1-4 inch bass and his total string for the year amounts to 30 bass all 12 inches or better.

On Court House Hill

Under the will of the late Edward S. McKibben of this city all of his estate is left to his wife, Allie A. McKibben, who is also named as executrix.

Will of the late Samuel G. Booher has been probated at the register and recorder's office. The bulk of his estate is left to his sons, Harvey W. Booher and Charles Booher. A granddaughter, Pauline Booher, is left ten shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock and another granddaughter, Sharon Lyn Booher, is left 25 shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock. Samuel and Harvey Booher are named as executors.

An appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace S. Y. Douds of Ellwood City has been filed at the prothonotary's office in the case of the B. & B. market against the Sanitary Pie Baking company. The case is one in which judgment of $91.75 was awarded in favor of the plaintiff. The appeal was taken by the defendant. The case will now be tried in court.

Former Judge J. Norman Martin had business at the new Beaver county court house this week, and was impressed with the convenient arrangement of offices and the general appearance of the building. The Beaver court house was rebuilt after it had been damaged by fire and an addition was added. The old part was veneered with stone, making it all look alike. The improvement cost around $250,000.

Caroline A. Donnelly has filed a bill in equity against Thomas M. Donnelly in which she seeks a division of real estate located on Sheridan avenue. The bill recites that from March, 1924, to July, 1934, plaintiff was the wife of defendant. In May, 1929, J. Clare Hoover sold the Sheridan avenue property to the Donnellys, a joint deed being taken. It is claimed that the market value of the property is $5000. The Lawrence Savings & Trust company holds a mortgage against it for $3500, which is the only lien of record. In July, 1934, the couple were divorced. They still hold the property by the joint deed. The court is asked to appoint a trustee to sell the property and divide the proceeds between the owners.

The Roger Bros. corporation has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Claude W. Hardy and Louis Womer to collect a balance of $619.37, alleged to be due the plaintiff on certain notes which defendants gave.

The unemployed can now get help from the Home Loan Corporation, according to the latest bulletin. The bulletin points out that recently ordered restrictions on loans were for the purpose of eliminating the applications of those who, through age or chronic illness, or permanently reduced earning power, would never be able to repay an advance made to them by the corporation. Under the new rules an unemployed man with prospects of earning in the future enough to meet his obligations to the corporation, can have his mortgage refinanced by the government.

However, it is no longer possible to immediately obtain a three-year moratorium on payments, but an unemployed man may apply for a three-month moratorium. If, at the end of three months, he is still unable to meet his payments, he may secure an extension of another three months after officials have checked his story.

Another phase of new regulations stipulates that there must be unmistakable evidence of distress before the Home Loan Corporation will step in and take over the mortgage to save his home. The eligibility rules were tightened because the corporation has more applications than its funds can serve, and the loans will be granted to those who are in the greatest need.

The regulation issued July 30th to the effect that an applicant must get the signatures of two or more lending corporations or banks, which refused to make the loan, has been rescinded. This rule proved a nuisance, as the time of other corporations was taken up in making up loan refusal slips and there was no compensation for the time thus wasted.

The death of a dancer in London from nitrophenol, taken to reduce her weight, calls attention to the danger of taking such drugs without a doctor's advice. There have been several fatalities and many seriously ill cases from this cause.

Phalanx Will Close Summer With Party

A Ladies' Night dinner and dance will be held by the Phalanx fraternity at a New Wilmington tavern on Wednesday, August 29, it was announced today. James Beadel will be chairman of arrangements.

The dinner affair will mark the fraternity's final social affair before the resumption of its regular weekly meetings at the Y. M. C. A.

On Court House Hill

Under the will of the late Edward S. McKibben of this city all of his estate is left to his wife, Allie A. McKibben, who is also named as executrix.

Will of the late Samuel G. Booher has been probated at the register and recorder's office. The bulk of his estate is left to his sons, Harvey W. Booher and Charles Booher. A granddaughter, Pauline Booher, is left ten shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock and another granddaughter, Sharon Lyn Booher, is left 25 shares of Pennsylvania railroad stock. Samuel and Harvey Booher are named as executors.

An appeal from the decision of Justice of the Peace S. Y. Douds of Ellwood City has been filed at the prothonotary's office in the case of the B. & B. market against the Sanitary Pie Baking company. The case is one in which judgment of $91.75 was awarded in favor of the plaintiff. The appeal was taken by the defendant. The case will now be tried in court.

Former Judge J. Norman Martin had business at the new Beaver county court house this week, and was impressed with the convenient arrangement of offices and the general appearance of the building. The Beaver court house was rebuilt after it had been damaged by fire and an addition was added. The old part was veneered with stone, making it all look alike. The improvement cost around $250,000.

Caroline A. Donnelly has filed a bill in equity against Thomas M. Donnelly in which she seeks a division of real estate located on Sheridan avenue. The bill recites that from March, 1924, to July, 1934, plaintiff was the wife of defendant. In May, 1929, J. Clare Hoover sold the Sheridan avenue property to the Donnellys, a joint deed being taken. It is claimed that the market value of the property is $5000. The Lawrence Savings & Trust company holds a mortgage against it for $3500, which is the only lien of record. In July, 1934, the couple were divorced. They still hold the property by the joint deed. The court is asked to appoint a trustee to sell the property and divide the proceeds between the owners.

The Roger Bros. corporation has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against Claude W. Hardy and Louis Womer to collect a balance of $619.37, alleged to be due the plaintiff on certain notes which defendants gave.

The unemployed can now get help from the Home Loan Corporation, according to the latest bulletin. The bulletin points out that recently ordered restrictions on loans were for the purpose of eliminating the applications of those who, through age or chronic illness, or permanently reduced earning power, would never be able to repay an advance made to them by the corporation. Under the new rules an unemployed man with prospects of earning in the future enough to meet his obligations to the corporation, can have his mortgage refinanced by the government.

However, it is no longer possible to immediately obtain a three-year moratorium on payments, but an unemployed man may apply for a three-month moratorium. If, at the end of three months, he is still unable to meet his payments, he may secure an extension of another three months after officials have checked his story.

Another phase of new regulations stipulates that there must be unmistakable evidence of distress before the Home Loan Corporation will step in and take over the mortgage to save his home. The eligibility rules were tightened because the corporation has more applications than its funds can serve, and the loans will be granted to those who are in the greatest need.

The regulation issued July 30th to the effect that an applicant must get the signatures of two or more lending corporations or banks, which refused to make the loan, has been rescinded. This rule proved a nuisance, as the time of other corporations was taken up in making up loan refusal slips and there was no compensation for the time thus wasted.

STATE'S RELIEF STATUS PUT UP TO PRESIDENT

Expect State To Provide Adequate Share Of Money

"LETTER MEANS SPECIAL SESSION"

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Pennsylvania's critical relief situation was to be discussed at a White House conference today at which Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, was scheduled to outline the commonwealth's condition to President Roosevelt.

Beyond promising that all distressed would be cared for, Hopkins declined to elaborate on the Pennsylvania situation upon his return to New York from a European tour yesterday.

"We have not been hard on Pennsylvania in the past," Hopkins said. "We have not penalized the state but we expect Pennsylvania to give a fair share to match the government allowances."

Hopkins declined to discuss a letter he sent to Gov. Gifford Pinchot which was generally construed as warning that the federal pocketbook will be closed to Pennsylvania unless it assumes a share of the relief burden beginning in September.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who has declined to reveal the contents of the letter, declared that to comply with its terms would necessitate a special session of the legislature. If forced to call such a session the governor warned he would include a wide variety of social and liberal legislation in the call.

The governor was at his Milford estate, presumably preparing data on the commonwealth's financial condition which it is believed he will lay before federal officials with whom he expects to confer in Washington soon.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WALL STREET put up stock prices yesterday as much as four dollars a share in some cases. And 1,400,000 shares were sold "like old times." This means that the "wise ones" think the value of the dollar will drop, some say "as low as twenty-five cents," and he that still has dollars says to himself, "I may as well spend these dollars while they will still buy something."

OTHERS, perhaps wiser, say the President and Mr. Morgenthau, his Secretary of the Treasury, will not let the dollar go so low, and, in any case, it doesn't matter what foreigners think of our dollar while it will buy anything in the United States, where there is everything. . .

ONE THING is certain, there is nothing in sight to make the international value of the dollar go higher, no matter what "prosperity" may do. Those that own valuable properties, real estate especially, should not be in too great a hurry to sell. What they have may be worth more dollars a little later.

IN NUMEROUS PLACES, numerous sorts of propaganda, Nazi, Communist, etc., are under investigation. It is desirable that the American people should know what is going on, although, as a matter of fact, they have little information about anything.

At the same time it should be remembered that nothing is more dangerous than suppressing free speech, even speech in secret. The most harmless things that men can use are WORDS. If you do not permit that, they must use weapons more disagreeable.

The wise British know it and let a man talk as he pleases, giving publicity to any and every theory, as long as he does not advocate violence against an individual. He may stand in Hyde Park, say anything that comes into his mind, and goes home, relieved, having thrown no bomb.

YESTERDAY TOKIO and all Japanese newspapers were excited, naturally, about the news that American farmers in Arizona's "Salt River Valley" had ordered 1,000 Japanese farmers "to get out, and stay out of the valley."

The United States Government requests Arizona's governor to see that the rights of Japanese farmers are protected. Arizona has an alien land law forbidding Orientals not born in America to own or lease agricultural land in Arizona. The matter will doubtless be adjusted with proper respect for Japanese sensibilities.

IT HAPPENS that American farmers would not be allowed to own or lease agricultural lands in Japan if they wanted to, which they do not with ten millions of acres here unused.

There is no reflection on the Japanese or any other Asiatic people as a race. The situation represents the feeling of American farmers that they cannot compete with the Japanese or Chinese, which is rather a compliment than an insult.

IN GERMANY the suggestion that criminals condemned to death be allowed to kill themselves if they wish, and that the old "cup of hemlock" be revived, is made seriously by the ministry of justice. It is recommended in accordance with the ancient idea that "the last wish of a person condemned to death should be granted."

In this country we let the condemned man have ham and eggs for breakfast, or beefsteak, or whatever he wants, but "justice" puts him to death. To let him kill himself might diminish the general respect for law. A "hemlock oration," all very well in the case of a Socrates, would not sound so well in the case of a man killed for murdering his wife.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, anxious to help farmers, will lend twelve cents a pound on cotton that the growers have held in hopes of better prices.

That's a considerable improvement over four and five cents paid recently.

Senator Thomas, from Oklahoma, calls attention to the fact that the price of cotton depends always on the value of gold. That cotton price is made abroad. With gold worth thirty-five dollars an ounce instead of twenty dollars, cotton automatically is worth nearly double what it was when gold was cheaper.

LONG AGO the President and Gen. Johnson, NRA, let it be known that they had, as one objective, a 10 per cent reduction in hours with a 10 per cent increase in pay. The change has now been incorporated in the cotton garment code, the first "ten-ten" agreement.

Shorter hours, higher wages and reasonable inflation to provide more money should "prime the pump" of prosperity for a time.

NEW YORK'S latest strike is that of 5,000 workers whose business is making bathrobes. They want to work only thirty-five hours a week, which, under present buying conditions, is probably ample.

The 35-hour week means 133 hours a week for sleep, amusement and self-improvement, a change from old "12 hours a day, 6 days a week" methods.

STRANGE FISH IS SEEN AT FRANKLIN

(International News Service)

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 24.—It's not a sea monster, it's a diving fish. It takes a dive into the air and hits the water with the sound of an exploding firecracker.

Four feet long; 12 to 14 inches thick, the strange fish that is attracting throngs to the Allegheny river here, has a sleek round body like an aluminum painted airplane and when it strikes the water, the sound can be heard several hundred feet away.

R. A. Fergus, official temperature and river mark recorder for Franklin, expressed the belief it is a muscallonge.

Doctors To Study Strange Maladies

Infantile Paralysis And Sleeping Sickness Subjects Of Intensive Study

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—A special group of ten Philadelphia physicians has been selected by Director J. Norman Henry of the department of public health here to make a study of infantile paralysis and sleeping sickness in this vicinity.

"The committee's particular duty will be to study all questions relative to the epidemiology of the disease and the method of its conveyance," Dr. Henry said.

"The problems of susceptibility and contagion and the question of controlling any epidemic condition which may arise, will be considered also," he added.

Health department records here show that there have been only ten cases of infantile parlysis reported to the department since January 1. Two death from the malady in that time are officially on record.

Since the first of the year there have been ten or eleven cases of sleeping sickness and nine deaths from the disease. The high death rate in sleeping sickness. Department officials say, is due to the fact that cases of the disease are not reported promptly enough.

Dr. Henry said that on the committee, of which Dr. C. Y. White is chairman, there are pediatricians, neurologists, public health men, laboratory men and orthapedic surgeons.

The long drouth has made cranberry growers fear that this year's crop will be less than that of last year, although they say the berries will be better in quality. Cape Cod produced 90 per cent of the world's cranberry crop last year.

Then he led scoffers to the carcass of a 17 foot, 800 pound marlin swordfish he'd brought in.

STATE'S RELIEF STATUS PUT UP TO PRESIDENT

Expect State To Provide Adequate Share Of Money

"LETTER MEANS SPECIAL SESSION"

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Pennsylvania's critical relief situation was to be discussed at a White House conference today at which Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, was scheduled to outline the commonwealth's condition to President Roosevelt.

Beyond promising that all distressed would be cared for, Hopkins declined to elaborate on the Pennsylvania situation upon his return to New York from a European tour yesterday.

"We have not been hard on Pennsylvania in the past," Hopkins said.

"We have not penalized the state but we expect Pennsylvania to give a fair share to match the government allowances."

Hopkins declined to discuss a letter he sent to Gov. Gifford Pinchot which was generally construed as warning that the federal pocketbook will be closed to Pennsylvania unless it assumes a share of the relief burden beginning in September.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot, who has declined to reveal the contents of the letter, declared that to comply with its terms would necessitate a special session of the legislature. If forced to call such a session the governor warned he would include a wide variety of social and liberal legislation in the call.

The governor was at his Milford estate, presumably preparing data on the commonwealth's financial condition which it is believed he will lay before federal officials with whom he expects to confer in Washington soon.

Today

They Mistreat The $.
Talk Is Safe.
Asiatic Capacity.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WALL STREET put up stock prices yesterday as much as four dollars a share in some cases. And 1,400,000 shares were sold "like old times." This means that the "wise ones" think the value of the dollar will drop, some say "as low as twenty-five cents," and he that still has dollars says to himself, "I may as well spend these dollars while they will still buy something."

OTHERS, perhaps wiser, say the President and Mr. Morgenthau, his Secretary of the Treasury, will not let the dollar go so low, and, in any case, it doesn't matter what foreigners think of our dollar while it will buy anything in the United States, where there is everything. . .

ONE THING is certain, there is nothing in sight to make the international value of the dollar go higher, no matter what "prosperity" may do. Those that own valuable properties, real estate especially, should not be in too great a hurry to sell. What they have may be worth more dollars a little later.

IN NUMEROUS PLACES, numerous sorts of propaganda, Nazi, Communist, etc., are under investigation. It is desirable that the American people should know what is going on, although, as a matter of fact, they have little information about anything.

At the same time it should be remembered that nothing is more dangerous than suppressing free speech, even speech in secret. The most harmless things that men can use are WORDS. If you do not permit that, they must use weapons more disagreeable.

The wise British know it and let a man talk as he pleases, giving publicity to any and every theory, as long as he does not advocate violence against an individual. He may stand in Hyde Park, say anything that comes into his mind, and goes home, relieved, having thrown no bomb.

YESTERDAY TOKIO and all Japanese newspapers were excited, naturally, about the news that American farmers in Arizona's "Salt River Valley" had ordered 1,000 Japanese farmers "to get out, and stay out of the valley."

The United States Government requests Arizona's governor to see that the rights of Japanese farmers are protected. Arizona has an alien land law forbidding Orientals not born in America to own or lease agricultural land in Arizona. The matter will doubtless be adjusted with proper respect for Japanese sensibilities.

IT HAPPENS that American farmers would not be allowed to own or lease agricultural lands in Japan if they wanted to, which they do not with ten millions of acres here unused.

There is no reflection on the Japanese or any other Asiatic people as a race. The situation represents the feeling of American farmers that they cannot compete with the Japanese or Chinese, which is rather a compliment than an insult.

IN GERMANY the suggestion that criminals condemned to death be allowed to kill themselves if they wish, and that the old "cup of hemlock" be revived, is made seriously by the ministry of justice. It is recommended in accordance with the ancient idea that "the last wish of a person condemned to death should be granted."

In this country we let the condemned man have ham and eggs for breakfast, or beefsteak, or whatever he wants, but "justice" puts him to death. To let him kill himself might diminish the general respect for law. A "hemlock oration," all very well in the case of a Socrates, would not sound so well in the case of a man killed for murdering his wife.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, anxious to help farmers, will lend twelve cents a pound on cotton that the growers have held in hopes of better prices.

That's a considerable improvement over four and five cents paid recently.

Senator Thomas, from Oklahoma, calls attention to the fact that the price of cotton depends always on the value of gold. That cotton price is made abroad. With gold worth thirty-five dollars an ounce instead of twenty dollars, cotton automatically is worth nearly double what it was when gold was cheaper.

LONG AGO the President and Gen. Johnson, NRA, let it be known that they had, as one objective, a 10 per cent reduction in hours with a 10 per cent increase in pay. The change has now been incorporated in the cotton garment code, the first "ten-ten" agreement.

Shorter hours, higher wages and reasonable inflation to provide more money should "prime the pump" of prosperity for a time.

NEW YORK'S latest strike is that of 5,000 workers whose business is making bathrobes. They want to work only thirty-five hours a week, which, under present buying conditions, is probably ample.

The 35-hour week means 133 hours a week for sleep, amusement and self-improvement, a change from old "12 hours a day, 6 days a week" methods.

STRANGE FISH IS SEEN AT FRANKLIN

(International News Service)

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 24.—It's not a sea monster, it's a diving fish. It takes a dive into the air and hits the water with the sound of an exploding firecracker.

Four feet long; 12 to 14 inches thick, the strange fish that is attracting throngs to the Allegheny river here, has a sleek round body like an aluminum painted airplane and when it strikes the water, the sound can be heard several hundred feet away.

R. A. Fergus, official temperature and river mark recorder for Franklin, expressed the belief it is a muscallonge.

Doctors To Study Strange Maladies

Infantile Paralysis And Sleeping Sickness Subjects Of Intensive Study

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—A special group of ten Philadelphia physicians has been selected by Director J. Norman Henry of the department of public health here to make a study of infantile paralysis and sleeping sickness in this vicinity.

"The committee's particular duty will be to study all questions relative to the epidemiology of the disease and the method of its conveyance," Dr. Henry said.

"The problems of susceptibility and contagion and the question of controlling any epidemic condition which may arise, will be considered also," he added.

Health department records here show that there have been only ten cases of infantile parlysis reported to the department since January 1. Two death from the malady in that time are officially on record.

Since the first of the year there have been ten or eleven cases of sleeping sickness and nine deaths from the disease. The high death rate in sleeping sickness. Department officials say, is due to the fact that cases of the disease are not reported promptly enough.

Dr. Henry said that on the committee, of which Dr. C. Y. White is chairman, there are pediatricians, neurologists, public health men, laboratory men and orthapedic surgeons.

LESS CRANBERRIES

(International News Service)

WAREHAM, Mass.—There may be lots of New Englanders who will have to go without cranberry sauce with their turkey next Thanksgiving. The long drouth has made cranberry growers fear that this year's crop will be less than that of last year, although they say the berries will be better in quality. Cape Cod produced 90 per cent of the world's cranberry crop last year.

FISH TOWED DORY

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass.—Here's one fish story that is backed up by physical evidence, 800 pounds of it. Capt. Chas. Petersen of the swordfishermen Alpha of Boston told of tossing a harpoon into a fish that towed a dory around Nantucket Sound for two hours. Then he led scoffers to the carcass of a 17 foot, 800 pound marlin swordfish he'd brought in.

KILLED 400 STARLINGS

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O.—Eric S. Howard and five companions shot between 300 and 400 starlings with only a few volleys here recently. Howard, a state deputy game warden and his assistants went on their hunting spree after residents in the neighborhood complained that nearly 2,000 European starlings had formed the habit of roosting in the trees about their homes and were a nuisance.

Plan Safety Drive In State

Alarming Increase In Automobile Fatalities Will Result In Campaign

PINCHOT URGES STRONG CAMPAIGN

Harrisburg, Aug. 24—A three-month state wide safety campaign to reduce the toll of automobile and industrial accidents will get underway in Pennsylvania September 1, with all departments of the state government, service clubs, motor clubs and other organized groups co-operating.

Alarmed at the rising tide of accidents and deaths, Gov. Gifford Pinchot has strongly urged all state departments and co-operating groups to "go the limit" in the drive. He declared:

"I urge as strongly as I know how that every organized group in the state shall take up this campaign: arrange meetings in behalf of safety; and impress upon every citizen the importance of cutting down the tremendous toll that carelessness is costing us.

To Go The Limit

"Lastly—but most important of all—I plead with every individual citizen to do his or her part. Without the wholehearted cooperation of rank and file, we can get nowhere in this campaign, but, with the whole hearted cooperation of the people we can achieve what will seem like miracles."

Asking the state highway patrol also "to go the limit" and the courts to cooperate in prosecuting offenders, the governor particularly requested that no mercy be shown drunken drivers.

The governor explained the new campaign will be a co-ordination of highway safety campaigns, drives for reducing industrial accidents, and home and school safety movements such as have been held in the past.

During the first seven months of the year, 29,510 automobile accidents were reported in Pennsylvania in which 1203 persons were killed and 26,687 were injured. This is an increase of 25 per cent over last year.

BOY SCOUT Activities

V-15 GETS NEW LIBRARY

Troop V-15 of the First Christian church this week had a troop library donated to it by Ralph Davies, Eagle Scout and active worker in Scouting.

Davies donated his entire collection of boys' books to the troop to form a nucleus of what is hoped will become a voluminous library.

Other troop members expect to add to it from time to time.

This week saw the close of a troop contest which for the past two months has kept the boys on their toes. Prizes were presented to the individual winner and also to the patrol with the highest number of points.

Bill Peters, individual winner, was awarded a sweater and the Pine Tree patrol received a Boy Scout pennant. Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph Montgomery had congratulated the boys and announced that another contest will begin in September.

The scout voiced their appreciation of the fine time they had at New Wilmington's Scout Day and discussed plans for another joint meeting in the near future with V-15 as hosts.

Mussolini Eats Soldier Ration

BOLOGNA, Italy, Aug. 24.—Premier Benito Mussolini showed today that it was not beneath his dignity to sample the food from a field kitchen in the maneuvers of the Italian army which he is now directing, but he would not be photographed doing it.

Inspecting the field kitchens, Mussolini passed great cauldrons of tomato soup and orderlies cutting up mutton. Il Duce hungrily sniffed the air and found the odor irresistable.

Plan Safety Drive In State

Alarming Increase In Automobile Fatalities Will Result In Campaign

PINCHOT URGES STRONG CAMPAIGN

Harrisburg, Aug. 24—A three-month state wide safety campaign to reduce the toll of automobile and industrial accidents will get underway in Pennsylvania September 1, with all departments of the state government, service clubs, motor clubs and other organized groups co-operating.

Alarmed at the rising tide of accidents and deaths, Gov. Gifford Pinchot has strongly urged all state departments and co-operating groups to "go the limit" in the drive. He declared:

"I urge as strongly as I know how that every organized group in the state shall take up this campaign: arrange meetings in behalf of safety: and impress upon every citizen the importance of cutting down the tremendous toll that carelessness is costing us.

To Go The Limit

"Lastly—but most important of all—I plead with every individual citizen to do his or her part. Without the wholehearted cooperation of rank and file, we can get nowhere in this campaign, but, with the whole hearted cooperation of the people we can achieve what will seem like miracles."

Asking the state highway patrol also "to go the limit" and the courts to cooperate in prosecuting offenders, the governor particularly requested that no mercy be shown drunken drivers.

The governor explained the new campaign will be a co-ordination of highway safety campaigns, drives for reducing industrial accidents, and home and school safety movements such as have been held in the past.

During the first seven months of the year, 29,510 automobile accidents were reported in Pennsylvania in which 1203 persons were killed and 26,687 were injured. This is an increase of 25 per cent over last year.

BOY SCOUT Activities

V-15 GETS NEW LIBRARY

Troop V-15 of the First Christian church this week had a troop library donated to it by Ralph Davies, Eagle Scout and active worker in Scouting.

Davies donated his entire collection of boys' books to the troop to form a nucleus of what is hoped will become a voluminous library.

Other troop members expect to add to it from time to time.

This week saw the close of a troop contest which for the past two months has kept the boys on their toes. Prizes were presented to the individual winner and also to the patrol with the highest number of points.

Bill Peters, individual winner, was awarded a sweater and the Pine Tree patrol received a Boy Scout pennant. Assistant Scoutmaster Ralph Montgomery had congratulated the boys and announced that another contest will begin in September.

The scout voiced their appreciation of the fine time they had at New Wilmington's Scout Day and discussed plans for another joint meeting in the near future with V-15 as hosts.

Opening Day Of "Diamond Jubilee Of Oil" Finds Titusville Jammed With Visitors

Four Day Celebration Will Be Biggest In History Of Oil Region, Is Belief

By A. C. MacINTYRE
International News Service Special Correspondent.

TITUSVILLE, Aug. 24.—Titusville, now accustomed to its festive garb, held out its arms in typical oil region hospitality to the hundreds of visitors who poured into the city last night and today for the first day of the four-day celebration of the diamond jubilee of oil, making the 75th anniversary of the "bringing in" of the first oil well by Colonel Edwin Laurentine Drake on August 27, 1859.

Down from the hills the cars came pouring into this little town sprawled in the valley of historic Oil creek, carrying some former residents, some oil company officails, some historically-minded Pennsylvanians and some just visitors.

Hundreds Attend.

And the oil region was ready for the invasion, as far south as Oil City, 16 miles down the winding Oil creek to the junction of the Allegheny river which was the shipping point for the oil craft in the early days of the "oil excitement", bunting and decorations greeted the eyes of the visitors. Traffic officers and information bureaus set up on the outskirts of Titusville directed the visitors and plainly marked signs to all the points of interest, informing them that Titusville was ready to welcome all.

A sightseeing tour to points of interest occupied the visitors this morning. They went to the Drake Well Memorial park, which will be formally turned over to the state on Monday with appropriate ceremonies; to the magnificent monument to Drake in Woodlawn cemetery, erected by the late H. H. Rogers, Standard Oil magnate, whose name as the donor was withheld until after his death; to Pithole and Petroleum Center, "ghost towns" of the regions which once were thriving cities, but have since been reclaimed by nature.

Exposition Opened.

The observance was officially opened this afternoon with the throwing open to the public of the eastern oil exposition, the display of oil field and allied equipment. A ball game furnished the entertainment for the athletically inclined and tonight Titusville will present one of its biggest efforts, the staging of the pageant, "Titusville, birthplace of the oil industry."

The high spot of the events tomorrow includes the mammoth parade which will eclipse anything ever seen here before and the diamond jubilee ball.

The city today is literally steeped in the historical lore which surrounds this valley, the cradle of the far-flung oil industry of today, with the issuance of a 68-page special edition by the Titusville Herald. So complete was the issue, so packed full of bits of oil region history, that it was gobbled up a few hours after it appeared on the streets.

Chicago Bus Company Removes NRA Blue Eagle Under Orders

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Buses of the Chicago Motor Coach Company whose A. F. of L. union drivers are on strike, today operated without NRA Blue Eagle insignia in compliance with a punative order of General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

Striking bus drivers, numbering only 74 of a possible 800, have demanded the reinstatement of 25 union members who were dismissed, the union charges, for union activity. Ritchie has refused and in a statement issued following the national recovery administration order declared that the company was willing to sacrifice the Blue Eagle rather than endanger the public by putting "inefficient" men back to work.

Margaret Henry Youngsters Are Guests Of Class

Forty-nine youngsters of the Margaret Henry home were made happy on Wednesday night at the G. L. Kelso farm on the Edenburg road, when they were the guests of the Light and Power Bible class of the Central Presbyterian church at a corn, wiener and marshmallow roast.

The boys and girls did justice to a prodigious amount of appetizing corn, wieners and marshmallows. The occasion, the first in some 14 years, will never be forgotten by the youngsters who enjoyed themselves immensely. Early in the evening the crowd present, particularly the kiddies, were thrilled with several airplane stunts performed by an unknown aviator.

G. E. Lyon, L. W. Schetrom and G. L. Kelso and family were kept busy for sometime buttering corn and making hot dogs. That the Margaret Henry home boys and girls like their corn, wieners and marshmallows was proved Wednesday night. Miss Margaret Henry, Mrs. Lida Green and Minnie Sheffler were the chaperones; Bernard Hanlon was on the transportation committee. Norman Kuhn of Beaver township furnished the bus and Howard Kennedy was the driver.

The farm was attractively decorated with Japanese lanterns. As the 49 youngsters left the farm they appeared very tired but happy.

Federal Surpluses To Be Distributed

Beef And Butter Will Be Given To Needy Citizens By Government

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24—Federal surplus relief corporation commodities will be distributed in Pennsylvania through six zone offices, Eric H. Biddle, state emergency relief administrator, announced today.

Retail grocers who wish to qualify as distributors of the surpluses, Biddle said, should communicate at once with the administrator of the office nearest them. Only beef and butter will be available for distribution during August.

Orders for the commodities being distributed will be sent to persons on relief on the basis of the relief requirements of each county. The recipient family then will order from his grocer who will requisition the district warehouse for the necessary supplies.

Among the zone offices and those in charge are:

Pittsburgh—C. N. Keiser, Allegheny county relief board: Erie—M. E. Seibert, 121 East Ninth street.

Cases of amebic dysentery which had their origin in Chicago last year, due to unsanitary food handling, were traced to more than 200 cities, including some in Canada.

(International News Service)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 24.—Mayors of two other Louisiana cities today swung their support in behind the city of New Orleans in its defiance of the Huey Long dictatorship.

The executives of Lake Charles and Alexandria declared their determination to resist any outside interference in "the inalienable right of the citizens of this country to cast their ballots in accordance with the dictates of their own conscience, without interference or dictation from any source."

NAZI RAILS REPORT TRAFFIC INCREASE

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—Unemployment relief will be featured at the German Radio Exhibition of 1934, which will be held in the Berlin Exhibition grounds from August 17 to the 26th.

The government, better to reach the public, is aiming at the installation of a radio in every German household. Toward that end, a cheap set capable of picking up all stations in Germany has been perfected. The set will be offered on such an easy installment plan that even the poorest householder can afford a radio.

Ingenuity Of P. O. Agents Solved Bomb Explosion

(International News Service)

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 24.—The complete solution of a case that tested the ingenuity of secret agents of the federal post office department has been reached, according to word received here today from J. K. Aldrich, United States chief postal inspector.

"Inside of three weeks," said Aldrich, "from the time a postal employe had his hands blown off in a bomb explosion which destroyed every trace of evidence and left him a hopeless cripple, the criminal was traced across two continents, and is in jail today, awaiting sentence."

After a clerk in the dead letter office unwrapped what appeared to be a book, but proved to be a bomb which exploded in his hands, there was nothing left of the package but tiny bits of blood smeared paper and a few dynamite caps. Inspectors were placed in charge at once and from that evidence had to build a case on which they could convict a man and send him to federal prison.

By piecing the minute scraps together, it was found that the bomb had been placed in a book, oddly enough "Uncle Tom's Cabin," hollowed out for that purpose. It had been mailed to an official in Czecko-Slovakia, the address, discerned with the greatest difficulty, indicated. Due to faulty stamping, it had never been delivered.

Department operatives in that country located the person to whom the bomb had been mailed. Inquiry showed that he knew a number of people in the coal mining district around Pittsburgh.

Armed with the names, agents took up the hunt. They checked every man on the list, who would have access to powder and caps, and pursuit soon narrowed down to three men. The handwriting of the three revealed that none of them had addressed the package and the case was at a deadlock.

Further investigation however, brought to light the fact that the landlady where one of them lived, had innocently addressed and mailed a package for him, when he claimed to be ill.

Thanks to her faulty mailing, a high official in Czechko-Slovakia lives today and the man who gave her the package to mail will spend the rest of his life in a federal prison.

Federal Surpluses To Be Distributed

Beef And Butter Will Be Given To Needy Citizens By Government

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24—Federal surplus relief corporation commodities will be distributed in Pennsylvania through six zone offices, Eric H. Biddle, state emergency relief administrator, announced today.

Retail grocers who wish to qualify as distributors of the surpluses, Biddle said, should communicate at once with the administrator of the office nearest them. Only beef and butter will be available for distribution during August.

Orders for the commodities being distributed will be sent to persons on relief on the basis of the relief requirements of each county. The recipient family then will order from his grocer who will requisition the district warehouse for the necessary supplies.

Among the zone offices and those in charge are:

Pittsburgh—C. N. Keiser, Allegheny county relief board: Erie—M. E. Seibert, 121 East Ninth street.

Cases of amebic dysentery which had their origin in Chicago last year, due to unsanitary food handling, were traced to more than 200 cities, including some in Canada.

Ingenuity Of P. O. Agents Solved Bomb Explosion

(International News Service)

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 24.—The complete solution of a case that tested the ingenuity of secret agents of the federal post office department has been reached, according to word received here today from J. K. Aldrich, United States chief postal inspector.

"Inside of three weeks," said Aldrich, "from the time a postal employe had his hands blown off in a bomb explosion which destroyed every trace of evidence and left him a hopeless cripple, the criminal was traced across two continents, and is in jail today, awaiting sentence."

After a clerk in the dead letter office unwrapped what appeared to be a book, but proved to be a bomb which exploded in his hands, there was nothing left of the package but tiny bits of blood smeared paper and a few dynamite caps. Inspectors were placed in charge at once and from that evidence had to build a case on which they could convict a man and send him to federal prison.

By piecing the minute scraps together, it was found that the bomb had been placed in a book, oddly enough "Uncle Tom's Cabin," hollowed out for that purpose. It had been mailed to an official in Czecko-Slovakia, the address, discerned with the greatest difficulty, indicated. Due to faulty stamping, it had never been delivered.

Department operatives in that country located the person to whom the bomb had been mailed. Inquiry showed that he knew a number of people in the coal mining district around Pittsburgh.

Armed with the names, agents took up the hunt. They checked every man on the list, who would have access to powder and caps, and pursuit soon narrowed down to three men. The handwriting of the three revealed that none of them had addressed the package and the case was at a deadlock.

Further investigation however, brought to light the fact that the landlady where one of them lived, had innocently addressed and mailed a package for him, when he claimed to be ill.

Thanks to her faulty mailing, a high official in Czechko-Slovakia lives today and the man who gave her the package to mail will spend the rest of his life in a federal prison.

Titusville Is Host To Thousands Today

Four Day Celebration Will Be Biggest In History Of Oil Region, Is Belief

By A. C. MacINTYRE
International News Service Special Correspondent.

TITUSVILLE, Aug. 24.—Titusville, now accustomed to its festive garb, held out its arms in typical oil region hospitality to the hundreds of visitors who poured into the city last night and today for the first day of the four-day celebration of the diamond jubilee of oil, making the 75th anniversary of the "bringing in" of the first oil well by Colonel Edwin Laurentine Drake on August 27, 1859.

Down from the hills the cars came pouring into this little town sprawled in the valley of historic Oil creek, carrying some former residents, some oil company officails, some historically-minded Pennsylvanians and some just visitors.

Hundreds Attend.

And the oil region was ready for the invasion, as far south as Oil City, 16 miles down the winding Oil creek to the junction of the Allegheny river which was the shipping point for the oil craft in the early days of the "oil excitement", bunting and decorations greeted the eyes of the visitors. Traffic officers and information bureaus set up on the outskirts of Titusville directed the visitors and plainly marked signs to all the points of interest, informing them that Titusville was ready to welcome all.

A sightseeing tour to points of interest occupied the visitors this morning. They went to the Drake Well Memorial park, which will be formally turned over to the state on Monday with appropriate ceremonies; to the magnificent monument to Drake in Woodlawn cemetery, erected by the late H. H. Rogers, Standard Oil magnate, whose name as the donor was withheld until afted his death; to Pithole and Petroleum Center, "ghost towns" of the regions which once were thriving cities, but have since been reclaimed by nature.

Exposition Opened.

The observance was officially opened this afternoon with the throwing open to the public of the eastern oil exposition, the display of oil field and allied equipment. A ball game furnished the entertainment for the athletically inclined and tonight Titusville will present one of its biggest efforts, the staging of the pageant, "Titusville, birthplace of the oil industry."

The high spot of the events tomorrow includes the mammoth parade which will eclipse anything ever seen here before and the diamond jubilee ball.

The city today is literally steeped in the historical lore which surrounds this valley, the cradle of the far-flung oil industry of today, with the issuance of a 68-page special edition by the Titusville Herald. So complete was the issue, so packed full of bits of oil region history, that it was gobbled up a few hours after it appeared on the streets.

There is not a single copy for sale here today.

Standard Oil Man Denies Report Of Helping Bolivia

Walter C. Teagle, Standard Oil Head Denies Helping Bolivia In Chaco War

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Walter C. Teagle, president, denied the charge that the Standard Oil company of New Jersey was assisting Bolivia against Paraguay in the Gran Chaco war. In a letter to the League of Nations made public today.

Teagle referred to a report from Buenos Aires that Paraguay would file a protest with the League of Nations alleging the American Oil company was aiding Bolivia.

Teagle said his company had acquired concessions in Bolivia but that the company "has no present or future plans or necessity for laying pipelines into or across the disputed territory."

Chicago Bus Company Removes NRA Blue Eagle Under Orders

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Buses of the Chicago Motor Coach Company whose A. F. of L. union drivers are on strike, today operated without NRA Blue Eagle insignia in compliance with a punative order of General Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

John A. Ritchie, president of the bus company, ordered all NRA insignia removed from the coaches last night when informed of General Johnson's order.

Striking bus drivers, numbering only 74 of a possible 800, have demanded the reinstatement of 25 union members who were dismissed, the union charges, for union activity. Ritchie has refused and in a statement issued following the national recovery administration order declared that the company was willing to sacrifice the Blue Eagle rather than endanger the public by putting "inefficient" men back to work.

Margaret Henry Youngsters Are Guests Of Class

Forty-nine youngsters of the Margaret Henry home were made happy on Wednesday night at the G. L. Kelso farm on the Edenburg road, when they were the guests of the Light and Power Bible class of the Central Presbyterian church at a corn, wiener and marshmallow roast.

The boys and girls did justice to a prodigious amount of appetizing corn, wieners and marshmallows. The occasion, the first in some 14 years, will never be forgotten by the youngsters who enjoyed themselves immensely. Early in the evening the crowd present, particularly the kiddies, were thrilled with several airplane stunts performed by an unknown aviator.

G. E. Lyon, L. W. Schetrom and G. L. Kelso and family were kept busy for sometime buttering corn and making hot dogs. That the Margaret Henry home boys and girls like their corn, wieners and marshmallows was proved Wednesday night. Miss Margaret Henry, Mrs. Lida Green and Minnie Sheffler were the chaperones; Bernard Hanlon was on the transportation committee. Norman Kuhn of Beaver township furnished the bus and Howard Kennedy was the driver.

Impetus Is Given To League Plans

Proposed American Liberty League Contains Names Of Many Prominent Men

See Party Lines In Future Wiped Out; Will Divide Country Into Two Camps

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—A good many politicians on both sides the fence see in the formation of the non-partisan "American Liberty League' the faint nucleus of a movement that ultimately may wipe out existing party lines and divide the country into two camps —conservative and liberal, for want of better designations.

The league itself has not particularly impressed the politicians. There are leagues—for this and leagues-for-that throughout the country. It is the names behind the American liberty league that impress political minds—Al Smith, John W. Davis, James W. Wadsworth, Nathan L. Miller, Irenee Du-Pont. They are names to conjure in politics.

Smith and Davis have been Democratic presidential candidates: Wadsworth and Miller have been high Republican office-holders: Du-Pont is in the first rank of American industrialists, and a political independent.

When men like these start out to form a league whose aims are patently if not avowedly political the politicians sit up and take notice.

Is Good Thing

"I think the league is a good thing," said Ickes. "Ever since 1912 I've been hoping we would have political parties divided upon real issues. I'd like to see all the progressives together and all the conservatives together. Then you'd always be facing your enemy and not worrying about what is happening behind your back."

The charter of the American Liberty League was adroitly phrased. Its avowed purpose is "to uphold the constitution of the United States" and to "protect property and personal rights." No one outside of an avowed communist could quarrel with that.

It is only when it is recalled that the NRA, the AAA and other new deal experiments have been attacked as unconstitutional in the courts and elsewhere that the real significance of the league becomes apparent.

Score New Deal

John W. Davis, only a few weeks ago called publicly in a speech in Virginia for a return to the "old deal" as against the "new deal."

Al Smith contemptuously referred to the Roosevelt 59 cent dollar as a "baloney dollar" and has repeatedly ridiculed "the professors" who have been instrumental in framing much of the new deal. As matters now stand, both Republican and Democratic parties are split between the conservatives on the one hand and the so-called progressives on the other. The Republicans have their LaFollettes, their Norrises, their Borahs, their Johnson: the Democrats have their Wheelers, Blacks, Costigans and Dills.

Differ as they will and do as to details on legislative matters, it probably is not too much to say there is more in common between these progressives of both parties than between either group and the party to which it is nominally affiliated. They see more or less eye to eye on taxation, and economic subjects in general.

CHILDREN PLAYED WITH ZEPPELIN BOMB

(International News Service)

LONDON—Two children narrowly escaped death when one of their playthings—a 22-pound unexploded Zeppelin bomb—was taken away from them by a former army officer.

The bomb is believed to have fallen into the River Len more than 16 years ago during a German air raid on London. The children found it in the sandy soil along the rivulet which was exposed when the water receded as a result of the present drought.

A former army officer noticed the children playing with the bomb, and recognizing its deadly nature, he took it from them and turned it over to ordinance officials who demolished it.

Two Weeks Before "Waterproofing" Job Will Be Done

Lathing, Plastering At New Post Office Advances; Lay Cellar Floor

Two weeks more will see the stone "waterproofing" job at the new post office on the Diamond almost finished, it was estimated today. Almost two-thirds of the work has been completed.

Down in the building's basement another "waterproofing" job, the waterproofing of the cellar floor, was under way. A new concrete floor was also being laid in the basement. That work will be completed by the end of next week.

Plastering work progressed up on the second floor today, while the lathing had been started on the main floor.

Workmen gave the granite stone trim about the bottom of the Washington street pillars a thorough cleaning today, improving the front side appearance of the building considerably.

Johnson To Stay With Reorganized NRA But Not Czar

Reorganization Plans To Be Announced By Roosevelt Within Short Time

DENIED FRICTION WITH OTHER HEADS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, dynamic recovery administrator, is going to remain with the reorganized NRA, but there was every indication today that it will not be in the czar-like role that he has heretofore played.

Johnson himself said today, after an hour's conference with President Roosevelt, that he planned to remain with the NRA after its reorganization, which will be announced from the summer White House at Hyde Park in about two weeks.

With his customary vigor, Gen. Johnson denied as he left the White House all reports of a rift between himself, Donald R. Richberg, Secretary of Labor Perkins or any others connected with the recovery program.

"The only controversy has been over the time for the reorganized set-up to go into effect," he said.

"And the only reorganization that is under discussion is the plan I presented for a committee to administer the NRA."

He categorically denied any friction between himself and Richberg or between himself and Miss Perkins.

CHILDREN READ COMICS FIRST IN DAILY PAPER

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass.—"What constitutes the best attraction for children readers of newspapers?"

This question was answered by Miss Marian Lee Winkler, Roslindale, graduate student of Boston University, after an extensive study.

The answer! An average child turns to the comics first, then radio, later peruses the news and last of all to sports. Finally as sort of a resume your average child briefly runs through the whole volume.

Two Slayers In Kentucky Die In Electric Chair

One Man Waits Hour And Fifteen Minutes While They Fix Electric Generator

(International News Service)

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Aug. 24.—Two doomed slayers were put to death in the electric chair at the state penitentiary here today in a double electrocution marked by the spectacular breakdown of the death machinery.

Will Chaney, 41, negro from Louisville, was in the chair and had been subjected to two bolts of current when the equipment stalled. Physicians ordered a third charge of electricity into the negro's body but mechanics were unable to repair the machinery in time and he was pronounced dead without it.

For an hour and 15 minutes electricians tinkered with the stalled generator while George W. Tincher, 37, of Sharpsburg, Ky., waited patiently to "go any time," he said when apprised of the delay.

Finally at 1:20 o'clock Tincher was strapped in and at 1:40 o'clock was pronounced dead.

Hopkins Silent About Letter To Gifford Pinchot

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, declined today to make public a letter to Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, outlining his attitude toward the relief situation in that state.

It has been reported that Hopkins threatened to cut off Pennsylvania grants on Sept. 1 unless the state provided additional funds.

Informed that protests have been made against a special session of the legislature in Pennsylvania because of the $500,000 expense, Hopkins said:

"You spend $500,000 in a political campaign and no one complains. I think the unemployed are entitled to as much consideration."

DISCARDED LILY BULB STARTS NEW LIFE

(International News Service)

A year ago last fall, Mrs. O. D. Clark emptied into her garden a number of flower pots of dry earth, one of which contained an old lily bulb.

Throughout the winter the bulb lay in the garden, and as the spring thaws came, worked itself into the ground. It started growing again and Mrs. Clark, noticing it, put it back into a flower pot. Now Mrs. Clark is proudly exhibiting a plant four feet, four inches tall, and bearing 12 blossoms.

Hopkins Gives New Ideas On Relief Program

Federal Relief Administrator Home From Extensive European Tour

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. — A sweeping program of social insurance, work relief for the unemployed, and expansion of the social service features of the "new deal", was proposed today by Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, just returned from an extensive European trip.

Will Urge Revision

Revision of the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill will be urged by Hopkins on the ground that it does not cover the field.

Hopkins asserted that "you can't get housing done at nine percent," the indicated cost under the federal housing administration.

"I saw nothing in Europe that could be transported bodily," said Hopkins. "Every unemployment insurance scheme in Europe is bankrupt. On the other hand no one in Europe will consider abolishing unemployment insurance. The practical aspect of the British dole is that the unemployed get a period of benefits.

"I have come to believe that we have got to have a cash benefit in this country. I don't favor having a cash benefit for say fifty weeks—for idleness does something to a man.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'd put them to work."

Commissioners Given Warning

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Letters were in the mails today to county commissioners of the state from Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish reiterating his warnings that there are only two legal reasons for assisting voters to cast their ballots, inability to read and specific physical disability.

The letter set forth in detail the penalties provided for violation in assistance of voters.

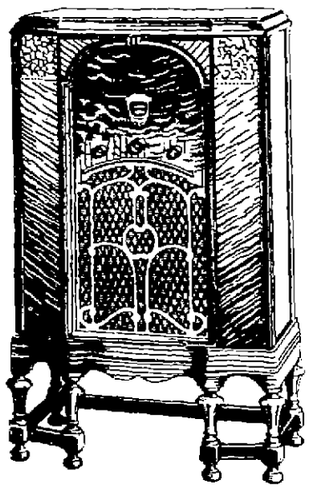

DEER HORNS LOCKED

(International News Service)

COVE, Ore.—Two pair of deer horns locked together in a death grip were discovered recently in the vicinity of North Powder, according to a report reaching here. Discovery of the horns indicated a battle to the death between two buck deer. W. E. Barnett, forest ranger of this section, said that he never had made such a find in the 22 years he has been patroling the forests.

Impetus Is Given To League Plans

Proposed American Liberty League Contains Names Of Many Prominent Men

See Party Lines In Future Wiped Out; Will Divide Country Into Two Camps

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24—A good many politicians on both sides the fence see in the formation of the non-partisan "American Liberty League' the faint nucleus of a movement that ultimately may wipe out existing party lines and divide the country into two camps—conservative and liberal, for want of better designations.

The league itself has not particularly impressed the politicians. There are leagues—for this and leagues-for-that throughout the country. It is the names behind the American liberty league that impress political minds—Al Smith, John W. Davis, James W. Wadsworth, Nathan L. Miller, Irenee Dupont. They are names to conjure in politics.

Smith and Davis have been Democratic presidential candidates: Wadsworth and Miller have been high Republican office-holders: Dupont is in the first rank of American industrialists, and a political independent.

When men like these start out to form a league whose aims are patently if not avowedly political the politicians sit up and take notice.

Is Good Thing

"I think the league is a good thing," said Ickes. "Ever since 1912 I've been hoping we would have political parties divided upon real issues. I'd like to see all the progressives together and all the conservatives together. Then you'd always be facing your enemy and not worrying about what is happening behind your back."

The charter of the American Liberty League was adroitly phrased. Its avowed purpose is "to uphold the constitution of the United States" and to "protect property and personal rights." No one outside of an avowed communist could quarrel with that.

It is only when it is recalled that the NRA, the AAA and other new deal experiments have been attacked as unconstitutional in the courts and elsewhere that the real significance of the league becomes apparent.

Score New Deal

John W. Davis, only a few weeks ago called publicly in a speech in Virginia for a return to the "old deal" as against the "new deal."

Al Smith contemptuously referred to the Roosevelt 59 cent dollar as a "baloney dollar" and has repeatedly ridiculed "the professors" who have been instrumental in framing much of the new deal. As matters now stand, both Republican and Democratic parties are split between the conservatives on the one hand and the so-called progressives on the other. The Republicans have their LaFollettes, their Norrises, their Borahs, their Johnson: the Democrats have their Wheelers, Blacks, Costigans and Dills.

Differ as they will and do as to details on legislative matters, it probably is not too much to say there is more in common between these progressives of both parties than between either group and the party to which it is nominally affiliated. They see more or less eye to eye on taxation, and economic subjects in general.

CHILDREN PLAYED WITH ZEPPELIN BOMB

(International News Service)

LONDON—Two children narrowly escaped death when one of their playthings—a 22-pound unexploded Zeppelin bomb—was taken away from them by a former army officer.

The bomb is believed to have fallen into the River Len more than 16 years ago during a German air raid on London. The children found it in the sandy soil along the rivulet which was exposed when the water receded as a result of the present drought.

A former army officer noticed the children playing with the bomb, and recognizing its deadly nature, he took it from them and turned it over to ordinance officials who demolished it.

It has been reported that Hopkins threatened to cut off Pennsylvania grants on Sept. 1 unless the state provided additional funds.

Hopkins Gives New Ideas On Relief Program

Federal Relief Administrator Home From Extensive European Tour

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. — A sweeping program of social insurance, work relief for the unemployed, and expansion of the social service features of the "new deal", was proposed today by Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, just returned from an extensive European trip.

Will Urge Revision

Revision of the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill will be urged by Hopkins on the ground that it does not cover the field.

Hopkins asserted that "you can't get housing done at nine percent," the indicated cost under the federal housing administration.

"I saw nothing in Europe that could be transported bodily," said Hopkins. "Every unemployment insurance scheme in Europe is bankrupt. On the other hand no one in Europe will consider abolishing unemployment insurance. The practical aspect of the British dole is that the unemployed get a period of benefits.

"I have come to believe that we have got to have a cash benefit in this country. I don't favor having a cash benefit for say fifty weeks—for idleness does something to a man.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'd put them to work."

Commissioners Given Warning

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Letters were in the mails today to county commissioners of the state from Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish reiterating his warnings that there are only two legal reasons for assisting voters to cast their ballots, inability to read and specific physical disability.

The letter set forth in detail the penalties provided for violation in assistance of voters.

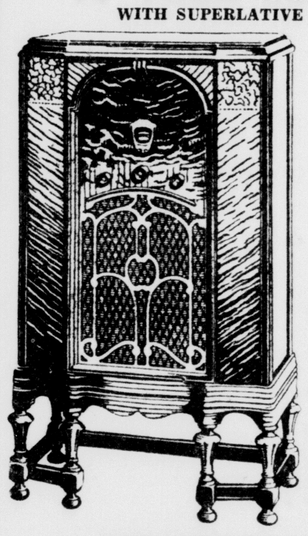

DEER HORNS LOCKED

(International News Service)

COVE, Ore.—Two pair of deer horns locked together in a death grip were discovered recently in the vicinity of North Powder, according to a report reaching here. Discovery of the horns indicated a battle to the death between two buck dcer. W. E. Barnett, forest ranger of this section, said that he never had made such a find in the 22 years he has been patroling the forests.

Hopkins Gives New Ideas On Relief Program

Federal Relief Administrator Home From Extensive European Tour

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24. — A sweeping program of social insurance, work relief for the unemployed, and expansion of the social service features of the "new deal", was proposed today by Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, just returned from an extensive European trip.

Will Urge Revision

Revision of the Wagner-Lewis unemployment insurance bill will be urged by Hopkins on the ground that it does not cover the field.

Hopkins asserted that "you can't get housing done at nine percent," the indicated cost under the federal housing administration.

"I saw nothing in Europe that could be transported bodily," said Hopkins. "Every unemployment insurance scheme in Europe is bankrupt. On the other hand no one in Europe will consider abolishing unemployment insurance. The practical aspect of the British dole is that the unemployed get a period of benefits.

"I have come to believe that we have got to have a cash benefit in this country. I don't favor having a cash benefit for say fifty weeks—for idleness does something to a man.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'd put them to work."

Commissioners Given Warning

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—Letters were in the mails today to county commissioners of the state from Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish reiterating his warnings that there are only two legal reasons for assisting voters to cast their ballots, inability to read and specific physical disability.

The letter set forth in detail the penalties provided for violation in assistance of voters.

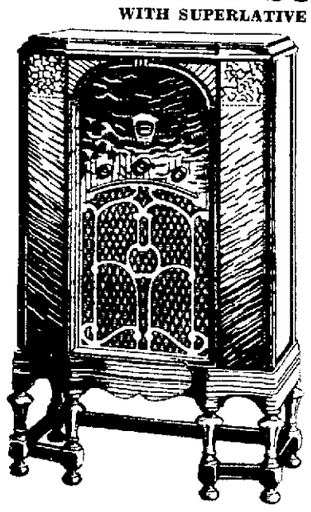

DEER HORNS LOCKED

(International News Service)

COVE, Ore.—Two pair of deer horns locked together in a death grip were discovered recently in the vicinity of North Powder, according to a report reaching here. Discovery of the horns indicated a battle to the death between two buck deer. W. E. Barnett, forest ranger of this section, said that he never had made such a find in the 22 years he has been patroling the forests.

Gambling Leader In New Orleans Without Friends

Neither Huey Long Nor Mayor Walmsley Claim To Know A. G. Rickerfor

By ROBERT C. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—The current mystery in Louisiana's political comic opera today was to whom New Orleans reputed lottery king swears allegiance.

Neither Huey P. Long, whose ambition is to crush his enemies in the New Orleans "city ring", nor Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, who would like nothing bztter than to topple the kingfish from his dictatorship, know him.

They said so loudly and with considerable care for emphasis.

Each was positive, however, that the alleged kingpin of one of New Orleans major gambling rackets is the bosom friend and companion-in-arms of the other.

As for A. G. "Freddie" Rickerfor, the man Huey and Semmes were so anxious to appear not to be on speaking terms with he doesn't know them either.

"I'm in the oil business, not politics," Rickerfor said. "I've got nothing against Long and I've nothing against Walmsley, and who I vote for is my own business."

Owned Beer Parlor.

The subject of Rickerfor's political affiliations was about as regular as a spinster at a debutante's coming out party because gambling is the Sarajevo of the 1934 battle of New Orleans.

It was used as the excuse for placing the state militia on duty in New Orleans, of summoning the legislature into special session to pass a series of measures that gives the Long-dominated state administration control of elections and sets up the Kingfish as a political dictator with extraordinary powers.

FROM PIGG TO PAGE

(International News Service)

DENVER—Because his friends called him up at all hours to ask him if he didn't want to roll in the mud, Morris F. Pigg of Denver asked the district court to change his name to Page. Judge Robert W. Steele granted his request and also that of his brother, Glenn O. Pigg, for a similar change.

CAUGHT VACCINATION FROM HER CHILD

(International News Service)

HANOVER, Pa., Aug. 24.—Her contact with one of her children who had been vaccinated resulted in a similar vaccination for Mrs. John Bechtel but not in the left arm, as is the custom. It developed in her left eye.

Mrs. Bechtel contacted the serum while attending the child. Later she used her finger to brush her eye. Subsequently, the eye began to swell and became inflamed.

She was taken to the hospital where the infection was declared to have developed from the serum. Her vision was not impaired.

TENDER HEART SENT HIM TO HOSPITAL

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—The strong but tender heart of Patrolman Merle H. Foust, 27, said by physicians to be the possessor of a perfect physique when he became a member of the police force, sent him to the hosptial for treatment.

It all hapuened because Foust rescued a stray dog from a driving rain and carried it home. His pet dog, apparently irritated at the encroachment, flew at the invader and the patrolman was severely bitten on the hand as he sought to separate the combatants.

One of his customers started to fry some of them, dumping into a saucer the contents of the first one she cracked open.

The white rolled out, with a smaller soft-shell egg inside, but no yoke. Out of curiosity, she cut open the second egg. Another soft-shell egg appeared, still the yolk was absent.

GIRL'S TEMPERATURE HIGHEST RECORD

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 24.—The highest temperature recorded in the history of the Johnstown hospitals was taken in the case of Margaret Jane Lokey, nine, of Revloc, who was admitted to the Memorial hospital suffering from a puncture wound of the right leg.

Cellutis developed and on the second day the girl was registering a temperature of 111 before she died, literally "burned to death".

Dusan's father emigrated to America after his son was born, 35 years ago. During the war Mihajlo, who served in the American army, lost connection with his family.

Gambling Leader In New Orleans Without Friends

Neither Huey Long Nor Mayor Walmsley Claim To Know A. G. Rickerfor

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24.—The current mystery in Louisiana's political comic opera today was to whom New Orleans reputed lottery king swears allegiance.

Neither Huey P. Long, whose ambition is to crush his enemies in the New Orleans "city ring", nor Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, who would like nothing better than to topple the kingfish from his dictatorship, know him.

They said so loudly and with considerable care for emphasis.

Each was positive, however, that the alleged kingpin of one of New Orleans major gambling rackets is the bosom friend and companion-in-arms of the other.

As for A. G. "Freddie" Rickerfor, the man Huey and Semmes were so anxious to appear not to be on speaking terms with he doesn't know them either.

"I'm in the oil business, not politics," Rickerfor said. "I've got nothing against Long and I've nothing against Walmsley, and who I vote for is my own business."

Owned Beer Parlor.

The subject of Rickerfor's political affiliations was about as regular as a spinster at a debutante's coming out party because gambling is the Sarajevo of the 1934 battle of New Orleans.

It was used as the excuse for placing the state militia on duty in New Orleans, of summoning the legislature into special session to pass a series of measures that gives the Long-dominated state administration control of elections and sets up the Kingfish as a political dictator with extraordinary powers.

Westfield Church Sunday Services

The Sunday services at the Westfield Presbyterian church, Mt. Jackson, will be held, as usual with Sabbath school at 10:30 and preaching at 11 a. m. with the Rev. James M. Fisher of Marion, Ohio, filling the pulpit.

The Christian Endeavor service will take place at 8 p. m.

FROM PIGG TO PAGE

(International News Service)

DENVER—Because his friends called him up at all hours to ask him if he didn't want to roll in the mud, Morris F. Pigg of Denver asked the district court to change his name to Page. Judge Robert W. Steele granted his request and also that of his brother, Glenn O. Pigg, for a similar change.

CAUGHT VACCINATION FROM HER CHILD

(International News Service)

HANOVER, Pa., Aug. 24.—Her contact with one of her children who had been vaccinated resulted in a similar vaccination for Mrs. John Bechtel but not in the left arm, as is the custom. It developed in her left eye.

Mrs. Bechtel contacted the serum while attending the child. Later she used her finger to brush her eye. Subsequently, the eye began to swell and became inflamed.

She was taken to the hospital where the infection was declared to have developed from the serum. Her vision was not impaired.

TENDER HEART SENT HIM TO HOSPITAL

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—The strong but tender heart of Patrolman Merle H. Foust, 27, said by physicians to be the possessor of a perfect physique when he became a member of the police force, sent him to the hospital for treatment.

It all happened because Foust rescued a stray dog from a driving rain and carried it home. His pet dog, apparently irritated at the encroachment, flew at the invader and the patrolman was severely bitten on the hand as he sought to separate the combatants.

THIS IS BETTER THAN BAKER'S DOZEN

(International News Service)

One of his customers started to fry some of them, dumping into a saucer the contents of the first one she cracked open.

The white rolled out, with a smaller soft-shell egg inside, but no yoke. Out of curiosity, she cut open the second egg. Another soft-shell egg appeared, still the yolk was absent.

GIRL'S TEMPERATURE HIGHEST RECORD

(International News Service)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 24.—The highest temperature recorded in the history of the Johnstown hospitals was taken in the case of Margaret Jane Lokey, nine, of Revloc, who was admitted to the Memorial hospital suffering from a puncture wound of the right leg.

Cellutis developed and on the second day the girl was registering a temperature of 111 before she died, literally "burned to death".

FIGHT FOR GOVERNORSHIP AT CALIFORNIA PRIMARIES

A closely contested race for the nomination for governor of California will be narrowed to two candidates Aug. 28; in the primaries. Leading Republican candidates are Frank F. Merriam, acting governor since the death of Gov. James Rolph, Jr.; C. C. Young, former governor, and John R. Quinn, former national commander of the American Legion. Prominent among Democratic candidates are Upton Sinclair, the noted author; George Creel, writer and former World war publicity chief, and Justus S. Wardell, San Francisco editor who was a candidate in 1926.

RICHES BRING HIM 200 MARRIAGE OFFERS

(International News Service)

SKOPLJE, Jugoslavia.—A poor shoemaker's assistant, Dusan Jovanovic, received more than 200 offers of marriage, when it became known that he had unexpectedly inherited $130,000.

Dusan was recently advised by the immigration bureau that he was sole heir to the estate of his father, Mihajlo, who died in 1930 in Whipple, Arizona. Dusan's father emigrated to America after his son was born, 35 years ago. During the war Mihajlo, who served in the American army, lost connection with his family.

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS WELCOMED BACK

(International News Service)

BUTLER, Pa.—If you violate the traffic regulations of the city of Butler for the first time you'll be welcomed back for subsequent visits. Courtesy cards just issued by Mayor George M. Thompson reads as follows:

"You have violated a traffic ordinance of this city. We note you are a visitor. As a measure of safety, please observe our traffic rules. We hope you enjoy your visit here. Come again."

News Service Man Takes Solo Flight

An International News Service staff correspondent, J. William Theis, member of the Pittsburgh branch organization, yesterday completed his dual instruction under Pilot Findley Wilson at the New Castle airport and ventured up for his first solo flight.

Mr. Theis has been reporting weekly at the airport for instruction.

LOSES BOTH LEGS BUT STILL SWIMS

(International News Service)

COLUMBIA, Pa., Aug. 24.—Despite the loss of both legs, Edwin Hollister, 30, who was maimed under the wheels of a freight train two years ago, has not been deprived of his favorite sport—swimming.

Still retaining the same speed which won for him the amateur cross-river championship shortly before the accident, Hollister won several competitions swimming the mile and a half distance between Columbia and Wrightsville.

Drunken Drivers Who Kill Pedestrians May Get 20-Year Sentence

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—State officials today gave unstinted support to the new policy of the Lackawanna county district attorney's office in charging drunken drivers with second degree murder.

"I think it is a good idea and certainly worth a try in an effort to halt the increase in drunken driving," declared W. W. Matthews, chief of the division of safety in the Department of Revenue.

No less enthusiastic was Captain Wilson C. Price, head of the highway patrol, who said:

"Some sort of drastic action must be taken. A few second degree convictions ought to make people think a long time before taking the wheel of an auto while intoxicated."

Heavy Penalty

Ordinarily, drivers involved in fatal accidents where they are shown to have been negligent, are charged with involuntary manslaughter. Conviction on an involuntary manslaughter charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and $1,000 fine. Second degree murder, however, carries an indeterminate prison term up to 20 years.

The Scranton case admittedly is a test action. It was started by Assistant District Attorney Harold B. Edwards on the strength of a recent supreme court decision that drivers who show wanton disregard for the consequences of their driving can be found guilty of second degree murder.

Files Test Case

Edwards plans to seek an indictment of second degree murder against Raymond Olmstead, 47, of Scranton, who was committed to jail without bail by a justice of the peace yesterday for allegedly driving while intoxicated, when his automobile left the highway August 15, killing Richard J. Shields, also of Scranton, one of the occupants.

Figures of the state division of safety show startling increase in accidents resulting from drunken driving this year over last year. In the first seven months of 1934 drunken drivers were involved in 36 fatal accidents and 625 non-fatal accidents, as compared with 23 fatal accidents and 625 non-fatal accidents during a similar period last year. For the entire year 1933 drunken drivers figured in 52 fatal and 717 non-fatal crashes.

FATHER AND SON BOILED ALIVE BY BANDITS
(International News Service)

PEIPING, Aug. 24 —The public safety bureau of Chekiang province is on the trail of a gang of armed robbers which brutally boiled a father and son alive.

The outlaws entered the victims' home at dusk and demanded money Ignoring the pleas of poverty, the gang pushed the old man and his offspring into a kitchen cauldron, filled it with water and lighted the fire.

Screams brought neighbors who fished out the scalded pair. Help came too late, and both men subsequently died.

There is no reason why a man of 40 should not retain the vigor of 20, and it is quite possible for the man of 60 to be as well and useful as the average man of 40.

Yanks Gain On Detroit Tigers

PIRATES WIN FROM PHILLIES

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—It's an old saying in the sport that a champion need not have everything but he must have something. And that something he has is class. And class may cover a multitude of virtues—skill, speed, cleverness, punch, stamina and heart.

He may lack in some of these things but one thing he must have and that's heart. And whether you are willing to admit the greatness of the Giants, at least you must admit they have got heart and plenty of it.

Witnes what they did yesterday in that all important game against the Cardinals—a game which may very well have been the one that settled the pennant.

They moved into St. Louis with a good but not necessarily unbeatable lead. The Cards were primed and waiting. They had the Dean boys ready to shoot and the Dean boys between them had beaten the Giants eight times without a defeat.

Giants Top Cards.

In this emergency, the Giants naturally led with their ace, Carl Hubbell, but the Cards went into the ninth leading, 3 to 2.

But here the Giants showed their fighting spirit. Two men got aboard and then up stepped Joe Moore and socked one for a homer and the Giants won, 5 to 3.

Now the Giants are six and a half games ahead of the Cubs and seven ahead of the Cards.

The Cubs blew one to the Dodgers, 9 to 4, and the Pirates came from behind to lick the Phillies, 6 to 5.

Yanks Gain Game.

The Yankees tightened up the American league race by trimming the Indians while the Tigers were dropping their second straight to the Senators and the New York entry is now only four games to the bad. However, the Tigers, like the Giants, finish at home, and they are more than likely to win.

Ruffing held the Indians to six hits and won, 9 to 2. Bob Burke held the Tigers to five hits and won, 3 to 1. Old Ted Lyons of the White Sox held the Red Sox to six hits and won, 7 to 2.

And Buck Newsom of the Browns spread six hits among the A's while fanning ten of them and waltzed in, 3 to 0.

THE SPORT PATROL

By JOHN J. MAHER, JR.

ASSUMED NAMES

Why do prize fighters use fictitious names in the ring? Probably the primary reason is because it has become customary. Boxers revert to this custom through a desire to have a name of one of the old-time heroes, because their real name is difficult to pronounce, and for other reasons. At any rate, there are many fighters whom the fans would not recognize under their real names.

The Phillipinos generally change their names, and for a good reason. They usually have a cognomen which is both difficult to pronounce and hard to get on a single line of a poster.

Speedy Dado, the Manilla featherweight, was born Deoasado Pesado. Johnny Datto, who is familiar to many local fans, was named Juan Pastrano. Ferdinand Opoa is the correct name for Young Tommy, clever featherweight.

Many of the Italian fighters change their names. Some of them assume the name of a former ring hero. Joseph Loscatzo, flyweight titleholder, fights as Midget Wolgast. Young Terry of New Jersey is really Sammy Pane. Vince and Joe Dundee should be called Lazzaro.

Other sons of Italy have abbreviated or simplified their own names for ring purposes. Johnny Farinacci thought Farr looked better on the posters. Kid Francis is Francis Bonaguri. Sammy Fuller didn't like the sound of Sabino Perullo. Lew Massey was born Louis Masuacci.

The Jewish lads are also very fond of tricky names. Jackie (Kid) Berg thought his home town of London, England would prefer that name of Judha Bergman. Correctly speaking, Jackie Fields is John Finkelstein. The famous Benny Leonard's real name is Benjamin Leinert. When King Levinsky recently was married, the license read: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krakow. Barney Ross is Bernard Rosofsky.

The alias in the ring is used by all races; not just by the Jews, Italians and Phillipinos. The veteran Eddie Anderson is really Edward Fitzpatrick. Battling Bozo, the Birmingham clown, thought the name Curtis J. Hambright was all right for an executive office but not for a boxer. Young Corbett III used to rattle off Ralph Capabianca Giordano when he went to school.

Kid Chocolate used to be known in Havana as Eligio Sardinias. Baby Joe Gans had an appropriate original name, Gerald Slaughter, but liked the other better. Our old friend, Henry Firpo, is called Henry Hintleman by his relatives.

Battling Gizzy, the Donora slugger, was named Mike Urilli. The birth certificate of George Godfrey, the former Negro heavyweight contender, read Feab S. Williams. The record book discloses that Ben Jeby is a simplification of Morris Jebaltowsky. Tod Morgan, the former junior lightweight champ, is a Scotchman named Bert Pilkington.

Eddie Ran is of French and Polish descent and was named Edouard Fitzmajster. Jack Sharkey, the Lithuanian whom Carnera defeated for the heavyweight crown, is John Coccoskey. Jose Perez came up from Mexico and assumed the American name, Battling Shaw. King Tut is of Scotch-Irish descent and is Henry Tuttle by birth.

SPORT SIDELIGHTS

Ban Johnson and Charley Comiskey, co-founders of the American League, were for many years very close friends. However, in late years a rift developed which parted the pair. One of the incidents, advanced as the cause of the breach, occurred when the late Fielder Jones managed the White Sox.

Chicago was crippled by injuries at the time, yet when Jones and another player argued with the umpire, they were suspended by President Johnson. Ban had just returned from a fishing trip and sent to Owner Comiskey of the Sox two fine fish with his compliments. When Charley received the gift he retorted: "What does the big stiff expect me to do with the fish? Play them in the outfield."

Kelly Wins July Handicap Event

The match was one of the most interesting played at the Muny course during the tournament. Kelly, according to his handicap rating, gave Smith five strokes, which were used up during the regular eighteen hole match. After that the two men were playing even, and it was a nip and tuck affair, until the 22nd hole, when Smith got into trouble by hooking his drive behind a tree on the No. 4 hole. He made a valiant effort to overcome this obstacle, but could not.

St. Marys-St. Josephs Retain Leadership In Church League

Saints Defeat Highland U. P. To Keep Lead, First Presbyterian "A" Climbing

St. Marys-St. Josephs church golfing team remains in the lead one half a point in the New Castle church golfing league, and with the season ending next Thursday night the matches will be important. The Castle Hills course last night witnessed some blistering golf, with par being endangered by at least a half a dozen of the better known golfers.

The First Presbyterian "A" team plays the First Christians next week and the St. Marys-St. Josephs will play the First Presbyterian "B" team. These two matches will be watched very closely and will attract considerable attention. Captain V. Arthur Smith has promised to have the Castle Hills course in first class shape for the important matches next week. The Castle Hills course is rouning into shape nicely after the severe hot season.

Lewis-Fisher Medalists

Medalist honors last evening were divided between Sam Lewis, veteran golfing star of the First Christian team, and the sensational young golfer Joe Fisher of the First Presbyterian "B" team. Lewis and Fisher both turned in brilliant cards of 37 for the first nine at Castle Hills. Other low scores were—Hackett Kennedy with a brilliant 38 score, and Chris Clarke with 39, Jim VonDereau with 39 and Charles Philip "Bugs" Walther with a scorching 39. Bill Long shot a 40, Russ Magill had a 41, Mont Magill had a 42 and Bud Long turned in a 42. Ralph Davis had a 41, Fulton E. Magill had a 41 on the back nine. League Golfers Have Fine Party

City League Golfers Play Special Match At Muny Course Last Evening

In a special match at the Municipal Course last evening, the golfers of the City League were paired up on different teams, and struggled through from five to nine holes to determine who was the best.

Due to the fact that some of the golfers came late and did not get started on time, all the matches were not finished, and the final result has not yet been tabulated by the league officials.

After the match, the players repaired to the club house, where they enjoyed a fine lunch with refreshments. Councilman Joe Alexander was present as a special guest of the golfers.

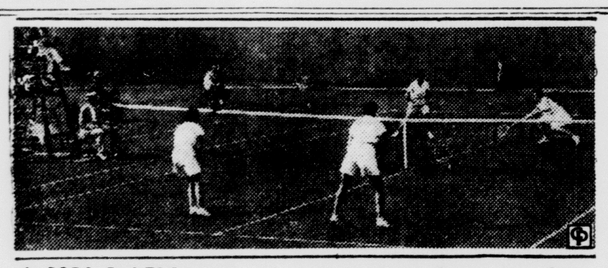

It is planned to have another match next Thursday evening, when the league officials hope to get the event started earlier, to determine who the champion golfers are.

Yanks Gain On Detroit Tigers

PIRATES WIN FROM PHILLIES

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—It's an old saying in the sport that a champion need not have everything but he must have something. And that something he has is class. And class may cover a multitude of virtues—skill, speed, cleverness, punch, stamina and heart.

He may lack in some of these things but one thing he must have and that's heart. And whether you are willing to admit the greatness of the Giants, at least you must admit they have got heart and plenty of it.

Witnes what they did yesterday in that all important game against the Cardinals—a game which may very well have been the one that settled the pennant.

They moved into St. Louis with a good but not necessarily unbeatable lead. The Cards were primed and waiting. They had the Dean boys ready to shoot and the Dean boys between them had beaten the Giants eight times without a defeat.

Giants Top Cards.

In this emergency, the Giants naturally led with their ace, Carl Hubbell, but the Cards went into the ninth leading, 3 to 2.

But here the Giants showed their fighting spirit. Two men got aboard and then up stepped Joe Moore and socked one for a homer and the Giants won, 5 to 3.

Now the Giants are six and a half games ahead of the Cubs and seven ahead of the Cards.

The Cubs blew one to the Dodgers, 9 to 4, and the Pirates came from behind to lick the Phillies, 6 to 5.

Yanks Gain Game.

The Yankees tightened up the American league race by trimming the Indians while the Tigers were dropping their second straight to the Senators and the New York entry is now only four games to the bad. However, the Tigers, like the Giants, finish at home, and they are more than likely to win.

Ruffing held the Indians to six hits and won, 9 to 2. Bob Burke held the Tigers to five hits and won, 3 to 1. Old Ted Lyons of the White Sox held the Red Sox to six hits and won, 7 to 2.

And Buck Newsom of the Browns spread six hits among the A's while fanning ten of them and waltzed in, 3 to 0.

THE SPORT PATROL

ASSUMED NAMES

Why do prize fighters use fictitious names in the ring? Probably the primary reason is because it has become customary. Boxers revert to this custom through a desire to have a name of one of the old-time heroes, because their real name is difficult to pronounce, and for other reasons. At any rate, there are many fighters whom the fans would not recognize under their real names.

The Phillipinos generally change their names, and for a good reason. They usually have a cognomen which is both difficult to pronounce and hard to get on a single line of a poster.

Speedy Dado, the Manilla featherweight, was born Deoasado Pesado. Johnny Datto, who is familiar to many local fans, was named Juan Pastrano. Ferdinand Opoa is the correct name for Young Tommy, clever featherweight.

Many of the Italian fighters change their names. Some of them assume the name of a former ring hero. Joseph Loscatzo, flyweight titleholder, fights as Midget Wolgast. Young Terry of New Jersey is really Sammy Pane. Vince and Joe Dundee should be called Lazzaro.

Other sons of Italy have abbreviated or simplified their own names for ring purposes. Johnny Farinacci thought Farr looked better on the posters. Kid Francis is Francis Bonaguri. Sammy Fuller didn't like the sound of Sabino Ferullo. Lew Massey was born Louis Masuacci.

The Jewish lads are also very fond of tricky names. Jackie (Kid) Berg thought his home town of London, England would prefer that name of Judha Bergman. Correctly speaking, Jackie Fields is John Finkelstein. The famous Benny Leonard's real name is Benjamin Leinert. When King Levinsky recently was married, the license read: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krakow. Barney Ross is Bernard Rosofsky.

The alias in the ring is used by all races; not just by the Jews, Italians and Phillipinos. The veteran Eddie Anderson is really Edward Fitzpatrick. Battling Bozo, the Birmingham clown, thought the name Curtis J. Hambright was all right for an executive office but not for a boxer. Young Corbett III used to rattle off Ralph Capabianca Giordano when he went to school.

Kid Chocolate used to be known in Havana as Eligio Sardinias. Baby Joe Gans had an appropriate original name, Gerald Slaughter, but liked the other better. Our old friend, Henry Firpo, is called Henry Hintleman by his relatives.

Battling Gizzy, the Donora slugger, was named Mike Urilli. The birth certificate of George Godfrey, the former Negro heavyweight contender, read Feab S. Williams. The record book discloses that Ben Jeby is a simplification of Morris Jebaltowsky. Tod Morgan, the former junior lightweight champ, is a Scotchman named Bert Pilkington.

Eddie Ran is of French and Polish descent and was named Edouard Fitzmajster. Jack Sharkey, the Lithuanian whom Carnera defeated for the heavyweight crown, is John Coccoskey. Jose Perez came up from Mexico and assumed the American name, Battling Shaw. King Tut is of Scotch-Irish descent and is Henry Tuttle by birth.

SPORT SIDELIGHTS

Ban Johnson and Charley Comiskey, co-founders of the American League, were for many years very close friends. However, in late years a rift developed which parted the pair. One of the incidents, advanced as the cause of the breach, occurred when the late Fielder Jones managed the White Sox.

Chicago was crippled by injuries at the time, yet when Jones and another player argued with the umpire, they were suspended by President Johnson. Ban had just returned from a fishing trip and sent to Owner Comiskey of the Sox two fine fish with his compliments. When Charley received the gift he retorted: "What does the big stiff expect me to do with the fish? Play them in the outfield."

Eddie Kelly, diminutive Muny player, was forced to the 22nd hole by Ernest Smith, in the final match of the July handicap event at the Municipal course yesterday.

The match was one of the most interesting played at the Muny course during the tournament. Kelly, according to his handicap rating, gave Smith five strokes, which were used up during the regular eighteen hole match. After that the two men were playing even, and it was a nip and tuck affair, until the 22nd hole, when Smith got into trouble by hooking his drive behind a tree on the No. 4 hole. He made a valiant effort to overcome this obstacle, but could not.

St. Marys-St. Josephs Retain Leadership In Church League

St. Marys-St. Josephs church golfing team remains in the lead one half a point in the New Castle church golfing league, and with the season ending next Thursday night the matches will be important. The Castle Hills course last night witnessed some blistering golf, with par being endangered by at least a half a dozen of the better known golfers.

The First Presbyterian "A" team plays the First Christians next week and the St. Marys-St. Josephs will play the First Presbyterian "B" team. These two matches will be watched very closely and will attract considerable attention. Captain V. Arthur Smith has promised to have the Castle Hills course in first class shape for the important matches next week. The Castle Hills course is rouning into shape nicely after the severe hot season.

Lewis-Fisher Medalists

Medalist honors last evening were divided between Sam Lewis, veteran golfing star of the First Christian team, and the sensational young golfer Joe Fisher of the First Presbyterian "B" team. Lewis and Fisher both turned in brilliant cards of 37 for the first nine at Castle Hills. Fisher blazed his way around the first nine last week in a sizzling 38 and last night played the same steady consistent golf that has brought him rapidly to the front. Other low scores were—Hackett Kennedy with a brilliant 38 score, and Chris Clarke with 39, Jim VonDereau with 39 and Charles Philip "Bugs" Walther with a scorching 39. Bill Long shot a 40, Russ Magill had a 41, Mont Magill had a 42 and Bud Long turned in a 42. Ralph Davis had a 41, Fulton L. Magill had a 41 on the back nine. City League Golfers Play Special Match At Muny Course Last Evening

In a special match at the Municipal Course last evening, the golfers of the City League were paired up on different teams, and struggled through from five to nine holes to determine who was the best.

Due to the fact that some of the golfers came late and did not get started on time, all the matches were not finished, and the final result has not yet been tabulated by the league officials.

After the match, the players repaired to the club house, where they enjoyed a fine lunch with refreshments. Councilman Joe Alexander was present as a special guest of the golfers.

It is planned to have another match next Thursday evening, when the league officials hope to get the event started earlier, to determine who the champion golfers are.

Among the low scorers last evening, were Emil Mancine, 40; Jimmy Pagley, 41; Roger Molesworth and Jene Veri, 42; Walt Vogan, Wayne Snyder, Ed. Kelly, 43.

Drunken Drivers Who Kill Pedestrians May Get 20-Year Sentence

By G. EVERETT DOYING
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Aug. 24.—State officials today gave unstinted support to the new policy of the Lackawanna county district attorney's office in charging drunken drivers with second degree murder.

"I think it is a good idea and certainly worth a try in an effort to halt the increase in drunken driving," declared W. W. Matthews, chief of the division of safety in the Department of Revenue.

No less enthusiastic was Captain Wilson C. Price, head of the highway patrol, who said:

Heavy Penalty

Ordinarily, drivers involved in fatal accidents where they are shown to have been negligent, are charged with involuntary manslaughter. Conviction on an involuntary manslaughter. Conviction on an involuntary manslaughter charge carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and $1,000 fine. Second degree murder, however, carries an indeterminate prison term up to 20 years.

The Scranton case admittedly is a test action. It was started by Assistant District Attorney Harold B. Edwards on the strength of a recent supreme court decision that drivers who show wanton disregard for the consequences of their driving can be found guilty of second degree murder.

Files Test Case

Edwards plans to seek an indictment of second degree murder against Raymond Olmstead, 47, of Scranton, who was committed to jail without bail by a justice of the peace yesterday for allegedly driving while intoxicated, when his automobile left the highway August 15, killing Richard J. Shields, also of Scranton, one of the occupants.

Figures of the state division of safety show startling increase in accidents resulting from drunken driving this year over last year. In the first seven months of 1934 drunken drivers were involved in 36 fatal accidents and 625 non-fatal accidents, as compared with 23 fatal accidents and 626 non-fatal accidents during a similar period last year. For the entire year 1933 drunken drivers figured in 52 fatal and 717 non-fatal crashes.

Chinese Bandits Seek Ransom For American Citizen

(International News Service)

PEIPING, China, Aug. 24.— The American consul at Mukden today informed the American legation here that the Russian woman kidnaped by bandits with Solomon Zeitlin, believed to be an American, had returned to Mukden bearing a note demanding payment of a ransom for the man.

FATHER AND SON BOILED ALIVE BY BANDITS
(International News Service)

PEIPING, Aug. 24 —The public safety bureau of Chekiang province is on the trail of a gang of armed robbers which brutally boiled a father and son alive.

The outlaws entered the victims' home at dusk and demanded money. Ignoring the pleas of poverty, the gang pushed the old man and his offspring into a kitchen cauldron, filled it with water and lighted the fire.

Screams brought neighbors who fished out the scalded pair. Help came too late, and both men subsequently died.

There is no reason why a man of 40 should not retain the vigor of 20, and it is quite possible for the man of 60 to be as well and useful as the average man of 40.

Neighbors Have Picnic Thursday At Hilliard Home

Seventy-five people of the West Clayton street vicinity took part in a most successful and highly enjoyable "neighborhood" picnic Thursday evening. They were guests of Harry Hilliard, of West Clayton street.

It was a perfectly planned affair and although the location was moved from the lawn to the large double garage because of the rainfall the enjoyment of the evening was not marred. Many dozens of ears of corn were roasted, sandwiches and marshmallows served. It was a big success from start to finish.

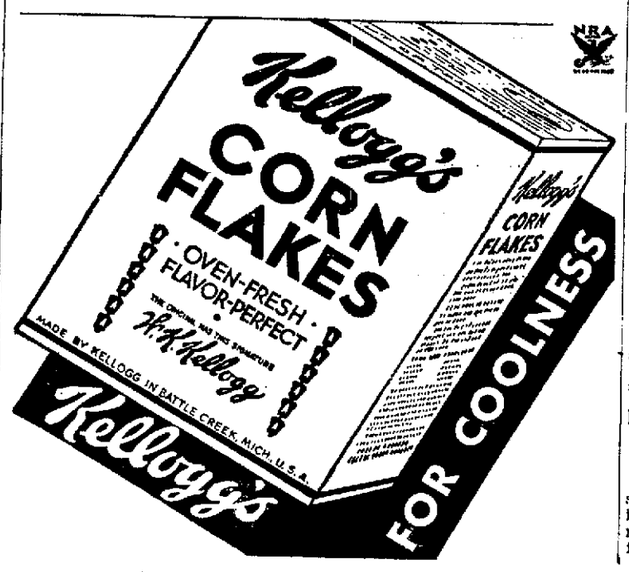

It is easy to determine your class. You can't shed tears over the sufferings of your betters.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Pounding through traffic jams and disregarding traffic signals, Mel Porter, a slender, little runner from Newark, N. J., yesterday jogged in first in the Irish day marathon at Cleveland. His time for the 26 miles, 385 yards was two hours, 20 minutes, 27 seconds. A quarter of a mile behind finished Clarence De Mar, 46-year-old school teacher of Keene, N. H. Harry Sherman, Providence, R. I., finished third.

It never rains unless it pours seems to be true, especially in the case of Bill Dickey, catcher for the Yankees. Several days ago his finger was split and it was expected he would be out of the lineup for two weeks. The finger was examined yesterday and it was found that the finger, the third on his throwing hand, had been fractured. Zach Taylor has been called in from the Syracuse club of the International loop to replace Dickey.

George Loft and Les Stoefen moved into the final round of the national doubles net play yesterday at Germantown, Pa., when they beat Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin, 10-8, 6-1, 7-5.....In the invitation tourney at Philadelphia Helen Jacobs, American women's singles champion, and Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan were upset in the semi-finals by the English combination of Katherine Stammers and Freda James, 6-4, 6-0.

Jimmie Dime who will turn 70 years of age his next birthday says running is harder than fighting. Inasmuch as the veteran once was not only a runner but also a tutor of cinder path artists, likewise a boxer, trainer and manager of a champion and several others who were within nodding distance of a pugilistic title his opinion is worth while.

In running, said Dime, one puts everything he has into the race from start to finish. The runner literally pumps his heart out and in many instances the runner collapses. Fighters step around lively and when they pound each other put everything they have into their punches but the exchanges do not last continuously and they get a breathing spell. Not so in running said Dime.

He cited himself as an example. When he was a runner he said that he has collapsed and on other occasions suffered for days, following a match. He also stated that in the olden days a runner ran every day—jumping from town to town, some of the laps being hundreds of miles apart. Fighters do not box every night and when they make matches they generally arrange them at least a week apart.

Jimmie said he did not pride himself when he raced the century dash and when he started it was no trick for some of the boys to beat him because in his day the cinder artists included Pooch Donovan, Carroll, Murphy, Walter Christie, Jack Mahan and a dozen other good runners. As time went on he excelled in the quarter and he had no trouble beating the field. He could run the quarter in 48. The record was 47 3-4.

The latter mark was for a straight away track whereas Jimmie made his time of 48 seconds on a circle track and under trying conditions. He raced in all sections of the country and got his name "Dime" because as a boy in his first race he borrowed a dime which was the entry fee. His correct name is Fox. He tutored racing in a New York state college and when he quit as a runner took up boxing.

Not only did he become one of the country's best 126-pounders but amassed a pile of knockouts, 41 of 44, if recollections of his record are accurate. Among the world notables he taught boxing to was the late Teddy Roosevelt and as a promoter he was prominently identified as a promoter in the days of the Horton law. His club was at Troy, N. Y. After coming here he produced Champion George Chip, Tom McMahon, Tony Ross Dan Dailey, taught Jimmie Dunn, Patsy Brannigan and other good fighters.

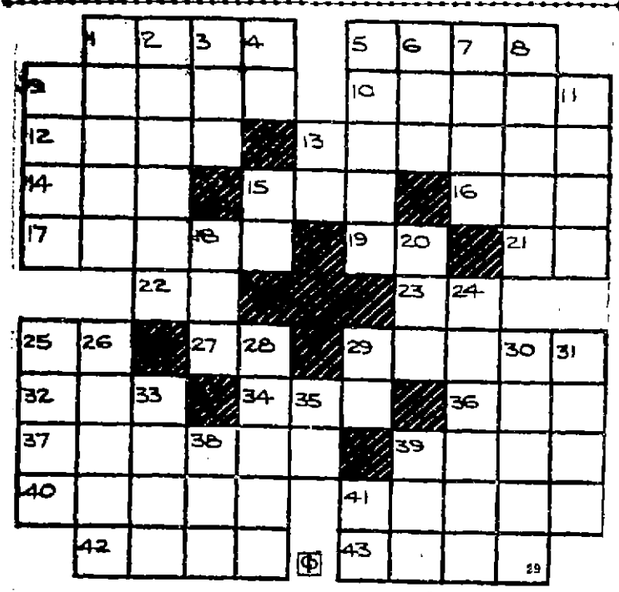

Sunny Boy took the 2:17 pace, Calumet Budlong the Handicap pace and Katy's First won the 2:15 trot at Tiffin, Thursday. Tim S won the two year old trot, Col. Eastine the 2:18 pace and Sam Rotan, the 2:12 trot at London. Patchen Girl turned in a win race in the 2:19 pace and Oil In Can won the 2:19 trot at Mansfield. At Jefferson, Troubar won the 2:22 trot, Overbrook the 2:18 trot, Roan Direct took the 2:14 pace and Victor Volo, the 2:28 trot.

Gabby Street has been signed to manage the Mission ball club again next year according to President Benswald. . . . Billy Herman, second baseman of the Cubs, sprained an ankle in a collision with First Baseman Leslie of the Dodgers at Chicago. . . . Springfield, Ill., race winners yesterday: 2:18 trot, Irene Hanover; Added Money, Raider; $1,500 added money, Una Signal and 2:17 pace, purse $1,200 and added money, Flo Henley. . . . James McShane, 37, McKeesport, deputy boxing commissioner, died of heart trouble yesterday at McKeesport.

Rollie Hemsley, catcher of the Browns, has been suspended. He engaged in a scrap with a policeman at Philadelphia. . . . Billy Terry took undisputed lead in the Big Six yesterday with an average of .370. Manush of the Senators is two points behind him. . . . Yankee, of Boston, leading aspirant for defense of the America's cup, beat Rainbow in their first clash in the final trial series at Newport.

Correct this sentence: "People come first," said the dog lover, "and I won't keep a dog that annoys them."

OPENING ROUND STARTS NEXT WEEK

Local golfers, who feel they have the ability to sport the title of best golfer in New Castle, will have an opportunity to test themselves in the annual Municipal course championship tournament, which will open next week.

Players have until Sunday evening to qualify by playing 36 holes over the Muny course, and no person is barred from entering. It is open to any golfer residing in the city who plays the local courses.

So far, 15 players have entered the race, 14 of whom feel they will be able to wrest the title away from the present champion, W. M. Nunn, but Mr. Nunn also feels he will have something to say about that, so there you are.

Entries may be made with William G. Fleming, manager of the Muny course, up to Sunday. After that, the books will be closed and pairings will start for the eliminations.

Horner 3 and 1 in the final match. Miss Hartsuff had to defeat a field of strong women golfers to achieve her championship, and is deserving of all the praise that is being heaped upon her.

Yanks Gain On Detroit Tigers

PIRATES WIN FROM PHILLIES

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—It's an old saying in the sport that a champion need not have everything but he must have something. And that something he has is class. And class may cover a multitude of virtues—skill, speed, cleverness, punch, stamina and heart.

He may lack in some of these things but one thing he must have and that's heart. And whether you are willing to admit the greatness of the Giants, at least you must admit they have got heart and plenty of it.

Witnes what they did yesterday in that all important game against the Cardinals—a game which may very well have been the one that settled the pennant.

They moved into St. Louis with a good but not necessarily unbeatable lead. The Cards were primed and waiting. They had the Dean boys ready to shoot and the Dean boys between them had beaten the Giants eight times without a defeat.

Giants Top Cards.

In this emergency, the Giants naturally led with their ace, Carl Hubbell, but the Cards went into the ninth leading, 3 to 2.

But here the Giants showed their fighting spirit. Two men got aboard and then up stepped Joe Moore and socked one for a homer and the Giants won, 5 to 3.

Now the Giants are six and a half games ahead of the Cubs and seven ahead of the Cards.

The Cubs blew one to the Dodgers, 9 to 4, and the Pirates came from behind to lick the Phillies, 6 to 5.

Yanks Gain Game.

The Yankees tightened up the American league race by trimming the Indians while the Tigers were dropping their second straight to the Senators and the New York entry is now only four games to the bad. However, the Tigers, like the Giants, finish at home, and they are more than likely to win.

Ruffing held the Indians to six hits and won, 9 to 2. Bob Burke held the Tigers to five hits and won, 3 to 1. Old Ted Lyons of the White Sox held the Red Sox to six hits and won, 7 to 2.

And Buck Newsom of the Browns spread six hits among the A's while fanning ten of them and waltzed in, 3 to 0.

THE SPORT PATROL

ASSUMED NAMES

Why do prize fighters use fictitious names in the ring? Probably the primary reason is because it has become customary. Boxers revert to this custom through a desire to have a name of one of the old-time heroes, because their real name is difficult to pronounce, and for other reasons. At any rate, there are many fighters whom the fans would not recognize under their real names.

The Phillipinos generally change their names, and for a good reason. They usually have a cognomen which is both difficult to pronounce and hard to get on a single line of a poster.

Speedy Dado, the Manilla featherweight, was born Deoasado Pesado. Johnny Datto, who is familiar to many local fans, was named Juan Pastrano. Ferdinand Opoa is the correct name for Young Tommy, clever featherweight.

Many of the Italian fighters change their names. Some of them assume the name of a former ring hero. Joseph Loscatzo, flyweight titleholder, fights as Midget Wolgast. Young Terry of New Jersey is really Sammy Pane. Vince and Joe Dundee should be called Lazzaro.

Other sons of Italy have abbreviated or simplified their own names for ring purposes. Johnny Farinacci thought Farr looked better on the posters. Kid Francis is Francis Bonaguri. Sammy Fuller didn't like the sound of Sabino Ferullo. Lew Massey was born Louis Masuacci.

The Jewish lads are also very fond of tricky names. Jackie (Kid) Berg thought his home town of London, England would prefer that name of Judha Bergman. Correctly speaking, Jackie Fields is John Finkelstein. The famous Benny Leonard's real name is Benjamin Leinert. When King Levinsky recently was married, the license read: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krakow. Barney Ross is Bernard Rosofsky.

The alias in the ring is used by all races: not just by the Jews, Italians and Phillipinos. The veteran Eddie Anderson is really Edward Fitzpatrick. Battling Bozo, the Birmingham clown, thought the name Curtis J. Hambright was all right for an executive office but not for a boxer. Young Corbett III used to rattle off Ralph Capabianca Giordano when he went to school.

Kid Chocolate used to be known in Havana as Eligio Sardinias. Baby Joe Gans had an appropriate original name, Gerald Slaughter, but liked the other better. Our old friend, Henry Firpo, is called Henry Hintleman by his relatives.

Battling Gizzy, the Donora slugger, was named Mike Urilli. The birth certificate of George Godfrey, the former Negro heavyweight contender, read Feab S. Williams. The record book discloses that Ben Jeby is a simplification of Morris Jebaltowsky. Tod Morgan, the former junior lightweight champ, is a Scotchman named Bert Pilkington.

Eddie Ran is of French and Polish descent and was named Edouard Fitzmajster. Jack Sharkey, the Lithuanian whom Carnera defeated for the heavyweight crown, is John Coccoskey. Jose Perez came up from Mexico and assumed the American name, Battling Shaw. King Tut is of Scotch-Irish descent and is Henry Tuttle by birth.

SPORT SIDELIGHTS

Ban Johnson and Charley Comiskey, co-founders of the American League, were for many years very close friends. However, in late years a rift developed which parted the pair. One of the incidents, advanced as the cause of the breach, occurred when the late Fielder Jones managed the White Sox.

Chicago was crippled by injuries at the time, yet when Jones and another player argued with the umpire, they were suspended by President Johnson. Ban had just returned from a fishing trip and sent to Owner Comiskey of the Sox two fine fish with his compliments. When Charley received the gift he retorted: "What does the big stiff expect me to do with the fish? Play them in the outfield."

Kelly Wins July Handicap Event

Eddie Kelly, diminutive Muny player, was forced to the 22nd hole by Ernest Smith, in the final match of the July handicap event at the Municipal course yesterday.

The match was one of the most interesting played at the Muny course during the tournament. Kelly, according to his handicap rating, gave Smith five strokes, which were used up during the regular eighteen hole match. After that the two men were playing even, and it was a nip and tuck affair, until the 22nd hole, when Smith got into trouble by hooking his drive behind a tree on the No. 4 hole. He made a valiant effort to overcome this obstacle, but could not.

St. Marys-St. Josephs Retain Leadership In Church League

St. Marys-St. Josephs church golfing team remains in the lead one half a point in the New Castle church golfing league, and with the season ending next Thursday night the matches will be important. The Castle Hills course last night witnessed some blistering golf, with par being endangered by at least a half a dozen of the better known golfers.

The First Presbyterian "A" team plays the First Christians next week and the St. Marys-St. Josephs will play the First Presbyterian "B" team. These two matches will be watched very closely and will attract considerable attention. Captain V. Arthur Smith has promised to have the Castle Hills course in first class shape for the important matches next week. The Castle Hills course is rouning into shape nicely after the severe hot season.

Lewis-Fisher Medalists

Medalist honors last evening were divided between Sam Lewis, veteran golfing star of the First Christian team, and the sensational young golfer Joe Fisher of the First Presbyterian "B" team. Lewis and Fisher both turned in brilliant cards of 37 for the first nine at Castle Hills. Fisher blazed his way around the first nine last week in a sizzling 38 and last night played the same steady consistent golf that has brought him rapidly to the front. Other low scores were—Hackett Kennedy with a brilliant 38 score, and Chris Clarke with 39, Jim VonDereau with 39 and Charles Philip "Bugs" Walther with a scorching 39. Bill Long shot a 40, Russ Magill had a 41, Mont Magill had a 42 and Bud Long turned in a 42. Ralph Davis had a 41, Fulton T. Magill had a 41 on the back nine. Dave Long, Daughtery, Travers, Pete Kariher, Dr. Theodore "Ted" Heess had 43's.

League Golfers Have Fine Party

City League Golfers Play Special Match At Muny Course Last Evening

In a special match at the Municipal Course last evening, the golfers of the City League were paired up on different teams and struggled through from five to nine holes to determine who was the best.

Due to the fact that some of the golfers came late and did not get started on time, all the matches were not finished, and the final result has not yet been tabulated by the league officials.

After the match, the players repaired to the club house, where they enjoyed a fine lunch with refreshments. Councilman Joe Alexander was present as a special guest of the golfers.

It is planned to have another match next Thursday evening, when the league officials hope to get the event started earlier, to determine who the champion golfers are.

Among the low scorers last evening, were Emil Marcine, 40; Jimmy Pagley, 41; Roger Molesworth and Jene Verl, 42; Walt Vogan, Wayne Snyder, Ed. Kelly, 43.

Accessories, Tires, Parts

F R A N K (Fleetwing) Dewberry hasn't said anything lately about his brother Walter who started in the pretty little cigar and magazine store next the Dome Theatre in East Wash. street. Well, Walt is doing nicely and is making plenty of friends on the east side. He knows how to be nice to a customer and as a result his business is 2 times as big as he expected it would be. Walt has some old time pictures in his window, one of Tim Hennessy being a dandy. Drop over and see Walt when you want a good box of candy, magazine, etc., and don't forget his big nosed brother Frank when you need gazzoline. 1t—6

FRANK (Fleetwing) Dewberry hasn't said anything lately about his brother Walter who started that pretty little cigar and magazinue store next the Dome Theatre in East Wash. street. Well, Walt is doing nicely and is making plenty of friends on the east side. He knows how to be nice to a customer and as a result his business is 3 times as big as he expected it would be. Walt has some old time pictures in his window, one of Tim Hennesey being a dandy. Drop over and see Walt when you want a good box of candy, magazine, etc., and don't forgot his big nosed brother Frank when you need gazzoline. 1t—6

Pounding through traffic jams and disregarding traffic signals, Mel Porter, a slender, little runner from Newark, N. J., yesterday jogged in first in the Irish day marathon at Cleveland. His time for the 26 miles, 385 yards was two hours, 30 minutes, 27 seconds. A quarter of a mile behind finished Clarence De Mar, 46-year-old school teacher of Keene, N. H. Harry Sherman, Providence, R. I., finished third.

It never rains unless it pours seems to be true, especially in the case of Bill Dickey, catcher for the Yankees. Several days ago his finger was split and it was expected he would be out of the lineup for two weeks. The finger was examined yesterday and it was found that the finger, the third on his throwing hand, had been fractured. Zach Taylor has been called in from the Syracuse club of the International loop to replace Dickey.

George Lott and Les Stoefen moved into the final round of the national doubles net play yesterday at Germantown, Pa., when they beat Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin, 10-8, 6-1, 7-5.....In the invitation tourney at Philadelphia Helen Jacobs, American women's singles champion, and Mrs. Elizabeth Ryan were upset in the semi-finals by the English combination of Katherine Stammers and Freda James, 6-4, 6-0.

Jimmie Dime who will turn 70 years of age his next birthday says running is harder than fighting. Inasmuch as the veteran once was not only a runner but also a tutor of cinder path artists, likewise a boxer, trainer and manager of a champion and several others who were within nodding distance of a pugilistic title his opinion is worth while.

In running, said Dime, one puts everything he has into the race from start to finish. The runner literally pumps his heart out and in many instances the runner collapses. Fighters step around lively and when they pound each other put everything they have into their punches but the exchanges do not last continuously and they get a breathing spell. Not so in running said Dime.

He cited himself as an example. When he was a runner he said that he has collapsed and on other occasions suffered for days following a match. He also stated that in the olden days a runner ran every day—jumping from town to town, some of the laps being hundreds of miles apart. Fighters do not box every night and when they make matches they generally arrange them at least a week apart.

Jimmie said he did not pride himself when he raced the century dash and when he started it was no trick for some of the boys to beat him because in his day the cinder artists included Pooch Donovan, Carroll, Murphy, Walter Christie, Jack Mahan and a dozen other good runners. As time went on he excelled in the quarter and he had no trouble beating the field. He could run the quarter in 48. The record was 47 3-4.

The latter mark was for a straight away track whereas Jimmie made his time of 48 seconds on a circle track and under trying conditions. He raced in all sections of the country and got his name "Dime" because as a boy in his first race he borrowed a dime which was the entry fee. His correct name is Fox. He tutored racing in a New York state college and when he quit as a runner took up boxing.

Not only did he become one of the country's best 126-pounders but amassed a pile of knockouts, 41 of 44, if recollections of his record are accurate. Among the world notables he taught boxing to was the late Teddy Roosevelt and as a promoter he was prominently identified as a promoter in the days of the Horton law. His club was at Troy, N. Y. After coming here he produced Champion George Chip, Tom McMahon, Tony Ross Dan Dailey, taught Jimmie Dunn, Patsy Brannigan and other good fighters.

At Jefferson, Troubar won the 2:22 trot, Overbrook the 2:18 trot, Roan Direct took the 2:14 pace and Victor Volo, the 2:28 trot.

Stock Market Is Dull Today

FAIR DEMAND FOR UTILITIES

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The stock market turned into a dull affair today with only the utilities showing further rallying power.

In the utilities a fair demand developed for Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, United Corp., and American Water Works and gains ran to a point.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other industrial shares were sluggish.

ISSUE CALL FOR GRID CANDIDATES

Uniforms To Be Given Out 9:30 Monday Morning; First Practice In Afternoon

PROSPECTS OF VETERAN ELEVEN

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Football is in the air again as an official call for candidates for Monday morning at 9:30 was issued by Head Coach George "Ganzy" Benedict this morning.

Benedict will arrive in town tomorrow with Faculty Manager M. J. Ferrare, who is also assistant coach. Preparations for the opening of an intensive practice and training period will be made, for the first game is scheduled for a week earlier than usual. It will be with Union township here on September 15. Benedict with his staff of student managers will prepare for the handling of nearly 100 candidates. Uniforms and equipment will be handed out promptly at 9:30. A supervised practice session will be held in the afternoon. A brand new and soft practice field has been made. Ellwood's playing field this year will be second to none. It has been entirely rebuilt and sodded by CWA labor. The grass is coming up splendidly.

Much enthusiasm is being evinced over a successful eleven this year. Ellwood will practically have a veteran team on the field. According to the present prospects the eleven this year will be one of the biggest and heaviest seen here in several years. Some promising looking Freshmen have great aspirations for making the team. Benedict will have six first stringers of last year in the line and two backfield men. There is some wonderful material in last season's reserve squad. There will be some merry battles for positions.

Ellwood City Man Commits Suicide

Clark S. B. Patterson Found Hanging From The Cellar Rafters By Daughter

Ill Health And Despondency Over Loss Of Wife Believed To Be Cause Of Act

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Clark S. B. Patterson, 45, was found dead hanging by a clothes line from the rafters in the cellar of his home at 223 Crescent avenue about 10:30 last night.

The man was found by his daughter Iona, 16, when she had returned home after visiting friends near-by. Finding lights in the home she called for her father and upon receiving no response she began a search for him. Upon seeing a light in the cellar she proceeded to go down the stairs. She stopped short after reaching the bottom step and saw the gruesome sight.

Calls Neighbors

Becoming terrified she ran to a neighbor, James Fitzgerald, who in turn immediately called the local police. Lieut. E. R. Hartman, Officers Fred Henderson, and Chester Young, and Constable Elmer Frishkorn responded immediately. After a preliminary examination County Coroner Orville Potter was notified. Coroner Potter pronounced the death as a sucide. A clothes line and a small step ladder were used in performing the act. Dr. H. H. Davis who made a post mortem of the case stated that Patterson had died from strangulation. It was estimated that he had been dead about four or five hours before the body was found.

It was only last December that Mr. Patterson's wife had committed suicide by inhaling gas at her home. Despondency over this and ill health is believed to have caused his act.

Besides his daughter the deceased leaves his mother, Mrs. David L. Patterson of Beaver Falls, two sisters, Mrs. Thomas J. Gibney and Mrs. Ralph W. Pierce of Beaver Falls. He was born and raised in Beaver Falls and for the past several years had made his home in this city. He was employed at the local National Tube Company. Funeral services are imcomplete and will be announced later.

Award Number Of Contracts —Open Bids For Heating And Ventilating System

NEW GYM FLOOR IS UNDER CONSIDERATION

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Considerable amount of business was transacted by the Ellwood City Board of Education at a special meeting in their rooms of the Lincoln school last night.

Bids for the heating and ventilating system were opened from this and referred to the building committee for a recommendation. There were five bids which varied from $3500 to $5,000. The contract for repairs to the roofs of the Hartman and Ewing Park buildings was awarded to Bowers and Weyman of this city. Another contract for similar repairs to the North Side building was awarded to H. A. Payne of this city. Andrews and company of New Castle were awarded the contract for installing additional radiation in ten rooms here.

The recommendation of Supt. Vaughn R. DeLong to elect Miss Dorothy Stevens of Aliquippa as a teacher here was accepted by the board. Miss Stevens will replace Miss Winstone who failed to sign her contract. Lou McKim was elected as janitor of the Circle school at this time and will begin his duties on Sept. 1. Mrs. Webster was elected to a part time janitress job and will work in the Hartman school. Rudolph Turner was transferred from the Hartman school as janitor of the Central school.

There was no action taken on the proposed new gym floor in the Lincoln high school, at this time. The board studied some prices for lumber for this work. The board decided to get prices or bids for the installation. It was hinted that it is unlikely that the floor will be installed this year.

Action was taken at this time to have their tax collection schedule conform with that of the city so as to make it less difficult for the tax collector.

The board approved a payment on the work done to date on the new wing to the school. This will be paid as soon as the PWA funds are available from Washington.

BOOSTED CIRCULATION BUT LANDED IN JAIL

(International News Service)

BOCHUM, Germany, Aug. 24.—Circulation managers of American newspapers who tear their hair figuring out ways of getting over "that slump" might envy Hans Schultze's methods—up to a certain point.

Hans solicited subscriptions at houses where he knew the men folk were at work. Working for a Nazi paper (sometimes a law unto themselves) Hans threatened the housewives with all manner of dire evils until the hausfrau signed on the dotted line, even telling them that the paper would see that the men lost their jobs if the women didn't sign up.

The opposition papers naturally complained and Hans was arrested and sentenced to five weeks for using illegal methods in securing subscriptions.

Stock Market Is Dull Today

FAIR DEMAND FOR UTILITIES

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The stock market turned into a dull affair today with only the utilities showing further rallying power.

In the utilities a fair demand developed for Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, United Corp., and American Water Works and gains ran to a point.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other industrial shares were sluggish.

General Motors and Chrysler were steady around their previous closing levels, but the other auto shares were sluggish.

ISSUE CALL FOR GRID CANDIDATES

Uniforms To Be Given Out 9:30 Monday Morning; First Practice In Afternoon

PROSPECTS OF VETERAN ELEVEN

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Football is in the air again as an official call for candidates for Monday morning at 9:30 was issued by Head Coach George "Ganzy" Benedict this morning.

Benedict will arrive in town tomorrow with Faculty Manager M. J. Ferrare, who is also assistant coach. Preparations for the opening of an intensive practice and training period will be made, for the first game is scheduled for a week earlier than usual. It will be with Union township here on September 15. Benedict with his staff of student managers will prepare for the handling of nearly 100 candidates. Uniforms and equipment will be handed out promptly at 9:30. A supervized practice session will be held in the afternoon. A brand new and soft practice field has been made. Ellwood's playing field this year will be second to none. It has been entirely rebuilt and sodded by CWA labor. The grass is coming up splendidly.

Much enthusiasm is being evinced over a successful eleven this year. Ellwood will practically have a veteran team on the field. According to the present prospects the eleven this year will be one of the biggest and heaviest seen here in several years. Some promising looking Freshmen have great aspirations for making the team. Benedict will have six first stringers of last year in the line and two backfield men. There is some wonderful material in last season's reserve squad. There will be some merry battles for positions.

Ellwood City Man Commits Suicide

Ill Health And Despondency Over Loss Of Wife Believed To Be Cause Of Act

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Clark S. B. Patterson, 45, was found dead hanging by a clothes line from the rafters in the cellar of his home at 223 Crescent avenue about 10:30 last night.

The man was found by his daughter Iona, 16, when she had returned home after visiting friends near-by. Finding lights in the home she called for her father and upon receiving no response she began a search for him. Upon seeing a light in the cellar she proceeded to go down the stairs. She stopped short after reaching the bottom step and saw the gruesome sight.

Calls Neighbors

Becoming terrified she ran to a neighbor, James Fitzgerald, who in turn immediately called the local police. Lieut. E. R. Hartman, Officers Fred Henderson, and Chester Young, and Constable Elmer Frishkorn responded immediately. After a preliminary examination County Coroner Orville Potter was notified. Coroner Potter pronounced the death as a sucide. A clothes line and a small step ladder were used in performing the act. Dr. H. H. Davis who made a post mortem of the case stated that Patterson had died from strangulation. It was estimated that he had been dead about four or five hours before the body was found.

It was only last December that Mr. Patterson's wife had committed suicide by inhaling gas at her home. Despondency over this and ill health is believed to have caused his act.

Besides his daughter the deceased leaves his mother, Mrs. David L. Patterson of Beaver Falls, two sisters, Mrs. Thomas J. Gibney and Mrs. Ralph W. Pierce of Beaver Falls. He was born and raised in Beaver Falls and for the past several years had made his home in this city. He was employed at the local National Tube Company. Funeral services are imcomplete and will be announced later.

Special Meeting Held By School Board Thursday

NEW GYM FLOOR IS UNDER CONSIDERATION

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Considerable amount of business was transacted by the Ellwood City Board of Education at a special meeting in their rooms of the Lincoln school last night.

Bids for the heating and ventilating system were opened from this and referred to the building committee for a recommendation. There were five bids which varied from $3500 to $5,000. The contract for repairs to the roofs of the Hartman and Ewing Park buildings was awarded to Bowers and Weyman of this city. Another contract for similar repairs to the North Side building was awarded to H. A. Payne of this city. Andrews and company of New Castle were awarded the contract for installing additional radiation in ten rooms here.

The recommendation of Supt. Vaughn R. DeLong to elect Miss Dorothy Stevens of Aliquippa as a teacher here was accepted by the board. Miss Stevens will replace Miss Winstone who failed to sign her contract. Lou McKim was elected as janitor of the Circle school at this time and will begin his duties on Sept. 1. Mrs. Webster was elected to a part time janitress job and will work in the Hartman school. Rudolph Turner was transferred from the Hartman school as janitor of the Central school.

There was no action taken on the proposed new gym floor in the Lincoln high school, at this time. The board studied some prices for lumber for this work. The board decided to get prices or bids for the installation. It was hinted that it is unlikely that the floor will be installed this year.

Action was taken at this time to have their tax collection schedule conform with that of the city so as to make it less difficult for the tax collector.

The board approved a payment on the work done to date on the new wing to the school. This will be paid as soon as the PWA funds are available from Washington.

Accessories, Tires, Parts

F R A N K (Fleetwing) Dewberry hasn't said anything lately about his brother Walter who started that pretty little cigar and magazine store next the Dome Theatre in East Wash. street. Well, Walt is doing nicely and is making plenty of friends on the east side. He knows how to be nice to a customer and as a result his business is 3 times as big as he expected it would be. Walt has some old time pictures in his window, one of Tim Hennessey being a dandy. Drop over and see Walt when you want a good box of candy, magazine, etc., and don't forget his big nosed brother Frank when you need gazzoline. 1t—6

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Cottage Grovers Wind Up Season With Big Picnic

Wiener Roast Last Evening Enjoyed By Summer Colony Of Local People

A farewell picnic was enjoyed on Thursday evening by the Cottage Grove Colony, comprised mostly of seventh ward residents. It was held in the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Horchler and was in the form of a wiener roast.

This gathering was the final one of the season for the little community of summer campers at the pretty nook along the Little Neshannock for many of the cottage owners will be "breaking camp" within the next few days.

Thirty five or forty people attended the picnic, and although the outside plans were interfered with because of the inclement weather, the gathering was none the less enjoyable.

Committee To Form Plans For Picnic

A committee meeting will be conducted at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bevan, Cottage Grove, this evening for the purpose of making full arrangements for the annual picnic of the Mahoning Finance & Loan association which is to be an event of next week.

ARIZONA GUEST

A business meeting of Mabel Wilson Auxiliary to the B. of R. T. was conducted in the city building Thursday evening and was well attended.

Present as a special guest was Mrs. Eva Wills, of Sunset Lodge, Tucson, Arizona, a charter member of Mabel Wilson lodge.

Announcement was made that initiation service will be conducted at the next regular meeting date, September 13.

A corn and wiener roast will be enjoyed on Wednesday evening, September 12, at Cascade Park. This will be for Mabel Wilson Auxiliary members and their families and for members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen No. 955 and their families.

Club, Families, To Have Picnic

A corn roast on calendar for Friday evening, August 31, promises to be an event of more than usual enjoyment. It is planned by the W. A. G. club for members, husbands and families, and will take place at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Dickson, Edenburg.

Arrangements are in charge of a committee comprised of Mrs. W. H. Mauermann, Mrs. W. R. Bollinger and Mrs. Carl Houk.

Observations In 7th Ward

Several local youths went airplaning one day this week and took a camera along. They came back with a roll of film, when developed, that was a fairly comprehensive panorama of seventh ward. A bird's eye view of this section of the city furnishes some surprises. For example it gives an idea of the number of homes in the district, and that number is at least a hundred or two more than you would guess.

John Robinson, of the Mahoningtown postoffice, is wondering just what kind of a squash he has at his East Brook farm. It is a cross between at least three varieties and has produced an odd-shaped odd-colored group of squashes that are akin to none he has ever seen.

Oiling of roads in the district is the principal activity of the state highway department. Superintendent Lightner said at headquarters, West Cherry street, today. Some E-oiling was to be done today but must be delayed because the roads are too wet.

ENDS LONG TRIP

Ralph Gates is back in seventh ward after a long absence during which time he traveled far and had many interesting experiences. When he left here he went to California and "shipped out" on a liner. He stopped at various ports in South America, then crossed over east to the Orient, finally winding up at the home port in California. His trip back to New Castle ended many months of adventurous travel.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. W. Greyson Coates of Constantine, Mich., formerly of seventh ward, announce the birth of a son on Wednesday, August 22, who has been named Herbert Greyson Coates II.

PITTSBURGH PICNIC

SEVENTH WARD PERSONALS

T. C. Rainey, of North Liberty street, who has been ill for several days, is able to be around some again.

Judge R. M. Gibson authorized the separate actions when both rivermen claimed they were without funds. The boat, owned by Mrs. Blanche Thelma Menke and captained by her husband, William Menke, is now stranded on the Allegheny river bank here as the result of high water.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Cottage Grovers Wind Up Season With Big Picnic

Wiener Roast Last Evening Enjoyed By Summer Colony Of Local People

A farewell picnic was enjoyed on Thursday evening by the Cottage Grove Colony, comprised mostly of seventh ward residents. It was held in the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Horchler and was in the form of a wiener roast.

This gathering was the final one of the season for the little community of summer campers at the pretty nook along the Little Neshannock for many of the cottage owners will be "breaking camp" within the next few days.

Thirty five or forty people attended the picnic, and although the outside plans were interfered with because of the inclement weather, the gathering was none the less enjoyable.

Committee To Form Plans For Picnic

A committee meeting will be conducted at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bevan, Cottage Grove, this evening for the purpose of making full arrangements for the annual picnic of the Mahoning Finance & Loan association which is to be an event of next week.

ARIZONA GUEST

A business meeting of Mabel Wilson Auxiliary to the B. of R. T. was conducted in the city building Thursday evening and was well attended.

Present as a special guest was Mrs. Eva Wills, of Sunset Lodge, Tucson, Arizona, a charter member of Mabel Wilson lodge.

Announcement was made that initiation service will be conducted at the next regular meeting date, September 13.

A corn and wiener roast will be enjoyed on Wednesday evening, September 12, at Cascade Park. This will be for Mabel Wilson Auxiliary members and their families and for members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen No. 955 and their families.

Club, Families, To Have Picnic

A corn roast on calendar for Friday evening, August 31, promises to be an event of more than usual enjoyment. It is planned by the W. A. G. club for members, husbands and families, and will take place at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Dickson, Edenburg.

Arrangements are in charge of a committee comprised of Mrs. W. H. Mauermann, Mrs. W. R. Bollinger and Mrs. Carl Houk.

Observations In 7th Ward

Several local youths went airplaning one day this week and took a camera along. They came back with a roll of film, when developed, that was a fairly comprehensive panorama of seventh ward. A bird's eye view of this section of the city furnishes some surprises. For example it gives an idea of the number of homes in the district, and that number is at least a hundred or two more than you would guess.

John Robinson, of the Mahoningtown postoffice, is wondering just what kind of a squash he has at his East Brook farm. It is a cross between at least three varieties and has produced an odd-shaped odd-colored group of squashes that are akin to none he has ever seen.

Oiling of roads in the district is the principal activity of the state highway department, Superintendent Lightner said at headquarters, West Cherry street, today. Some E-oiling was to be done today but must be delayed because the roads are too wet.

ENDS LONG TRIP

Ralph Gates is back in seventh ward after a long absence during which time he traveled far and had many interesting experiences. When he left here he went to California and "shipped out" on a liner. He stopped at various ports in South America, then crossed over east to the Orient, finally winding up at the home port in California. His trip back to New Castle ended many months of adventurous travel.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. W. Greyson Coates of Constantine, Mich., formerly of seventh ward, announce the birth of a son on Wednesday, August 22, who has been named Herbert Greyson Coates II.

Stock Market Is Dull Today

FAIR DEMAND FOR UTILITIES

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—The stock market turned into a dull affair today with only the utilities showing further rallying power.

In the utilities a fair demand developed for Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, United Corp., and American Water Works and gains ran to a point.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other industrial shares were sluggish.

General Motors and Chrysler were steady around their previous closing levels, but the other auto shares were sluggish.

ISSUE CALL FOR GRID CANDIDATES

Uniforms To Be Given Out 9:30 Monday Morning; First Practice In Afternoon

PROSPECTS OF VETERAN ELEVEN

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Football is in the air again as an official call for candidates for Monday morning at 9:30 was issued by Head Coach George "Ganzy" Benedict this morning.

Benedict will arrive in town tomorrow with Faculty Manager M. J. Ferrare, who is also assistant coach. Preparations for the opening of an intensive practice and training period will be made, for the first game is scheduled for a week earlier than usual. It will be with Union township here on September 15. Benedict with his staff of student managers will prepare for the handling of nearly 100 candidates. Uniforms and equipment will be handed out promptly at 9:30. A supervized practice session will be held in the afternoon. A brand new and soft practice field has been made. Ellwood's playing field this year will be second to none. It has been entirely rebuilt and sodded by CWA labor. The grass is coming up splendidly.

Much enthusiasm is being evinced over a successful eleven this year. Ellwood will practically have a veteran team on the field. According to the present prospects the eleven this year will be one of the biggest and heaviest seen here in several years. Some promising looking Freshmen have great aspirations for making the team. Benedict will have six first stringers of last year in the line and two backfield men. There is some wonderful material in last season's reserve squad. There will be some merry battles for positions.

Harriet Gordon Class Convenes

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Members of the Harriet Gordan class of the Wurtemburg United Presbyterian church assembled at the home of Mrs. W. S. Cowan of the Ellwood-New Castle road last evening for the regular August meeting. Twelve members and one special guest, Miss Dorothy Kingston, participated.

An informal social period with games and contests followed with prizes being awarded, Miss Mary White and Mrs. Samuel Shaffer. Later refreshments were served by the hostess after which adjournment was taken to meet again on Thursday, September 27.

Mrs. John Steifel Called By Death

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24—Mrs. John Steifel of First avenue suddenly passed away at her home at 6:30 last evening after a heart attack. She seemed in the best of health and spirits before this. Her passing was a shock to her many friends.

The deceased is survived by her husband and two step-daughters. Funeral services are incomplete and will be announced later.

R. Q. Club Meets At Oak Camp

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Members of the R. Q. club were the guests of Mrs. Book at Oak Camp in Fombell last evening. Thirteen were present. A corn and wiener roast was enjoyed by those present. Ellwood City Man Commits Suicide

Ill Health And Despondency Over Loss Of Wife Believed To Be Cause Of Act

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Clark S. B. Patterson, 45, was found dead hanging by a clothes line from the rafters in the cellar of his home at 223 Crescent avenue about 10:30 last night.

The man was found by his daughter Iona, 16, when she had returned home after visiting friends near-by. Finding lights in the home she called for her father and upon receiving no response she began a search for him. Upon seeing a light in the cellar she proceeded to go down the stairs. She stopped short after reaching the bottom step and saw the gruesome sight.

Calls Neighbors

Becoming terrified she ran to a neighbor, James Fitzgerald, who in turn immediately called the local police. Lieut. E. R. Hartman, Officers Fred Henderson, and Chester Young, and Constable Elmer Frishkorn responded immediately. After a preliminary examination County Coroner Orville Potter was notified. Coroner Potter pronounced the death as a sucide. A clothes line and a small step ladder were used in performing the act. Dr. H. H. Davis who made a post mortem of the case stated that Patterson had died from strangulation. It was estimated that he had been dead about four or five hours before the body was found.

It was only last December that Mr. Patterson's wife had committed suicide by inhaling gas at her home. Despondency over this and ill health is believed to have caused his act.

Besides his daughter the deceased leaves his mother, Mrs. David L. Patterson of Beaver Falls, two sisters, Mrs. Thomas J. Gibney and Mrs. Ralph W. Pierce of Beaver Falls. He was born and raised in Beaver Falls and for the past several years had made his home in this city. He was employed at the local National Tube Company. Funeral services are imcomplete and will be announced later.

GAME IS 21ST STRAIGHT WIN

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24—A weeks rest seems to have done the Shelby Socials of the Beaver County League a world of good. The marvelous brand of baseball that has marked their play throughout the second half of their season appears to have been improved upon last evening. They won their 21st consecutive victory by shutting out the Ellwood Merchants 7-0 at Ewing Park field in a six inning game.

One of the features of the game was the excellent hurling of Gunnett who held his opponents to two hits, while his team mates lambasted Poholsky and Hurley for eight. The Socials scored two runs in the second inning, one in the third, and four in the fifth. There was some heavy hitting by Brown and Sank McCullough.

Award Number Of Contracts —Open Bids For Heating And Ventilating System

NEW GYM FLOOR IS UNDER CONSIDERATION

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 24.—Considerable amount of business was transacted by the Ellwood City Board of Education at a special meeting in their rooms of the Lincoln school last night.

Bids for the heating and ventilating system were opened from this and referred to the building committee for a recommendation. There were five bids which varied from $3500 to $5,000. The contract for repairs to the roofs of the Hartman and Ewing Park buildings was awarded to Bowers and Weyman of this city. Another contract for similar repairs to the North Side building was awarded to H. A. Payne of this city. Andrews and company of New Castle were awarded the contract for installing additional radiation in ten rooms here.

The recommendation of Supt. Vaughn R. DeLong to elect Miss Dorothy Stevens of Aliquippa as a teacher here was accepted by the board. Miss Stevens will replace Miss Winstone who failed to sign her contract. Lou McKim was elected as janitor of the Circle school at this time and will begin his duties on Sept. 1. Mrs. Webster was elected to a part time janitress job and will work in the Hartman school. Rudolph Turner was transferred from the Hartman school as janitor of the Central school.

There was no action taken on the proposed new gym floor in the Lincoln high school, at this time. The board studied some prices for lumber for this work. The board decided to get prices or bids for the installation. It was hinted that it is unlikely that the floor will be installed this year.

Action was taken at this time to have their tax collection schedule conform with that of the city so as to make it less difficult for the tax collector.

The board approved a payment on the work done to date on the new wing to the school. This will be paid as soon as the PWA funds are available from Washington.

GAS ATTACK ON CATS ROUTS POLICE CHIEF

(International News Service)

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Aug. 24.—Tear gas may be fine for routing a bevy of cats engaged in nocturnal vocalizing, but if the wind's in the wrong direction better get yourself a gas mask.

Chief of Police B. H. Slayers, his sleep disturbed by a quartet of howling felines, seized a tear gas gun and discharged the weapon in the general direction of the Thomases and Tabbies.

The gas, instead of chasing the cats, rolled back into Chief Slayer's face. The Chief was routed from his home and the cats continued their howling.

BOOSTED CIRCULATION BUT LANDED IN JAIL

(International News Service)

BOCHUM, Germany, Aug. 24.—Circulation managers of American newspapers who tear their hair figuring out ways of getting over "that slump" might envy Hans Schultze's methods—up to a certain point.

Hans solicited subscriptions at houses where he knew the men folk were at work. Working for a Nazi paper (sometimes a law unto themselves) Hans threatened the housewives with all manner of dire evils until the hausfrau signed on the dotted line, even telling them that the paper would see that the men lost their jobs if the women didn't sign up.

The opposition papers naturally complained and Hans was arrested and sentenced to five weeks for using illegal methods in securing subscriptions.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Cottage Grovers Wind Up Season With Big Picnic

Wiener Roast Last Evening Enjoyed By Summer Colony Of Local People

A farewell picnic was enjoyed on Thursday evening by the Cottage Grove Colony, comprised mostly of seventh ward residents. It was held in the cottage of Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Horchler and was in the form of a wiener roast.

This gathering was the final one of the season for the little community of summer campers at the pretty nook along the Little Neshannock for many of the cottage owners will be "breaking camp" within the next few days.

Thirty five or forty people attended the picnic, and although the outside plans were interfered with because of the inclement weather, the gathering was none the less enjoyable.

Committee To Form Plans For Picnic

A committee meeting will be conducted at the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Bevan, Cottage Grove, this evening for the purpose of making full arrangements for the annual picnic of the Mahoning Finance & Loan association which is to be an event of next week.

Observations In 7th Ward

Several local youths went airplaning one day this week and took a camera along. They came back with a roll of film, when developed, that was a fairly comprehensive panorama of seventh ward. A bird's eye view of this section of the city furnishes some surprises. For example it gives an idea of the number of homes in the district, and that number is at least a hundred or two more than you would guess.

John Robinson, of the Mahoningtown postoffice, is wondering just what kind of a squash he has at his East Brook farm. It is a cross between at least three varieties and has produced an odd-shaped odd-colored group of squashes that are akin to none he has ever seen.

Oiling of roads in the district is the principal activity of the state highway department, Superintendent Lightner said at headquarters, West Cherry street, today. Some E-oiling was to be done today but must be delayed because the roads are too wet.

ENDS LONG TRIP

Ralph Gates is back in seventh ward after a long absence during which time he traveled far and had many interesting experiences. When he left here he went to California and "shipped out" on a liner. He stopped at various ports in South America, then crossed over east to the Orient, finally winding up at the home port in California. His trip back to New Castle ended many months of adventurous travel.
